The Mission of Duke University

James B. Duke’s founding indenture of Duke University directed the members of the university to “provide real leadership in the educational world” by choosing individuals of “outstanding character, ability and vision” to serve as its officers, trustees and faculty; by carefully selecting students of “character, determination and application;” and by pursuing those areas of teaching and scholarship that would “most help to develop our resources, increase our wisdom, and promote human happiness.”

To these ends, the mission of Duke University is to provide a superior liberal education to undergraduate students, attending not only to their intellectual growth but also to their development as adults committed to high ethical standards and full participation as leaders in their communities; to prepare future members of the learned professions for lives of skilled and ethical service by providing excellent graduate and professional education; to advance the frontiers of knowledge and contribute boldly to the international community of scholarship; to promote an intellectual environment built on a commitment to free and open inquiry; to help those who suffer, cure disease and promote health, through sophisticated medical research and thoughtful patient care; to provide wide-ranging educational opportunities, on and beyond our campuses, for traditional students, active professionals and life-long learners using the power of information technologies; and to promote a deep appreciation for the range of human difference and potential, a sense of the obligations and rewards of citizenship, and a commitment to learning, freedom and truth.

By pursuing these objectives with vision and integrity, Duke University seeks to engage the mind, elevate the spirit, and stimulate the best effort of all who are associated with the university; to contribute in diverse ways to the local community, the state, the nation and the world; and to attain and maintain a place of real leadership in all that we do.

— Adopted by the Board of Trustees on February 23, 2001
The information in this bulletin applies to the academic year 2016-2017 and is accurate and current, to the greatest extent possible, as of May 2016. The university reserves the right to change programs of study, academic requirements, teaching staff, the calendar, and other matters described herein without prior notice, in accordance with established procedures.

Duke University does not tolerate discrimination or harassment of any kind. Duke University has designated Dr. Benjamin Reese, vice-president for institutional equity, as the individual responsible for the coordination and administration of its nondiscrimination and harassment policies generally. The Office for Institutional Equity is located in Smith Warehouse, 114 S. Buchanan Blvd., Bay 8, Durham, NC 27708. Dr. Reese’s office telephone number is (919) 684-8222 and his e-mail address is ben.reese@duke.edu. Sexual harassment and sexual misconduct are forms of sex discrimination and prohibited by the university. Duke University has designated Howard Kallem as its director of Title IX compliance and Age Discrimination Act coordinator. He is also with the Office for Institutional Equity and can be contacted at (919) 684-1437 or howard.kallem@duke.edu.

Questions or comments about discrimination, harassment, domestic violence, dating violence, and stalking can be directed to the Office for Institutional Equity, (919) 684-8222. Additional information, including the complete text of the discrimination grievance procedure and the harassment policy and appropriate complaint procedures, may be found by contacting the Office for Institutional Equity or visiting its website at www.duke.edu/web/equity/. Questions or comments about sex-based and sexual harassment and misconduct, domestic violence, dating violence, and stalking committed by a student may also be directed to Victoria Krebs, Associate Dean of Students in the Office of Student Conduct, at (919) 684-7336 or victoria.krebs@duke.edu. Additional information, including the complete text of the policy and complaint procedure for such misconduct, may be found at http://studentaffairs.duke.edu/conduct/z-policies/student-sexual-misconduct-policy-dukes-commitment-title-ix.

Duke University recognizes and utilizes electronic mail as a medium for official communications. The university provides all students with e-mail accounts as well as access to e-mail services from public clusters if students do not have personal computers of their own. All students are expected to access their e-mail accounts on a regular basis to check for and respond as necessary to such communications.

Information that the university is required to make available under the federal Clery Act is available by visiting the Records Division, Duke University Police Department, 502 Oregon Street, Durham, NC 27708, or by calling (919) 684-4602. See http://duke.edu/police/news_stats/clery/index.php for more details.

The Family Educational Rights & Privacy Act (FERPA), 20 U.S.C § 1232g; 34 CFR Part 99, is a federal law that guides the release of students’ education records, of which disciplinary records are a part. For additional information about FERPA, see http://www.ed.gov/policy/gen/guid/fpco/ferpa/index.html.

Duke University is accredited by the Commission on Colleges of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools to award baccalaureate, masters, doctorate, and professional degrees. Contact the Commission on Colleges at 1866 Southern Lane, Decatur, GA 30033-4097 or call (404) 679-4500 for questions about the accreditation of Duke University.

Duke Divinity School is accredited by the Commission on Accrediting of the Association of Theological Schools in the United States and Canada to award the MDiv, MACP, MTS, MACS, ThM, DMin, and ThD degrees. Contact the Commission on Accrediting of the Association of Theological Schools at 10 Summit Park Drive, Pittsburgh, PA 15275, call (412) 788-6505, fax (412) 788-6510, or visit its website (www.ats.edu) for questions about the accreditation of Duke Divinity School.

General Information

History of Duke University

Duke University traces its roots to 1838 in nearby Randolph County, where local Methodist and Quaker communities joined forces to support a permanent school that they named Union Institute. After a brief period as Normal College (1851-59), the school changed its name to Trinity College in 1859 and became a liberal arts college affiliated with the Methodist Church. The college moved to the growing city of Durham in 1892 when Washington Duke provided financial assistance and another local businessman, Julian S. Carr, donated land. In December 1924, the trustees graciously accepted the provisions of James B. Duke's indenture creating the family philanthropic foundation, The Duke Endowment, which provided for the expansion of Trinity College into Duke University.

As a result of the Duke gift, Trinity underwent both academic and physical expansion. The original Durham campus became known as East Campus when it was rebuilt in stately Georgian architecture. West Campus, Gothic in style and dominated by the soaring tower of the Duke Chapel, opened in 1930.

In 1972, the men’s and women’s colleges merged into the Trinity College of Arts & Sciences. Academic expansion of the university throughout its history has also included the establishment of graduate and professional schools. Duke now is composed of ten schools, including The Graduate School, Duke Divinity School, the School of Medicine, the School of Nursing, the School of Law, the Pratt School of Engineering, The Fuqua School of Business, the Nicholas School of the Environment, and the Sanford School of Public Policy, along with international outposts, including one in Kunshan, China.

Today, Duke embraces a diverse community of learners, including approximately 6,500 undergraduates and 8,400 graduate and professional students from a multiplicity of backgrounds. History of the Divinity School

When James B. Duke established the trust fund for educational and charitable purposes in 1924 that allowed the expansion of Trinity College into Duke University, the reason for the trust was clear: "I have selected Duke University as one of the principal objects of this trust because I recognize that education, when conducted along sane and practical, as opposed to dogmatic and theoretical lines, is, next to religion, the greatest civilizing influence...And I advise that the courses at this institution be arranged, first, with special reference to the training of preachers, teachers, lawyers, and physicians, because these are most in the public eye, and by precept and example can do most to uplift mankind."

The School of Religion began its work in the academic year 1926-27, and formal exercises for its opening were held on November 9, 1926. In 1940 the name was changed to Duke Divinity School. During its history, the Divinity School has had outstanding teachers, scholars, and administrative leaders. Since the founding of the school in 1926, the following persons have served as deans or acting deans: Edmund Davison Soper, 1926-28; Elbert Russell, 1928-41; Paul Neff Garber, 1941-44; Harvie Branscomb, 1944-46; Gilbert T. Rowe, acting dean of the faculty, 1946-47; Paul E. Root (elected in 1947, but died before assuming office); Harold A. Bosley, 1947-50; James Cannon III, acting dean 1950-51, dean 1951-58; Robert Earl Cushman, 1958-71; Thomas A. Langford, 1971-81; Jameson Jones, 1981-82; Dennis M. Campbell, 1982-1997; L. Gregory Jones, 1997-2010; Richard B. Hays, 2010-2015; and Ellen F. Davis, interim dean, 2015-2016. Elaine A. Heath was appointed to serve as dean in March 2016, and her term begins on July 1, 2016.

The school's graduates have distinguished themselves by making significant contributions to the church, the academy, and the world.

The Role of the Divinity School

Duke Divinity School represents theological inquiry and learning within the greater university. By history and indenture, it stands within the Christian tradition, mindful of its distinctive lineage in and its continuing obligation to the United Methodist Church. Duke Divinity School, although United Methodist in tradition, receives students from many Christian denominations and offers its educational resources to representatives of the several communions.
who seek an education for church-related ministry. From its inception, it has been ecumenical in aspiration, teaching, and practice, as well as in its faculty. Educational policy has consistently aspired to foster a Christian understanding “truly catholic, truly evangelical, and truly reformed.”

The principal purpose of Duke Divinity School is professional education for the ministry, which in today’s world is manifested in a variety of forms. Although the conventional and inherited styles of ministry are now undergoing change, the Divinity School curriculum continues to prepare students for informed and discriminating exercise of the church’s historic offices through the ministry of word, sacrament, order, service, pastoral care, and teaching. Duke Divinity School believes these offices will remain, although the form and context of the local church may change.

With this in mind, the Divinity School tries to prepare students for the mature performance of their vocation. It hopes to develop in each graduate a disciplined intelligence, informed by sound learning and equipped for worthy professional service. Its resources are offered to students with a diversity of ministerial aims, although the school seeks, by recruitment and financial support, to prepare persons for ordination or lay professional vocations in the church. In all its endeavors, Duke Divinity School aims to serve Jesus Christ through service to the church and the world.

The Relation of the Divinity School to Duke University

Duke Divinity School is an integral part of the university and shares fully in its activities, privileges, and responsibilities. The Sunday services in the university chapel give Divinity School students each year an opportunity to hear several of the country’s leading preachers. The university libraries make a rich collection of books and other materials easily accessible. Without additional fees, selected courses in the graduate and professional schools are open to Divinity School students, as well as the general cultural and recreational resources of the university. The academic work of the Divinity School presently embraces seven degree programs: the master of arts in Christian studies (MACS), ordinarily a one-year degree designed to introduce students to theological reflection; the master of arts in Christian practice (MACP), ordinarily a two-year degree designed to introduce students to theological reflection; the master of theological studies (MTS), ordinarily of two academic years; the master of divinity degree (MDiv), ordinarily of three academic years; the master of theology (ThM), a one-year program beyond the basic degree; a doctor of ministry (DMin), a professional doctorate; and a doctor of theology (ThD), ordinarily a four- or five-year doctoral program.

Mission Statement of the Divinity School

Duke Divinity School’s mission is to engage in spiritually disciplined and academically rigorous education in service and witness to the Triune God in the midst of the church, the academy, and the world. The Divinity School strives to cultivate a vibrant community through theological education on scripture, engagement with the living Christian tradition, and attention to and reflection on contemporary contexts in order to form leaders for faithful Christian ministries.

Divinity School Library

The Divinity School Library contains a collection of more than 400,000 volumes in the fields of religion and related disciplines, and affords a wealth of material for the seminary student. An integral part of the university’s library system, which possesses more than 6,500,000 volumes, the Divinity School Library occupies facilities within the Divinity School building. The library currently subscribes to more than 700 religious periodicals, offers study facilities for students in its reading rooms, and houses a reference collection in religion. Although some of the library’s collection is stored off-site, the majority of the collection can still be browsed within the library’s open stacks. A newly renovated doctoral suite, seminar room, and reference room opened in 2015.

Staffed by the library director, digitization and technology librarian, an archivist/historian, a two-member public services staff, and by a number of student assistants, the Divinity School Library offers a variety of services to assist students in selecting and locating information. The book, electronic, microform, and periodical collections are carefully chosen to support basic coursework as well as advanced research in all major fields of theology and religious studies. The library hosts original digital collections, including the Religion in North Carolina Collection, the American Methodism collection, and an extensive collection of digital documents relating to the history of Duke Divinity School at http://divinityarchive.com. It also works collaboratively with the World Methodist Museum, the Charles Wesley Society, the Wesleyan Theological Society, and several local churches to make digital content available to researchers and the larger public through the cross-searchable Divinity Archive site.
The Divinity School Library offers a wide variety of computerized resources, including an online catalog, more than one hundred databases available through the web, and a growing collection of electronic books. The library’s website, http://library.divinity.duke.edu, contains information about services and electronic resources, links to websites in religion, and online forms for interlibrary loan, reference questions, and more. The library also provides power, printing, and network connections for laptop computer use, book/chapter scanning, and offers wireless connectivity to the Internet throughout the library.

Seminary students may also use the resources and facilities of all other Duke libraries, including extensive electronic resources, public documents, maps, periodicals, newspapers, microforms, and special collections (within which are one hundred prized ancient Greek manuscripts). Students may arrange to borrow in person from the other libraries of the Triangle Research Library Network (North Carolina Central University, North Carolina State University, and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill) and may present their Duke IDs to use the theological library at Shaw University. In-person borrowing for Duke students is also available through the “Ivy Plus” consortium, which includes the University of Chicago and Yale University.

Center for Studies in the Wesleyan Tradition

Founded in 1979, the Center for Studies in the Wesleyan Tradition has come to stand at the heart of the mission of Duke Divinity School. Four intertwined purposes constitute the work of the center:

• staffing, supervising, and enriching the curricular and extracurricular offerings in Methodist and Wesleyan Studies;
• developing and supporting significant educational outreach programs designed for the center’s United Methodist constituencies and beyond;
• developing and providing access to outstanding research resources for students and scholars of the broad Wesleyan tradition around the globe; and
• supporting the production of critical editions of the texts of John and Charles Wesley in print and online formats.

For more details on the center’s work and access to its online resources, visit http://www.divinity.duke.edu/initiatives-centers/cswt/.

The Center for Theological Writing

The Center for Theological Writing was established in 2001 to promote writing as a central practice of the academy and the church. The center seeks to strengthen all types of theological writing, whether for exegetical, interpretative, or argumentative purposes, for preaching and pastoral needs, or for general communication both at the seminary level and throughout the church and its ministry.

Writing Assessment

Students entering master’s level programs at the Divinity School are required to complete a writing assessment at the start of their first semester. This assessment is evaluated by the center’s instructors, who then meet with each student for half an hour to provide feedback on the student’s strengths and weaknesses as a writer.

Tutoring and Resources

All students are encouraged to make use of the center. Tutors are available throughout the week (see website for current hours and sign-up instructions) and are able to work with students at all levels of proficiency and at all stages of the writing process. The center also provides a number of workshops focusing on the basics of academic and theological writing, as well as additional presentations on a variety of topics pertaining to writing and religion.

The center is located at the lower level of the Westbrook Building in Rooms 0021 and 0037. For more information or numerous web-based resources, visit the center’s website at http://www.divinity.duke.edu/initiatives-centers/center-theological-writing.

Academic Freedom

Freedom of inquiry and the free exchange of ideas are essential for the fulfillment of the university’s mission. Academic freedom is a right and responsibility of students as well as faculty. Students who believe that their academic freedom has been abridged should submit a written complaint to their academic dean. The dean may enlist the faculty in establishing the merits of extent of the complaint by appointing a disinterested two-person subcommittee of the Faculty Hearing Committee to provide advice. Cases not resolved by the dean may be brought to the attention of the provost. Students may also seek advice of the student ombuds in resolving a complaint.

The Importance of Diversity at Duke Divinity School

Duke Divinity School seeks to build a diverse and inclusive community consistent with the scriptural vision that: “There is no longer Jew or Greek, there is no longer slave or free, there is no longer male and female: for all of you are one in Christ Jesus” (Galatians 3:28). It is in this light that, as part of its mission to prepare leaders for the church, the academy, and the world, the Divinity School is committed to the importance of diversity. At a practical level, the Divinity School recognizes the need to prepare students for ministry, teaching, and leadership in multi-cultural and multi-faith contexts, whether in the United States or elsewhere. To do this well, the Divinity School community must seek to wrestle with and embody diversity in its faculty, staff, and student body. Given the historical legacies, social locations, and confessional commitments of the Divinity School, diversity in this context is particularly focused on gender, race, ethnicity, socioeconomic background, denominational affiliation, age, sexual orientation, learning styles, and physical ability. Encountering and learning alongside others not like us offers opportunities for members of the Divinity community to deepen their understanding of themselves, society, and their roles as pastors, ministers, teachers, and leaders. Attention to and inclusion of diversity helps foster more faithful, hopeful, and loving forms of common life.

Furthermore, a diverse faculty, staff, and student body helps generate an environment for deeper and broader theological reflection and formation. The Divinity School believes that students who have the opportunity to interact with many varied perspectives and backgrounds will be better prepared to address fruitfully the historical legacies of injustice and conflict where they serve; critically and sensitively engage the different cultural contexts they will encounter in their vocations after graduation; and be able to develop robust theological and pastoral responses to an ever-changing environment. A diverse and hospitable community opens up more opportunities for potentially transformational experiences that assist students in developing the skills necessary to serve a multi-cultural, multi-ethnic, multi-racial, multi-faith world with integrity and wisdom.

As part of its mission, Duke Divinity School seeks to foster a cohesive theological vision that is neither narrow nor homogeneous—one that is deeply rooted in critical engagement with scripture and honors a range of theological traditions in conversation with a plurality of historical, geographic, and social settings.
The faculty of Duke Divinity School, regarded as one of the world's strongest theological faculties, is committed to excellence in teaching, research, publication, and service to the church, the university, and the wider community. The Duke faculty is particularly well-known for its strong commitment to the church and its ministry. It includes persons who come from all over the United States and the world. Virtually all major Christian traditions are represented, and identity with specific communities within the Christian tradition is taken seriously by faculty members. Because of its distinguished faculty, Duke Divinity School is an international center for research and publication in the theological disciplines and for reflection on the practice of ministry.

Faculty Biographical Information

Faculty biographical information in this bulletin is subject to change. Readers may obtain more up-to-date information, as well as CVs and contact information, by consulting the individual faculty information pages on the Duke Divinity School website at http://www.divinity.duke.edu/academics/faculty.

Esther E. Acolatse, Assistant Professor of the Practice of Pastoral Theology & World Christianity. BA (Hons.), (University of Ghana); MTS (Harvard Divinity School); PhD, (Princeton Theological Seminary).

Professor Acolatse's teaching and research cover four main areas: the intersection of psychology and Christian thought, with a particular interest in the gendered body and Christian experience; methodological and hermeneutical issues in the practice of Christian life and the reception of Christian theology, both historical and systematic; the relevance of these themes in the global expression of Christianity; and the search for a common language for the expression and articulation of World Christianity.

Her book, For Freedom or Bondage: A Critique of African Pastoral Practices (Eerdmans 2014), explores the pitfalls of overvaluing the spiritual world and the language of principalities and powers in biblical interpretation and pastoral practice, themes that have been central to the global expansion of Pentecostal and charismatic Christianity.

Her next book project continues a much needed conversation between African and Western theological interpretations of other aspects of these themes, and presses the argument that the Christian South and its Western counterpart must both attend to the ways in which their respective world views fall short of a thorough biblical realism. It draws on the African theological and cultural context in ways that move beyond certain idealized accounts of African Christianity toward more realistic contributions that African Christianity can make to the global experience and expression of Christianity.

Prior to teaching at Duke, Professor Acolatse taught theology at Loyola College in Maryland. She is a member of the Presbyterian Church USA.

Raymond Barfield, Associate Professor of Pediatrics and Christian Philosophy. BA (Rhodes College); MD (Emory University); PhD (Emory University).

Dr. Barfield is a pediatric oncologist with an interest in the intersection of medicine, philosophy, and theology. His medical research focuses on immune therapies for childhood cancer (including bone marrow transplantation and antibody therapy) and improvement of the quality of life for children with severe or fatal diseases. Dr. Barfield worked for eight years in oncology and bone marrow transplantation at St. Jude Children’s Research Hospital in Memphis, Tennessee. His work in philosophy focuses on ethics and the history of the impact of literature on philosophical thought. He is the author of dozens of publications in a range of genres including poetry, philosophy, and medicine. He is the author of The Ancient Quarrel Between Poetry and Philosophy (Cambridge University Press, 2014) and most recently The Book of Colors: A Novel (Unbridled Books, 2015). In the Divinity School, Dr. Barfield interacts with students and faculty members bridging medicine, philosophy, and theology. As director of pediatric palliative care for Duke, he works closely with Duke Divinity School advancing interdisciplinary research, teaching, and service by drawing on the strengths of both Duke University Medical School and the Divinity School.

Jeremy Begbie, Thomas A. Langford Research Professor of Theology and Director of Duke Initiatives in Theology and the Arts. BA (University of Edinburgh); BD (University of Aberdeen); PhD (University of Aberdeen); ARCM (Royal College of Music); LRAM (Royal Academy of Music); FRSCM (Royal School of Church Music).
Dr. Begbie teaches systematic theology, and specializes in the interface between theology and the arts. His particular research interests are in the interplay between music and theology. Previously Associate Principal of Ridley Hall, Cambridge, he has also been honorary professor at the University of St. Andrews, where he directed the research project, Theology Through the Arts at the Institute for Theology, Imagination and the Arts. He is a senior member of Wolfson College, Cambridge and an affiliated lecturer in the faculty of music at the University of Cambridge. Professor Begbie studied music and philosophy at Edinburgh University, and theology at Aberdeen and Cambridge. A professionally trained musician, he has performed extensively as a pianist, oboist, and conductor. He is an ordained minister of the Church of England, having served for a number of years as assistant pastor of a church in West London. He coedited Resonant Witness: Conversations between Music and Theology (Eerdmans) with Steven Guthrie, and is the author of a number of books, including Voicing Creation’s Praise: Towards a Theology of the Arts (T & T Clark); Theology, Music and Time (CUP); Resounding Truth: Christian Wisdom in the World of Music (Baker/SPCK), which won The Christianity Today 2008 Book Award in the Theology/Ethics Category; and Music, Modernity, and God (OUP). Dr. Begbie has taught widely in the United Kingdom and North America, and has delivered multimedia performances across the world, from Israel to Australia and Hong Kong.

Kate Bowler, Assistant Professor of the History of Christianity in the United States. BA (Macalester College); MA (Yale Divinity School); PhD (Duke University).

Luke Bretherton, Professor of Theological Ethics and Senior Fellow, Kenan Institute for Ethics. BA Hons/MA in History (Cambridge); PhD in Moral Theology and Philosophy (University of London).

Professor Bretherton’s primary areas of research, supervision, and teaching are Christian ethics/moral theology, the intellectual and social histories of Christian political thought, political theology, the relationship between Christianity, capitalism and democracy, missiology and practices of social, political, and economic transformation. Before joining the Duke faculty, he was Reader in Theology & Politics and Convener of the Faith & Public Policy Forum at King’s College London. He has worked with a variety of faith-based NGOs, mission agencies and churches around the world, particularly in Central and Eastern Europe. His first book, Hospitality as Holiness: Christian Witness Amid Moral Diversity (Ashgate, 2006) explores the theological responses to moral pluralism in critical dialogue with Alasdair MacIntyre’s moral philosophy. It develops a constructive, theological response to the issues identified via the motif of “hospitality” and uses euthanasia and the hospice movement as a case study through which to examine the implications of this response. Previous work has focused on faith-based organizations, the church’s involvement in social welfare provision, community organizing, the treatment of refugees, and fair trade. This was drawn together in Christianity & Contemporary Politics: The Conditions and Possibilities of Faithful Witness (Wiley-Blackwell, 2010), winner of the 2013 Michael Ramsey Prize for Theological Writing. His more recent research focused on the intersections between Christianity, radical democracy, globalization, responses to poverty, and patterns of inter-faith relations. Developed out of a four-year ethnographic study of community organizing initiatives around the world, this research is published in Resurrecting Democracy: Faith, Citizenship and the Politics of a Common Life (Cambridge University Press, 2015). The book addresses debates about the relationship between democratic citizenship, religious beliefs and practices, and the power of money. As well as academic articles published in journals such as Modern Theology, Journal of the American Academy of Religion, and Studies in Christian Ethics, he has written in the media (including The Guardian, The Times, ABC Religion and Ethics, and The Huffington Post) on topics related to faith and politics.

Charles Campbell, Professor of Homiletics. PhD (Duke University); STM (Yale University); DMin (Union Theological Seminary); BA (Hendrix College).

Dr. Campbell’s work focuses on the biblical, theological, and ethical dimensions of preaching. He is interested in the Christological and apocalyptic aspects of preaching, the role of preaching in relation to the “principalities and powers,” and contemporary homiletical theory. He is currently writing a theological commentary on First Corinthians. His publications include “Preaching Fools: The Gospel as a Rhetoric of Folly,” coauthor (2012); “The Word Before the Powers: An Ethic of Preaching” (2002); “The Word on the Street: Performing the Scriptures in the Urban Context,” coauthor (2000); and “Preaching Jesus: New Directions for Homiletics in Hans Frei’s Postliberal Theology” (1997).
Douglas A. Campbell, Professor of New Testament. BA (Hons) (University of Otago); MA, PhD (University of Toronto).

Dr. Campbell’s main research interests are the life and thought (i.e. theology) of Paul with particular reference to soteriological models rooted in apocalyptic as against justification or salvation-history. However, he is interested in contributions to Pauline analysis from modern literary theory, modern theology (whether Protestant, Catholic, or Orthodox), epistolary theory, ancient rhetoric, ancient comparative religion and history, modern linguistics and semantic theory, chronology, and modern sociology. His publications include The Rhetoric of Righteousness in Romans 3:21–26, The Quest for Paul’s Gospel: A Suggested Strategy, The Deliverance of God: An Apocalyptic Rereading of Justification in Paul, and Framing Paul: An Epistolary Biography. He edited The Call to Serve: Biblical and Theological Perspectives on Ministry in Honour of Bishop Penny Jamieson and Gospel and Gender: a Trinitarian Engagement with Being Male and Female in Christ.

J. Kameron Carter, Associate Professor of Theology and Black Church Studies. BA (Temple University); ThM (Dallas Theological Seminary); PhD (University of Virginia).

Professor Carter teaches courses in theology and black church studies. His academic interests range from systematic and doctrinal theology (particularly creation, anthropology, and Christology) to black diaspora studies, philosophy, and literature. He has published Race: A Theological Account (New York: Oxford University Press, 2008) and is near completion of a book on political theology and blackness. Dr. Carter was named a Henry Luce III Fellow in Theology for 2015-16. He is an ordained Baptist minister.

Stephen B. Chapman, Associate Professor of Old Testament. BA, MDiv, MPhil, PhD (Yale University).

A proponent of theological interpretation, Professor Chapman has studied, lectured, and taught internationally in a variety of academic and church settings. His work focuses on the formation of the biblical canon, the nature of the Old Testament as scripture, the dynamics of biblical narrative, the challenge of biblical violence, and the history and use of the Old Testament within the Christian tradition and Western culture. He is the author of 1 Samuel as Christian Scripture (2016) and The Law and the Prophets (2000), as well as numerous essays. He coedited The Cambridge Companion to the Hebrew Bible/Old Testament (2016) and Biblischer Text und theologische Theorienbildung (2001). He is an affiliate faculty member with Duke University’s Center for Jewish Studies and director of Graduate Studies for Duke’s PhD program in religion. He serves on the editorial boards of the Journal of Theological Interpretation and the monograph series Siphrut: Literature and Theology of the Hebrew Scriptures (Eisenbrauns). He is also an ordained American Baptist minister. His current project is a book on The Theology of Joshua for Cambridge University Press.

Mark Chaves, Professor of Sociology, Religious Studies, and Divinity. BA (Dartmouth College); MDiv (Harvard Divinity School); PhD (Harvard University).

Christena S. Cleveland, Associate Professor of the Practice of Reconciliation. BA (Dartmouth College); PhD (University of California, Santa Barbara).

Professor Cleveland joined the faculty in 2015. A social psychologist and reconciliation scholar-practitioner, she writes and lectures widely on the theology and practice of reconciliation.

Cleveland’s scholarly work includes integrating social psychological perspectives on intergroup and intercultural processes with current reconciliation dilemmas within the Christian church and the broader society. Her research examines how culture influences theological/ideological approaches to peacemaking and reconciliation; how social processes, such as identity and self-esteem, impede a group’s ability to reconcile with culturally-different groups; and how individual factors (e.g., professed theologies/ideologies) interact with social factors (e.g., the status of one’s social group) to allow certain individuals or groups to dominate others.

Cleveland has published her work in scholarly journals—such as Small Group Research for which she received a 2011 Best Article award—as well as magazines—such as Christianity Today, which named her as one of 33 millennials leading the next generation of Christian faith.
In her book, Disunity in Christ: Uncovering the Hidden Forces that Keep Us Apart (Intervarsity Press, 2013), she examines and offers research-based strategies to overcome the nonconscious cognitive, emotional, and identity processes that pull Christians into homogeneous groups, fuel inaccurate perceptions of culturally-different others, contribute to an “Us vs. Them” mentality, stimulate intergroup prejudice and hostility, and ultimately inhibit reconciliation. The book received the 2013 Leadership Journal Book Award. Cleveland is currently researching and writing The Priesthood of the Privileged, which investigates power and inequality in the church, and proposes methods for addressing and reducing this inequality as a pathway to reconciliation.

A fifth generation minister, Cleveland comes from a long tradition of leadership in the Church of God in Christ denomination, ranging from bishops to pastors to laypeople. She currently ministers in various ecumenical settings.

Edgardo Antonio Colón-Emeric, Assistant Professor of Christian Theology. BS (Cornell University); MS (University of Vermont); MDiv and PhD (Duke University).

Colón-Emeric is originally from Puerto Rico. His research engages the thought of figures like Thomas Aquinas, John Wesley, and Bartolomé de las Casas with the intent of achieving mestizaje of classical theology, Methodist experience, and Latino history. Colón-Emeric is an ordained elder in the North Carolina Conference; he was founding pastor of Cristo Vive United Methodist Church and continues to serve in Hispanic Ministries in Methodist churches in North Carolina.

Jeffrey A. Conklin-Miller, E. Stanley Jones Assistant Professor of the Practice of Evangelism and Christian Formation, the Royce and Jane Reynolds Teaching Fellow, Associate Dean for Academic Programs, and Director of the Master of Arts in Christian Practice Program. BA (University of California, Riverside); MDiv (Garrett-Evangelical Theological Seminary); ThD (Duke University Divinity School).

Professor Conklin-Miller teaches courses in evangelism, mission, Christian formation, and ministry in the Wesleyan/Methodist tradition. His research considers the theological relationship of the church and the world, the connections between ecclesial practices of formation and faithful witness, and ecclesiology inside the Fresh Expressions movement. He has contributed to The Wesleyan Theological Journal, The Dictionary of Scripture and Ethics, and Generation Rising: A Future with Hope for the United Methodist Church. Professor Conklin-Miller is an ordained elder in the California-Pacific Annual Conference of the United Methodist Church and has more than a decade of experience serving congregations in Southern California.

Valerie C. Cooper, Associate Professor of Black Church Studies. BS (Howard University); M.Div. (Howard University School of Divinity); ThD (Harvard Divinity School).

Professor Cooper, the first African American woman to earn tenure at Duke Divinity School, joined the faculty in 2014. Using historical and theological methodologies, her wide-ranging scholarship examines issues of religion, race, politics, and popular culture. She has published essays on African American evangelicals (particularly in Pentecostalism and the Holiness Movement), on African Americans’ use of the Bible, and with political scientist Corwin Smidt, co-authored an essay on the roles of religion and race in the 2008 election of President Barack Obama. Her article on “Black Theology” is forthcoming in the Oxford Handbook of Political Theology. Her book, Word, Like Fire: Maria Stewart, the Bible, and the Rights of African Americans, (The University of Virginia Press, 2012), analyzes the role of biblical hermeneutics in the thought of Maria Stewart, a pioneering 19th-century African American woman theologian and political speaker.

Cooper is working on Segregated Sundays, a book evaluating the successes and failures of the racial reconciliation efforts of Christian congregations and ministries from the 1990s to the present. In addition to examining why such efforts frequently fall short of their stated goals, she also hopes to propose methods for achieving meaningful cross-racial relationships in America’s still very segregated churches and religious organizations. In this research, she is particularly interested in recovering and recording the stories of ordinary men and women of faith.

Farr A. Curlin, Josiah C. Trent Professor of Medical Humanities. BA and MD (University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill).

Dr. Curlin is a palliative medicine physician who joined Duke University in January 2014. He holds joint appointments in the School of Medicine, including its Trent Center for Bioethics, Humanities & History of Medicine, and in Duke Divinity School, where he is codirector of its Theology, Medicine, and Culture (TMC) initiative. He works with Duke colleagues to foster scholarship, study, and training regarding the intersections of medicine, ethics, and religion. After graduating from medical school, he completed internal medicine residency training and fellowships in both health services research and clinical ethics at the University of Chicago before joining its faculty in 2003. Dr. Curlin’s empirical research charts the influence of physicians’ moral traditions and commitments, both religious and secular, on physicians' clinical practices. As an ethicist, he addresses questions regarding whether and in what ways physicians' religious commitments ought to shape their clinical practices in a plural democracy. Dr. Curlin and colleagues have authored numerous manuscripts published in medicine and bioethics literature, including a New England Journal of Medicine paper titled "Religion, Conscience and Controversial Clinical Practices." He is particularly concerned with the moral and spiritual dimensions of medical practice and the doctor-patient relationship, and with the moral and professional formation of physicians. His areas of expertise are medicine, medical ethics, doctor-patient relationship, religion and medicine, and conscience. At the University of Chicago, Dr. Curlin founded and was codirector of the Program on Medicine and Religion.

Ellen Davis, Interim Dean of the Divinity School (2015-2016) and Amos Ragan Kearns Distinguished Professor of Bible and Practical Theology. AB (University of California, Berkeley); Cert Theo (Oxford); MDiv (Church Divinity School of the Pacific); PhD (Yale).

Professor Davis is interested in theological interpretation of the Old Testament, with particular concern for exegesis as it is useful for Christian ministry, including preaching, developing a biblically based response to the ecological crisis, and advancing theological dialogue among the Abrahamic faiths. She is the author of Swallowing the Scroll: Textuality and the Dynamics of Discourse in Ezekiel's Prophecy; Imagination Shaped: Old Testament Preaching in the Anglican Tradition; Proverbs, Ecclesiastes, and the Song of Songs; Getting Involved with God: Rediscovering the Old Testament; Who Are You, My Daughter? Reading Ruth through Image and Text; and coeditor (with Richard Hays) of The Art of Reading Scripture. Her forthcoming book is titled Preaching the Luminous Word (Eerdmans, 2016). A lay Episcopalian, she is active as a theological consultant within the Anglican Communion and especially in developing theological education in Southern Sudan. Her previous teaching appointments were at Union Theological Seminary (New York City), Yale Divinity School, and Virginia Theological Seminary.

Craig Dykstra, Research Professor of Practical Theology and Senior Fellow at Leadership Education. BA (University of Michigan); MDiv (Princeton Theological Seminary); PhD (Princeton Theological Seminary).

Professor Dykstra is an ordained minister in the Presbyterian Church (USA). Before coming to Duke he was senior vice president for religion at Lilly Endowment, where he had served since 1989, and was professor of Christian education at both Princeton Theological Seminary and Louisville Presbyterian Seminary. Dykstra's most recent scholarly work has focused on pastoral and ecclesial imagination as well as Christian practices as key concepts for thinking about what it means to live the Christian life, to organize the discipline of practical theology, and to re-envision the work of pastoral ministry and leadership. He is coeditor with Dorothy Bass of For Life Abundant: Practical Theology, Theological Education, and Christian Ministry (Eerdmans, 2008). His book Growing in the Life of Faith: Education and Christian Practices (Westminster/John Knox Press, 1999) was published in a second edition in 2005. He also collaborated with Bass in the creation of Practicing Our Faith: A Way of Life for a Searching People (Jossey-Bass, 1997; second edition, 2010). His work at Duke focuses on helping a wide range of Christian institutions work creatively and effectively in their ministries and missions. He leads the "Convocation of Christian Leaders" program at Leadership Education at Duke Divinity and teaches the introductory doctoral seminar that all entering ThD students take each fall.

Susan G. Eastman, Associate Research Professor of New Testament. BA (Pomona College); MDiv (Yale Divinity School); PhD (Duke University).

Professor Eastman's scholarly focus is on the New Testament, particularly Paul's letters, in relationship to the formation of Christian identity through the life of the church. She teaches courses in both New Testament and Christian education. Her first book, Recovering Paul's Mother Tongue: Language and Theology in Galatians (Eerdmans, 2007), explores Paul's use of relational imagery to proclaim the gospel's power to transform and sustain Christian communities over time. She contributed the commentary on Galatians for the New Interpreters One Volume Bible Commentary, and has published numerous articles on the topics of Paul and Israel, and Paul's idea of participation in Christ. Her current research explores the intersection of Paul's letters with contemporary work in neuroscience, psychology, and philosophy on the topic of human identity. Professor Eastman is ordained in the Episcopal Church, in which she served parishes from 1982-97.
Frederick P. Edie, Associate Professor of the Practice of Christian Education and Director of the Duke Youth Academy for Christian Formation. BA (Furman University); MDiv (Vanderbilt Divinity School); PhD (Emory University).

Dr. Edie's research interests lie at the intersection of theology, social and biological sciences, and religious education. He is especially interested in the interplay between “heart,” “body,” and “mind” in the dynamics of Christian formation. His research and writings explore these themes in the context of the liturgical life of the church. Edie is also interested in the problem of forming Christians for faithful witness in a world that seeks to domesticate them. His most recent book is titled Book, Bath, Table, and Time: Christian Worship as Source and Resource for Youth Ministry. In it he advocates for immersion in renewed congregational worship as a means for youth to experience the presence of God, to better grasp the identity of God, and to practice faithful vocations before God and for the world. The book grows out of his work with Duke's Youth Academy for Christian Formation. His current project seeks to tie together themes of work, worship, and sustainable world in the lives of the young. Edie is an ordained elder in the United Methodist Church, a member of the South Georgian Annual Conference, and has also served parishes in Nashville, Tennessee and San Diego, California.

Curtis W. Freeman, Research Professor of Theology and Baptist Studies and Director of the Baptist House of Studies. BA, PhD (Baylor University); MDiv (Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary).

Professor Freeman teaches historical theology. His dissertation and earlier research was on Augustine of Hippo, but more recently his work has explored areas of free church theology. His two edited books, Ties That Bind (Smyth and Helwys), and Baptist Roots (Judson Press), and numerous articles seek to describe the development of a distinctly Baptist theological tradition. His most recent books are A Company of Women Preachers: Baptist Prophetesses in Seventeenth-Century England (Baylor University Press) and Contesting Catholicity: Theology for Other Baptists (Baylor University Press). He is active in the Baptist World Alliance, serving on the Commission on Doctrine and Christian Unity.

Mary McClintock Fulkerson, Professor of Theology. BM (University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill); MDiv (Duke University); PhD (Vanderbilt University).

Professor McClintock Fulkerson’s primary teaching interests are practical theology, feminist theologies, contemporary Protestant theology, and ecclesiology. Her work is published in journals such as Journal of the American Academy of Religion, the Journal of Feminist Studies in Religion, and Modern Theology. Her book Changing the Subject: Women’s Discourses and Feminist Theology examines the liberating practices of feminist academics and nonfeminist church women. McClintock Fulkerson’s ethnographic work led to a book on the ecclesial practices that enable resistance to racism and other contemporary forms of social brokenness. Places of Redemption: Theology for a Worldly Church interprets the doctrine of the church in light of racial diversity and the differently abled. Her book The Oxford Handbook of Feminist Theology is a collection of essays on feminist theology and globalization, which she coedited with Sheila Briggs. She also has coedited a book with Ada Maria Isasi-Diaz and Rosemary Carbine, Theological Perspectives for Life, Liberty, and the Pursuit of Happiness: Public Intellectuals for the Twenty-First Century. Her most recent book is Body Broken, Body Betrayed: Race, Memory, and Eucharist in White-Dominant Churches (Wipf and Stock, Fall 2015), coauthored with the Reverend Marcia Mount Shoop. An ordained minister in the Presbyterian Church (USA), Professor McClintock Fulkerson is a participant in a number of international ecclesiology conferences. She directs the Divinity School’s Gender, Sexuality, Theology, and Ministry Certificate program and sponsors the Divinity Women’s Center. Currently the faculty sponsor of the Divinity School’s Sacred Worth student group and a member of the Duke Center for Sexual and Gender Diversity, she is also involved in the Pauli Murray Project, a community-wide racial reconciliation project organized by Duke’s Human Rights Center.

Paul J. Griffiths, William K. Warren Foundation Professor of Catholic Theology. BA and MPhil (Oxford); PhD (University of Wisconsin-Madison).

Professor Griffiths was born in England in 1955 and lived there until 1980 when he moved to the United States to complete his studies. Since then he has lived mostly in the United States and became a US citizen in 1994. He was received into the Roman Catholic Church in 1996, having previously been Anglican.

He has held academic positions at the University of Notre Dame (1986-1990), the University of Chicago (1984-1986, 1990-2000), and the University of Illinois at Chicago (2000-2007), where he served as the Schmitt Chair of Catholic Studies, and chair of the Department of Classics and Mediterranean Studies.

His main intellectual interests and topics of publication include: post-1950 Catholic philosophical theology; the philosophical and political questions arising from religious diversity; fourth- and fifth-century African Christian thought (especially Augustine); and Gupta-period Indian Buddhist thought (especially Yogacara).
Dr. Griffiths has published ten books as sole author, and seven more as coauthor or editor, as well as many dozens of essays and reviews. His most recent book is Decreation: The End of All Creatures (Baylor University Press, 2014). He is currently at work on two books, one called Catholic Theology: What It Is and How To Do It, and the other called Christian Flesh.

Jennie Grillo, Assistant Professor of Old Testament. MA, MSt, DPhil (Oxford).

Jennie Grillo teaches courses in Old Testament. Her first book, The Story of Israel in the Book of Qohelet: Ecclesiastes as Cultural Memory (Oxford University Press, 2012), won a Manfred Lautenschlaeger Award for Theological Promise. Her current project is a study of the history of interpretation of the Additions to Daniel. Her other interests include wisdom literature, ideas of idolatry in the Old Testament, and the interactions of early Jewish and early Christian biblical interpretation. She received a 2015-16 fellowship from the American Council of Learned Societies and is a member of the Andrew W. Mellon Fellowship of Scholars in Critical Bibliography at Rare Book School, University of Virginia, for 2015-17.

W. Stephen Gunter, Associate Dean for Methodist Studies, Director of the Center for Studies in the Wesleyan Tradition, and Research Professor of Evangelism and Wesleyan Studies. AB, MA (Southern Nazarene University); MDiv (Nazarene Theological Seminary); PhD (University of Leiden, The Netherlands).

Professor Gunter’s specializations relate to the origins and development of Wesleyan theology and how these are embodied in Christian practices, especially the church’s oldest practice of “spreading Good News.” He is an ordained clergy member of the North Georgia Annual Conference, where he served for six years on the Board of Ordained Ministry before coming to Duke. In addition to being past president of the Wesleyan Theological Society and chair of the Wesleyan Studies Group of the American Academy of Religion, Professor Gunter also serves as coordinator for the Professors of Evangelism at the Foundation for Evangelism, which endows thirteen chairs of evangelism at United Methodist and Wesleyan seminaries around the globe. As associate dean, he serves as faculty sponsor for the Methodist House of Studies and Deacons@Duke, student organizations focused on leadership formation in service to the church. In addition, he coordinates international exchanges for divinity students going to and coming from The Netherlands, England, Germany, and Hong Kong. Consonant with this administrative and supervisory work, he is a regular speaker in local churches as well as district and annual conference gatherings on the topics of evangelism and Wesleyan theological identity. In 2000 Professor Gunter was a Fulbright Senior Scholar at the University of Leiden, The Netherlands. His publications include: Limits of Love Divine (1989); Wesley and the Quadrilateral (editor and contributor, 1997); Resurrection Knowledge (1999); John Wesley and The Netherlands (coauthor, 2002); and Considering the Great Commission (coeditor and contributor, 2004). A grant from The Netherlands Society for Scientific Research facilitated the archival research in Holland for his book Arminius and His ‘Declaration of Sentiments’: An Annotated Translation with Theological Notes and Commentary (Baylor University Press, 2012).

Amy Laura Hall, Associate Professor of Christian Ethics. BA (Emory University); MDiv, PhD (Yale University).

Professor Hall was named a Henry Luce III Fellow in Theology for 2004-2005 and has received funding from the Lilly Foundation, the Josiah Trent Memorial Foundation, the American Theological Library Association, the Child in Religion and Ethics Project, the Pew Foundation and, most recently, the Project on Lived Theology.

At Duke University, Professor Hall has served on the Steering Committee of the Genome Ethics, Law, and Policy Center and as a faculty member for the FOCUS program of the Institute on Genome Sciences and Policy. She has served on the Duke University Medical Center’s Institutional Review Board and as an ethics consultant to the VA Center in Durham. She currently serves as a faculty advisor with the Center for Class, Labor, and Social Sustainability and with the Duke Center for Civic Engagement.

Hall served on the Bioethics Task Force of the United Methodist Church, and has spoken to academic and ecclesial groups across the United States and Europe. In 2009-2010, for example, she presented on social-Darwinism at the American Academy for the Advancement of the Sciences, served as a consultant to the World Council of Churches meeting on bioethics in Volos, Greece, presented keynote lectures at the Center for Bioethics and Human Dignity and Point Loma Nazarene, and gave the Phillip Wogaman Lecture at Foundry UMC.

An ordained elder in the United Methodist Church, Hall is a member of the Southwest Texas Annual Conference. She has served both urban and suburban parishes.

Richard B. Hays, George Washington Ivey Professor of New Testament. BA, MDiv (Yale University); PhD (Emory University).

Professor Hays is internationally recognized for his work on the letters of Paul, on the Gospels, and on New Testament ethics. His scholarly work explores the innovative ways in which early Christian writers interpreted Israel’s scripture. His book The Moral Vision of the New Testament was selected by Christianity Today as one of the one hundred most important religious books of the twentieth century. Professor Hays’s most recent book is Echoes of Scripture of the Gospels, a major study of the ways in which the four canonical Evangelists employed Israel’s scriptural texts in their narratives about Jesus. His other books include The Faith of Jesus Christ, Echoes of Scripture in the Letters of Paul, First Corinthians (Interpretation Commentaries), The Letter to the Galatians (New Interpreter’s Bible), The Conversion of the Imagination, The Art of Reading Scripture (with coeditor Ellen Davis), Seeking the Identity of Jesus: A Pilgrimage (with coeditor Beverly Roberts Gaventa), Reading the Bible Intertextually (with coeditors Stefan Alkier and Leroy Huizenga), Revelation and the Politics of Apocalyptic Interpretation (with coeditor Stefan Alkier), and Reading Backwards: Figural Christology and the Fourfold Gospel Witness. His work, widely published in scholarly journals, has been translated into several languages, and he has lectured internationally to academic audiences, including most recently the Hulsean Lectures at Cambridge University. An ordained United Methodist minister, he has preached in settings ranging from rural Oklahoma churches to London’s Westminster Abbey. Professor Hays has served on several editorial boards, including the Journal of Biblical Literature, New Testament Studies, Zeitschrift für Neues Testament, and Beihefte zur Zeitschrift für die neuestantlische Wissenschaft. His academic honors have included the John Wesley Fellowship, the Pew Evangelical Scholars Program grant, the Award of Merit for Biblical Exposition from the Associated Church Press, the Henry Luce III Fellowship in Theology, a visiting fellowship at Clare Hall, Cambridge University, and an honorary doctorate from the Johann Wolfgang Goethe University, Frankfurt, Germany. From 2010 to 2015, he served as dean of Duke Divinity School.

Elaine A. Heath, Dean of the Divinity School and Professor of Missional and Pastoral Theology. BA (Oakland University); MDiv (Ashland Theological Seminary); PhD (Duquesne University).

Professor Heath’s scholarly work integrates systematic, pastoral, and spiritual theology in ways that bridge the gap between the academy, church, and world. Her research interests focus on evangelism and spirituality, evangelism and gender, the new monasticism, and emergence in church and in theological education. Heath is the author of numerous books and monographs, the most recent of which is God Unbound: Wisdom from Galatians for the Anxious Church (2016). She is also the cofounder of the Missional Wisdom Foundation, which provides opportunities for clergy and laity to learn how to live in intentional communities and how to develop missional communities and social enterprise in diverse social contexts. Her other publications include Missional.Monastic.Mainline (coauthored with Larry Duggins, 2014), The Mystic Way of Evangelism (2008), Naked Faith: The Mystical Theology of Phoebe Palmer (2009), Longing for Spring: A New Vision for Wesleyan Communities (coauthored with Scott Kisker, 2010), We Were the Least of These: Reading the Bible with Survivors of Sexual Abuse (2011), and The Gospel According to Twilight: Women, Sex, and God (2011).

Reinhard Hütter, Professor of Christian Theology. ThM (Duke University); Dr. theol. (University of Erlangen); Dr. theol. habil. (University of Erlangen).

Professor Hütter teaches systematic and philosophical theology. In his most recent work he has turned to theological anthropology—the human being created in the image of God—and to the closely related topics of theology and metaphysics, faith and reason, nature and grace, divine and human freedom, sin and redemption, and the life of grace: faith, hope, and love. He has developed a special interest in the theology and philosophy of St. Thomas Aquinas. The author of four scholarly books and numerous articles, reviews, and translations, he has also coedited six books. His most recent books include Reason and the Reasons of Faith (edited with Paul J. Griffiths), Ressourcement Thomism: Sacred Doctrine, the Sacraments, and the Moral Life (edited with Matthew Levering), and Dust Bound for Heaven: Explorations in the Theology of Thomas Aquinas (Eerdmans). He served as the editor of Pro Ecclesia: A Journal of Catholic and Evangelical Theology and presently is coeditor of Nova et Vetera: The English Edition of the International Theological Journal and of the academic book series Faith and Reason: Studies in Catholic Theology and Philosophy. He was awarded the Henry Luce III Fellowship, was a visiting fellow at the Institute for Advanced Studies of Religion of the University of Chicago and a research fellow at the Center of Theological Inquiry at Princeton, and served as visiting professor at the University of Jena, Germany. Professor Hütter was elected for membership in the American Theological Society as well as the Academy of Catholic Theology, and has been made an Ordinary Academician of the Pontifical Academy of Saint Thomas Aquinas. He is a Distinguished Fellow of The St. Paul Center for Biblical Theology, served as the president of the Academy of Catholic Theology for 2010-2011, and held the Randall Chair of Christianity and Culture at Providence College, Providence, Rhode Island, for the academic year 2012-13. He also held the Paluch Chair of Theology at the University of Our Lady of the Lake/Mundelein Seminary, Mundelein, Illinois, for the academic year 2015-16. Professor Hütter is a member of the Roman Catholic Church.

L. Gregory Jones, Ruth W. and A. Morris Williams Jr. Professor of Christian Ministry and Senior Fellow at Leadership Education at Duke Divinity School. BA, MPA (University of Denver); MDiv, PhD (Duke University); LHD (Lycoming College).

Professor Jones is a theologian whose work centers on the nature of forgiveness, the significance of Christian ministry and pastoral leadership, and social innovation and entrepreneurship. Dr. Jones is currently on leave from his faculty position at Duke, now serving as executive vice president and provost at Baylor University. He continues in his role at Leadership Education at Duke Divinity. He has served as Duke’s chief international strategist to advance and coordinate the university’s global engagement. Between 1997 and 2010, Dr. Jones served as the eleventh dean of Duke Divinity School. He is known for teaching that fosters students’ imaginations to explore the implications of theology for everyday life, for research that promotes interdisciplinary conversation among scholars, and for commitment to traditioned innovation in institutional leadership. The author or editor of seventeen books, he has also published more than 200 articles and essays. His most recent book is Christian Social Innovation: Renewing Wesleyan Witness (Abingdon Press, May 2016). He coauthored the book Forgiving As We’ve Been Forgiven with Celestin Musekura and another book with Kevin R. Armstrong, Resurrecting Excellence: Shaping Faithful Christian Ministry. An earlier book, Embodying Forgiveness, was named an Outstanding Book by both Christianity Today and the Academy of Parish Clergy. Dr. Jones coedited, with Stephanie Paulsell, The Scope of Our Art: The Vocation of the Theological Teacher. He has also published Everyday Matters: Intersections of Life and Faith. Dr. Jones is an active contributor to both scholarly and popular publications; his reviews, opinion-editorials, and other articles have appeared in a variety of journals, magazines, and other media, including a regular column for Leadership Education’s Faith & Leadership web magazine. Dr. Jones and his wife, the Reverend Susan Pendleton Jones, have written Adult Bible Studies and two books in the Living the Good Life Together series for the United Methodist Publishing House. He is an ordained elder in the Western North Carolina Conference of the United Methodist Church.

Warren Kinghorn, Associate Professor of Psychiatry and Pastoral and Moral Theology, BS (Furman University); MD (Harvard Medical School); MTS (Duke University Divinity School); ThD (Duke University Divinity School).

Dr. Kinghorn is a psychiatrist whose work centers on the role of religious communities in caring for persons with mental health problems and on ways in which Christians engage practices of modern health care. Jointly appointed within Duke Divinity School and the Department of Psychiatry and Behavioral Sciences of Duke University Medical Center, he is a staff psychiatrist at the Durham VA Medical Center and is heavily involved in clinical teaching and practice. Within the Divinity School, he works closely with students and faculty members interested in exploring the ways in which theology and philosophy might constructively inform Christian engagement with modern medicine and psychiatry. His current research explores the contribution of Thomistic anthropology and virtue theory to contemporary debates within the philosophy of psychiatry and psychiatric diagnosis.

Xi Lian, Professor of World Christianity. BA (Fujian Normal University); MA (Fujian Normal University); DA (State University of New York at Albany).

Professor Lian’s research is focused on China’s modern encounter with Christianity. His first book, The Conversion of Missionaries (1997), is a critical study of American Protestant missions against the backdrop of rising Chinese nationalism in the early twentieth century. His second book, Redeemed by Fire: The Rise of Popular Christianity in Modern China (2010), winner of the 2011 Christianity Today Book Award, examines the development of missionary Christianity into a vibrant, indigenous faith of the Chinese masses. One of his current research projects looks beyond grassroots Christianity and examines the emergence of Protestant elites and their prominent, if also precarious, role in the search for civil society in today’s China.
Randy Maddox, William Kellon Quick Professor of Wesleyan and Methodist Studies. BA (Northwest Nazarene College); MDIV (Nazarene Theological Seminary); PhD (Emory University).

Professor Maddox is a recognized authority on the theology of John and Charles Wesley and theological developments in later Methodism. In addition to numerous articles he is author of Responsible Grace: John Wesley’s Practical Theology, a contributor to Wesley and the Quadrilateral, and editor of Aldersgate Reconsidered, Rethinking Wesley’s Theology for Contemporary Methodism, and The Cambridge Companion to John Wesley. An ordained elder in the Dakotas Conference of the United Methodist Church, Maddox serves currently as the institute secretary of the Oxford Institute of Methodist Theological Studies and general editor of the Wesley Works Editorial Project. He has also served as president of the Wesleyan Theological Society, cochair of the Wesley Studies Group of the American Academy of Religion, and general editor of the Kingswood Books Imprint of Abingdon Press.

Joel Marcus, Professor of New Testament and Christian Origins. BA (New York University); MA, MPhil, and PhD (Columbia University-Union Theological Seminary, New York).

Professor Marcus teaches New Testament with an emphasis on the Gospels and the context of early Christianity in first-century Judaism. His work attempts to fuse historical and theological concerns. His previous books include two monographs on Mark and a two-volume commentary on the same Gospel in the Anchor Bible series (Doubleday, 2000, 2009). His current research focuses on the parting of the ways between ancient Judaism and the Christianity of the first four centuries AD.

David Marshall, Jack and Barbara Bovender Associate Professor of Anglican Episcopal Studies and Ministry, Associate Research Professor of Islamic Studies and Christian-Muslim Relations, and Director of the Anglican Episcopal House of Studies. MA (Oxford University); MA, PhD (Birmingham University).

A priest in the Church of England and a scholar in the field of Islamic Studies, Professor Marshall has served as a parish priest and taught in a variety of settings, including the universities of Edinburgh, Oxford, and Notre Dame in London, as well as in an ecumenical theological school in Kenya. He also served as chaplain to the Archbishop of Canterbury from 2000 to 2005. Before joining the Duke Divinity School faculty in Spring 2013, he worked as a research fellow of the Berkley Center for Religion, Peace, & World Affairs at Georgetown University, serving as the academic director of the Archbishop of Canterbury’s Building Bridges Seminar for Christian and Muslim scholars. He continues to be involved in that project.

G. Sujin Pak, Assistant Professor of the History of Christianity. PhD (Duke University); MTS (Duke Divinity School); BA (Emory University).

Professor Pak specializes in the history of Christianity in late medieval and early modern Europe. Her teaching, research, and writing focus upon the theology of the Protestant reformers, the Protestant Reformation and the Jews, women and the Reformation, and the history of biblical interpretation.

Professor Pak is a United Methodist layperson with active roles as a teacher and lay preacher in the United Methodist Church. Her family heritage includes numerous UMC pastors, missionaries, deacons, and district superintendents. She taught at Garrett-Evangelical Theological Seminary (2003-2008). Professor Pak has a book titled The Judaizing Calvin: Sixteenth-Century Debates over the Messianic Psalms published with Oxford University Press in 2010. Her work is also published in journals such as Church History, Reformation & Renaissance Review; Church History and Religious Culture, and Calvin Theological Journal. Her current research project studies the shifting views of prophecy and uses of Old Testament prophecy in the Reformation era.

Richard Payne, Esther Colliflower Professor of Medicine and Divinity, and John B. Francis Chair, Center for Practical Bioethics, Kansas City, Missouri. BA (Yale University); MD (Harvard Medical School).

Dr. Payne is an internationally known expert in the areas of pain relief, care for those near death, oncology, and neurology. His research interests are in health disparities, pain management, end-of-life decision making, and bioethics. Prior to joining the Duke faculty, he directed the pain and palliative care clinical and research programs at the University of Texas, MD Anderson Cancer Center, and Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center. Dr. Payne has served on numerous panels and advisory committees, many at the national level. He has given expert testimony to the US Congress and the president’s Cancer Panel in the area of healthcare access, disparities in cancer care, pain management, palliative medicine, and end-of-life care. He also has received a Distinguished Service Award from the American Pain Society, (of which he is a past president); the Humanitarian Award from the Urban Resources Institute; the Janssen Excellence in Pain Award; and the John Bonica Award for the Eastern Pain Society. A former chair of the board of directors of the Foundation for Hospices in Sub-Saharan Africa, Dr. Payne has served on the board of directors of the National Hospice and Palliative Care Organization, and the National Coalition of Cancer Survivors. He currently serves on the board of directors of the Hastings Center.
Anathea Portier-Young, Associate Professor of Old Testament. BA (Yale University); MABL (Graduate Theological Union/Jesuit School of Theology at Berkeley); PhD (Duke University).

Luke A. Powery, Associate Professor of the Practice of Homiletics and Dean of Duke Chapel. BA (Stanford University); MDiv (Princeton Theological Seminary); ThD (Emmanuel College, University of Toronto).

Professor Powery’s teaching and research interests are located at the intersection of preaching, worship, pneumatology, performance studies, and culture, particularly expressions of the African diaspora. He has written two books, Spirit Speech: Lament and Celebration in Preaching and Dem Dry Bones: Preaching, Death, and Hope, and is coauthor of a new introductory textbook on preaching, Ways of the Word: Learning to Preach for Your Time and Place. He is also working on two devotional books of meditations on the spirituals for the liturgical seasons of Advent and Lent. Though nurtured in the Holiness-Pentecostal tradition, Powery was ordained by the Progressive National Baptist Convention, and has served in an ecumenical capacity in churches throughout Switzerland, Canada, and the United States. He is a member of the Academy of Homiletics for which he served as secretary, the American Academy of Religion, and the Society for the Study of Black Religion. He served as a member of the executive lectionary team for The African American Lectionary, an online ecumenical project funded by the Lilly Endowment, Inc. and is the recipient of numerous scholastic fellowships and awards from organizations such as the Wabash Center for Teaching and Learning in Theology and Religion and the Fund for Theological Education. In 2008, The African American Pulpit named him as one of “20 to Watch,” an honor given to twenty outstanding black ministers under the age of forty who are helping to shape the future direction of the church. In 2014, he was inducted into the Martin Luther King Jr. Collegium of Scholars at Morehouse College for his ethical and spiritual leadership in the academy, church, and broader society.

Meredith Riedel, Assistant Professor of the History of Christianity. BA (Wellesley College); MDiv (Westminster Theological Seminary); ThM (Princeton Theological Seminary); DPhil (University of Oxford).

Professor Riedel’s research interests include Byzantine Christian history, with expertise in the medieval Middle East and Mediterranean world. Her scholarship focuses on the nexus of war, politics, and religion, and she specializes in the military and diplomatic interactions between Christendom and Islam. She is interested in pre-Reformation, Eastern Christian theology, and particularly in Byzantine biblical exegesis. Her first book, Unexpected Emperor: Leo VI and the Transformation of Byzantine Law, Faith, and Warfare is forthcoming from Cambridge University Press in 2016.

C. Kevin Rowe, Professor of New Testament. BA (Wake Forest University); MDiv (Princeton Theological Seminary); PhD (Duke University).

Professor Rowe’s academic research focuses primarily on the New Testament, both in its historical particularity and in its relation to the later Christian theological tradition. In addition to detailed exegetical studies on New Testament texts, he has published articles on topics ranging from the Imperial cult in the Graeco-Roman world to the doctrine of the Trinity. His first book, Early Narrative Christology: The Lord in the Gospel of Luke, deals with the narrative articulation of the identity of Jesus in the Gospel of Luke. His most recent book, One True Life: The Stoics and Early Christians as Rival Traditions (Yale University Press, 2016), is a cross-disciplinary work of philosophy and biblical studies. Dr. Rowe was a Fulbright Scholar at the University of Heidelberg in 2002-2003 and Regional Scholar for the Society of Biblical Literature in 2006. He is a member of the Presbyterian Church (USA).

Lester Ruth, Research Professor of Christian Worship. BBA (Stephen F. Austin State University); MDiv (Asbury Theological Seminary); ThM (Emory University); MA and PhD (University of Notre Dame).
Professor Ruth’s area of expertise is the history of Christian worship, particularly early Methodism and contemporary worship. His book, A Little Heaven Below: Worship at Early Methodist Quarterly Meetings (Nashville: Kingswood Books, 2000) was awarded the Jesse Lee Prize by the United Methodist General Commission on Archives and History. Dr. Ruth is currently editing a multi-volume set of worship case studies from church history, including his most recent books, Longing for Jesus: Worship at a Black Holiness Church in Mississippi, 1895-1913 and Walking Where Jesus Walked: Worship in Fourth-Century Jerusalem. Other volumes in the series look at Jerusalem in the fourth century, Constantinople in the sixth century, and a forthcoming volume on John Wimber’s Anaheim Vineyard Fellowship around 1980. He also is working on a history of contemporary worship more broadly. He continues his interest in asking theological questions of contemporary worship music, publishing articles on how historic songwriters can serve as models for current writers. Dr. Ruth probes the Trinitarian and Christological dimensions of Christian worship, both contemporary and classic, in order to enrich the life of congregations today. He was a John Wesley Fellow, funded by A Foundation for Theological Education during graduate school, and serves as the president of the Charles Wesley Society.

Beth Sheppard, Director of the Duke Divinity School Library and Associate Professor of the Practice of Theological Bibliography. BA (Albright College); MDiv (Princeton Theological Seminary); MAR (Iliff School of Theology); MLS (Emporia State University); PhD (University of Sheffield).

Professor Sheppard’s research interests include not only library administration and practice, but also the Fourth Gospel. She is particularly intrigued about the everyday life for early Christians. Her dual research agenda is reflected in the diversity of the journals in which her recent articles have appeared including Theological Librarianship and Sapientia Logos. She is author of The Craft of History for the Study of the New Testament (Society of Biblical Literature, 2012). Prior to coming to Duke, Sheppard directed the library and taught New Testament courses at Garrett-Evangelical Theological Seminary. Although a United Methodist layperson, Sheppard has pastored in rural United Methodist congregations and continues to preach and teach in church settings. Her orientation toward service is also present in her work in the academy, where she is a member of the editorial team for the European Studies on Christian Origins series published by Continuum.

J. Warren Smith, Associate Professor of Historical Theology. BA (Emory University); MDiv, STM, PhD (Yale University).

Dr. Smith's area of study is historical theology with a primary focus on patristic theology. His books include Passion and Paradise: Human and Divine Emotions in the Thought of Gregory of Nyssa (Crossroad Pub. 2004), Christian Grace and Pagan Virtue: The Theological Foundation of Ambrose's Ethics (Oxford University Press, 2010), and The Lord's Prayer: Confessing the New Covenant (Cascade Books, 2015). His current monograph project is Ambrose, Augustine, and the Perfection of Virtue, which compares how these early Christians modified the classical language of magnanimity, the pinnacle of virtue, to describe the Christian life. In addition to articles on the Cappadocians, he has written other essays on Cyril of Alexandria’s theory of divine impassibility, martyrdom, Augustine on just war, and Ambrose of Milan’s view of justification. A United Methodist minister in the North Carolina Annual Conference, Dr. Smith also directs the South Sudan Theological Training Initiative that brings together Duke faculty resources to provide theological education for United Methodist pastors in South Sudan.

David Toole, Associate Professor of the Practice of Theology, Ethics, and Global Health. BA (University of Montana); MTS (Duke University); MPH (University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill); PhD (Duke University).

Professor Toole is a senior fellow in the Kenan Institute for Ethics, associate dean for Interdisciplinary Initiatives at Duke Divinity School, and director of Undergraduate Studies for Global Health at Duke University. He teaches courses on health systems, theology, and social science, and various topics in ethics (ethics and humanitarianism, ethics and Native America, and ethics and narrative). He conducts research on the role of mission hospitals in African health systems, is the author of Waiting for Godot in Sarajevo: Theological Reflections on Nihilism, Tragedy, and Apocalypse, and is working on a book titled What Are People For? Questions Concerning What It Means to be Human.

William C. Turner Jr., Associate Professor of the Practice of Homiletics. BS, MDiv, PhD (Duke University).

Professor Turner’s ongoing work focuses on pneumatology and the tradition of spirituality and preaching within the black church. Articles on “Black Evangelicalism,” “The Musicality of Black Preaching,” and “The Black Church and the Ecumenical Tradition” reflect his teaching and writing interests. He taught in the areas of theology and black church studies, and directed the Office of Black Church Affairs prior to his appointment in homiletics.
Professor Turner travels widely as a preacher and lecturer, and is actively involved in local church and community activities. He held positions within Duke University in student affairs and African American studies before joining the Divinity School faculty.

J. Ross Wagner, Associate Professor of New Testament. BA (Michigan State University); MDiv, MA (Trinity Evangelical Divinity School); PhD (Duke University).

Laceye C. Warner, Associate Professor of the Practice of Evangelism and Methodist Studies, and Senior Strategist for United Methodist Collaborations. BA (Trinity University); MDiv (Duke University); PhD (Trinity College, University of Bristol).

Dr. Warner’s research interests in the historical theology of evangelism seek to inform and locate contemporary church practices within the larger Christian narrative. These interests are reflected in the following book projects: Saving Women: Retrieving Evangelistic Theology and Practice (Baylor University Press, 2007) and The Study of Evangelism, coedited with Dr. Paul Chilcote (Eerdmans Publishing Company, 2008). Continuing this theme, Dr. Warner coauthored a book with Bishop Kenneth Carder, Grace to Lead: Practicing Leadership in the Wesleyan Tradition (UM General Board of Higher Education and Ministry, 2010) and participated in the editing of The Wesley Bible. Her latest book project is The Method of Our Mission: United Methodist Polity and Organization (Abingdon Press, 2014). An author of numerous reviews and articles for academic and ecclesial audiences and the recipient of scholarly and ecclesial grants, Dr. Warner’s teaching areas include theology and practice of evangelism, women’s ministry practices, Christian leadership, and Methodist/Wesleyan studies. Dr. Warner is an ordained elder in the Texas Annual Conference of the United Methodist Church. Her work also includes facilitating collaborations related to non-degree lay formation opportunities particularly with United Methodists in the Texas Annual Conference. Before coming to Duke in 2001, she taught at Garrett-Evangelical Theological Seminary at Northwestern University as the E. Stanley Jones Assistant Professor of Evangelism.

William Willimon, Professor of the Practice of Christian Ministry. BA (Wofford College); MDiv (Yale Divinity School); STD (Emory University); and honorary degrees from a number of colleges and universities.

An ordained elder in the United Methodist Church, Professor Willimon served as the dean of Duke Chapel and professor of Christian ministry at Duke University for twenty years. He returned to Duke after serving as the UMC Bishop of the North Alabama Conference from 2004 to 2012. The author of sixty books, his Worship as Pastoral Care was selected as one of the ten most useful books for pastors in 1979 by the Academy of Parish Clergy. Professor Willimon most recently published his second novel, I’m Not from Here: A Parable (Cascade Books, 2015); his first novel was Incorporation (Cascade Books, 2012). He also revised his popular text, Pastor: The Theology and Practice of Ordained Ministry (Abingdon Press, 2016) and authored two new books, Fear of the Other: No Fear in Love (Abingdon Press, May 2016) and How Odd of God: Chosen for the Curious Vocation of Preaching (Westminster John Knox Press, 2015). More than a million copies of his books have been sold. His articles have appeared in many publications including Theology Today, Interpretation, Liturgy, Worship, and Christianity Today. He is editor-at-large for The Christian Century. His Pastor: the Theology and Practice of Ordained Leadership is used in dozens of seminaries in the United States and Asia. He has taught in Germany and in Asia in various seminaries.
Brittany E. Wilson, Assistant Professor of New Testament. BA (University of Texas at Austin); MTS (Duke University Divinity School); PhD (Princeton Theological Seminary).

Professor Wilson is the author of Unmanly Men: Refigurations of Masculinity in Luke-Acts (Oxford University Press, 2015), which won the 2016 Manfred Lautenschlaeger Award for Theological Promise. She is currently working on a book that explores the role of embodiment in the book of Acts, for which she received a sabbatical grant for researchers from the Louisville Institute for the 2016-2017 academic year. Wilson has published in a variety of different venues, including academic journals such as the Journal for the Study of the New Testament, the Journal of Biblical Literature, the Journal of the Bible and Its Reception, and New Testament Studies. Her research focuses on constructions of bodies, gender, and ethnicity in the Gospels and Acts, as well as early Christian accounts of suffering, persecution, and death.

Wilson has been a Regional Scholar for the Society of Biblical Literature and a recipient of the Kenneth Willis Clark Award for the Society of Biblical Literature-Southeast. She serves on the steering committees for the Society of Biblical Literature’s Gospel of Luke and book of Acts section units. She is a United Methodist and a John Wesley Fellow.

Lauren F. Winner, Associate Professor of Christian Spirituality. BA (Columbia University); MPhil (Clare College, Cambridge); MDiv (Duke Divinity School); PhD (Columbia University).

Norman Wirzba, Professor of Theology, Ecology, and Agrarian Studies. BA (University of Lethbridge); MAR (Yale University Divinity School); MA and PhD (Loyola University Chicago).

Requirements and Procedures

Duke Divinity School is a fully accredited member of the Association of Theological Schools (ATS) and is one of thirteen accredited seminaries of the United Methodist Church. It considers candidates for admission to the master of divinity, master of arts in Christian practice, master of theological studies, and master of arts in Christian studies programs who hold a bachelor's degree, or its equivalent, from a college or university approved by a regional accrediting body. It considers candidates for admission to the master of theology program who hold a bachelor's degree, or its equivalent, from a college or university approved by a regional accrediting body and who have or will have been awarded the master of divinity degree, or the equivalent, from an accredited ATS institution. Candidates for admission to the doctor of ministry and the doctor of theology programs must hold a bachelor's degree, or its equivalent, from a college or university approved by a regional accrediting body and a master of divinity, a master of theological studies, or comparable master's degree (e.g. MA in theology, MRE, MCM, etc.) from an accredited ATS institution.

Preseminary Curriculum

The Divinity School follows the guidelines of the Association of Theological Schools with respect to undergraduate preparation for theological study. In general, these guidelines prescribe a strong background in liberal arts, especially the humanities. A well-rounded background in English language and literature, history, philosophy, psychology, religion, social science, and foreign languages is especially desirable.

Statement of Diversity in Admissions

Duke Divinity School seeks to build a diverse and inclusive community consistent with the scriptural vision that: “There is no longer Jew or Greek, there is no longer slave or free, there is no longer male and female: for all of you are one in Christ Jesus” (Galatians 3:28). It is in this light that, as part of its mission to prepare leaders for the church, the academy, and the world, the Divinity School is committed to the importance of diversity. At a practical level, the Divinity School recognizes the need to prepare students for ministry, teaching, and leadership in multi-cultural and multi-faith contexts, whether in the United States or elsewhere. To do this well, the Divinity School community must seek to wrestle with and embody diversity in its faculty, staff, and student body. Given the historical legacies, social locations, and confessional commitments of the Divinity School, diversity in this context is particularly focused on gender, race, ethnicity, socioeconomic background, denominational affiliation, age, sexual orientation, learning styles, and physical ability. Encountering and learning alongside others not like us offers opportunities for members of the Divinity community to deepen their understanding of themselves, society, and their roles as pastors, ministers, teachers, and leaders. Attention to and inclusion of diversity helps foster more faithful, hopeful, and loving forms of common life.

Furthermore, a diverse faculty, staff, and student body helps generate an environment for deeper and broader theological reflection and formation. The Divinity School believes that students who have the opportunity to interact with many varied perspectives and backgrounds will be better prepared to address fruitfully the historical legacies of injustice and conflict where they serve; critically and sensitively engage the different cultural contexts they will encounter in their vocations after graduation; and be able to develop robust theological and pastoral responses to an ever-changing environment. A diverse and hospitable community opens up more opportunities for potentially transformative experiences that assist students in developing the skills necessary to serve a multi-cultural, multi-ethnic, multi-racial, multi-faith world with integrity and wisdom.
As part of its mission, Duke Divinity School seeks to foster a cohesive theological vision that is neither narrow nor homogeneous—one that is deeply rooted in critical engagement with scripture and honors a range of theological traditions in conversation with a plurality of historical, geographic, and social settings.

Application Procedures for Master of Divinity Program (MDiv)

Prospective students are encouraged to apply online at www.divinity.duke.edu/admissions/how-apply. Applications for August enrollment are accepted on a rolling basis. The priority deadline to be considered for merit scholarships is January 15, 2017. The final application deadline is June 1, 2017. There is no January enrollment. Because of the rolling deadline, the Office of Admissions encourages applicants to submit as early as possible for optimal consideration as the class fills quickly.

Online applications and supplemental items must be submitted by 11:59 p.m. EST on the stated deadline date. If the application deadline falls on a weekend, the application and all supplemental items must be received by Admissions by 5 p.m. on the Monday immediately after the deadline date. Offers of admission for the MDiv program will be made on a rolling basis and no later than three weeks after the final application deadline.

A nonrefundable $55 application fee must be submitted after completing the application form in order to upload supplemental items noted above. Online applications require that the $55 fee be paid, by credit card only, at the time of submission.

In addition to the online application form and application fee, the applicant is required to provide the following supplemental items:

• one unofficial transcript from each undergraduate or graduate institution attended in PDF format. Applicants must upload one copy of an unofficial transcript for each institution attended. Acceptable unofficial transcripts include scanned copies of paper transcripts produced by the institution, electronic transcripts from an institution, and web-based academic records available to the student via a student records portal. If an applicant is experiencing difficulties uploading a transcript, he or she should e-mail the transcript to the Office of Admissions at admissions@div.duke.edu and include a placeholder document indicating the applicant has e-mailed the transcript directly to Admissions. If an applicant is offered a place in the incoming class and matriculates into the MDiv program, he or she must submit official final transcripts from all undergraduate and graduate institutions attended before the applicant can register for classes in August 2017;

• a minimum of three reference letters written by people who are best qualified to judge the applicant as a prospective student in the Divinity School. Of these three references, one should be academic and one should be church. The third reference can be a professional reference or an additional academic or church reference. Church references may include the applicant’s pastor, campus minister, denominational official, etc. An appropriate academic reference writer is a college or university professor who has taught the applicant in a class. If an applicant has been out of school for five or more years, he or she may submit an additional professional character reference. A professional character reference may include a former supervisor or employer or someone who has known the applicant for three or more years and can speak to his or her potential for graduate studies. Family members, spouse, or fellow students are unacceptable as references. It is the responsibility of the applicant to request letters of reference from the appropriate persons. Reference letters must be submitted by the writer through the application portal or e-mailed directly by the recommender to the Office of Admissions (admissions@div.duke.edu). Reference letters should be written on official school, company, church, or personal letterhead;

• resume or curriculum vitae (c.v.); and

• a three-page essay describing the applicant’s sense of vocation in Christian ministry, (1) articulating the significant points of affirmation that led to his or her understanding of calling; (2) integrating the reflection on a theological book(s) that has helped to shape the applicant’s vocational call; and (3) describing how the applicant understands this call in relation to the mission of Duke Divinity School to prepare leaders for the church, academy, and world.

It is the responsibility of the applicant to contact the Office of Admissions prior to the application deadline to confirm that all supporting documents and information have been received.

Materials submitted in support of a MDiv application are not released for other purposes and cannot be returned to the applicant.
Admission Requirements

Those people are encouraged to apply for the MDiv:

• who have or will have been awarded a bachelor’s degree from a regionally accredited college or university prior to their intended date of enrollment;
• who have attained at least an overall B- (2.75 on 4.0 scale) academic average; and
• who are committed to ordained or lay ministry.

Applicants are evaluated on the basis of academic attainment, future promise for ministry, and vocational clarity and commitment. Students who are denied admission must wait until applications for the fall 2018 class are accepted before reapplying to the Divinity School.

Application Procedures for Master of Divinity/Master of Social Work (MDiv/MSW) Dual Degree

Applicants for the MDiv/MSW dual degree program typically will have received a bachelor’s degree (BA or BS) from a regionally accredited college or university prior to their intended date of enrollment. Application must be made separately to Duke Divinity School (per the procedures listed above for the MDiv degree) and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill School of Social Work. Acceptance into one of the programs does not guarantee acceptance into the other. In addition to the application, the School of Social Work requires a personal statement, three letters of reference, and recent scores from the Graduate Record Examination. Students will not be able to transfer into the dual degree program from other universities. Each semester, tuition and other expenses are paid to the school at which the student is taking classes. For more information about the UNC-CH School of Social Work and its admission process, contact the School of Social Work Admissions Office, Tate-Turner-Kuralt Building, 325 Pittsboro Street, CB#3550, Chapel Hill, NC 27599-3550 at http://ssw.unc.edu/.

Full-time students will apply to the dual degree program at both schools and begin the program at Duke Divinity School. Students will defer the enrollment for two years at the School of Social Work. If a student requests a deferral in the MDiv program the student will forfeit the acceptance to the School of Social Work as the acceptance cannot be deferred for more than two years.

Part-time MSW students will apply to the dual degree program at the time of application to the School of Social Work. They will enter the dual degree program full-time at the beginning of their third year. This third year will begin at Duke Divinity School.

Advanced Standing MSW students (who are already experiencing a reduction in enrollment at the UNC School of Social Work) will be eligible for the dual degree program. They must begin the dual degree program at Duke Divinity School and then enter the School of Social Work during the summer following their last semester at the Duke.

Application Procedures for Master of Arts in Christian Practice Program (MACP)

Prospective students are encouraged to apply online at www.divinity.duke.edu/admissions/how-apply. The MACP application deadline for Summer 2017 enrollment is a rolling one with a final deadline of May 1, 2017.

Online applications and supplemental items must be submitted by 11:59 p.m. EST on the stated deadline date. If the application deadline falls on a weekend, the application and all supplemental items must be received by Admissions by 5 p.m. on the Monday immediately after the deadline date. Offers of admission for the MACP program will be made on a rolling basis, no later than three weeks after the final application deadline.

A nonrefundable $55 application fee must be submitted after completing the application form in order to upload supplemental items noted above. Online applications require that the $55 fee be paid, by credit card only, at the time of submission.

In addition to the online application form and application fee, the applicant is required to provide the following supplemental items:

• one unofficial transcript from each undergraduate or graduate institution attended in PDF format. Applicants must upload one copy of an unofficial transcript for each institution attended. Acceptable unofficial transcripts include scanned copies of paper transcripts produced by the institution, electronic transcripts from an institution, and web-based academic records available to the student via a student records portal. If an applicant is offered a place in the incoming class and matriculates into the MACP program, he or she must submit official final transcripts from all undergraduate and graduate institutions attended before the applicant can be enrolled in classes in Summer 2017;
• a minimum of three reference letters written by people who are best qualified to judge the applicant as a prospective student in the Divinity School. Of these three references, one should be academic and one should be church. The third reference can be a professional reference or an additional academic or church reference. Church references may include the applicant’s pastor, campus minister, denominational official, etc. An appropriate academic reference writer is a college or university professor who has taught the applicant in a class. If an applicant has been out of school for five or more years, he or she may submit an additional professional character reference. A professional character reference may include a former supervisor or employer or someone who has known the applicant for three or more years and can speak to his or her potential for graduate studies. Family members, spouse, or fellow students are unacceptable as references. It is the responsibility of the applicant to request letters of reference from the appropriate persons. Reference letters must be submitted by the writer through the application portal or e-mailed directly by the recommender to the Office of Admissions (admissions@div.duke.edu). Reference letters should be written on official school, company, church, or personal letterhead;
• resume or curriculum vitae (c.v.); and
• a three-page essay describing the applicant’s sense of vocation in Christian ministry, (1) articulating the significant points of affirmation that led to his or her understanding of calling; (2) integrating the reflection on a theological book(s) that has helped to shape applicant’s vocational call; and (3) explaining how the applicant understands this call in relation to the mission of Duke Divinity School to prepare leaders for the church, academy, and world.

It is also the responsibility of the applicant to contact the Office of Admissions prior to the application deadline to confirm that all supporting documents and information have been received.

Materials submitted in support of a MACP application are not released for other purposes and cannot be returned to the applicant.

Admission Requirements

Those people are encouraged to apply for the MACP:
• who have or will have been awarded a bachelor’s degree from a regionally accredited college or university prior to their intended date of enrollment;
• who have attained at least an overall B- (2.75 on 4.0 scale) academic average; and
• be employed/aspire to be employed in a congregation or in a profession and be committed to lay ministry, ordination as a deacon, or to their professional service as a lay vocation.

The priority deadline to be considered for merit scholarships is January 15, 2017. The final application deadline is June 1, 2017. There is no January enrollment. Because of the rolling deadline, Admissions encourages applicants to submit as early as possible for optimal consideration as the class fills quickly.

Online applications and supplemental items must be submitted by 11:59 p.m. EST on the stated deadline date. If the application deadline falls on a weekend, applications and all supplemental items must be received by Admissions by 5 p.m. on the Monday immediately after the deadline date. Offers of admission for the MTS class will be made on a rolling basis, no later than three weeks after the final application deadline.

A nonrefundable $55 application fee must be submitted after completing the application form in order to upload supplemental items listed below. Online applications require that the $55 fee be paid, by credit card only, at the time of submission.

In addition to the online application form and application fee, the applicant is required to provide the following supplemental items:
• one unofficial transcript from each undergraduate or graduate institution attended in PDF format. Applicants must upload one copy of an unofficial transcript for each institution attended. Acceptable unofficial transcripts include scanned copies of paper transcripts produced by the institution, electronic transcripts from an institution, and web-based academic records available to the student via a student records portal. If an applicant is offered a place in the incoming class and matriculates into the MTS program, he or she must submit official final transcripts from all undergraduate and graduate institutions attended before the applicant can register for classes in August 2017;
• a minimum of three reference letters written by people who are best qualified to judge the applicant as a prospective student in the Divinity School. Of these three references, two should be academic and one should be a church or professional character reference. Church references may include the applicant’s pastor, campus minister, denominational official, etc. An appropriate academic reference writer is a college or university professor who has taught the applicant in a class. A professional character reference may include a former supervisor or employer or someone who has known the applicant for three or more years. Family members, spouse, or fellow students are unacceptable as references. It is the responsibility of the applicant to request letters of reference from the appropriate persons. Reference letters must be submitted by the writer through the application portal or e-mailed directly by the recommender to the Office of Admissions (admissions@div.duke.edu). Reference letters should be written on official school, company, church, or personal letterhead;
• resume or curriculum vitae (c.v.);
• a three-page essay (1) describing the applicant’s goals for enrolling in the Master of Theological Studies program; (2) integrating the reflection on a theological book(s) that has helped to shape the applicant’s theological imagination; and (3) explaining how the applicant understands his or her goals and development of a theological imagination in relation to the mission of Duke Divinity School to prepare leaders for the church, academy, and world; and
• a 4-6 page (1,000-1,500 words) academic writing sample such as an essay or excerpt of a paper or article. Attention to theological themes is desired. Applicants should include the title of the writing sample and provide context if an excerpt.

It is also the responsibility of the applicant to contact the Office of Admissions prior to the application deadline to confirm that all supporting documents and information have been received.

Materials submitted in support of an application are not released for other purposes and cannot be returned to the applicant.

Admission Requirements

Those people are encouraged to apply for the MTS:
• who have been awarded a bachelor’s degree from a regionally accredited college or university prior to their intended date of enrollment;
• who have attained at least an overall B+ (3.25 on a 4.0 scale) academic average;
• who demonstrate program goals commensurate with this degree program; and
• where applicable, who are committed to some form of lay ministry.

Application Procedures for the Master of Theological Studies/Juris Doctor (MTS/JD) Joint Degree

The Duke University School of Law and Duke Divinity School have established a combined four-year program in law and theological studies. Acceptance into this program requires applying separately for admission to each school. The students in the MTS/JD program may enroll the first year in either the Divinity School or Duke Law School. If the student begins in the former, the first-year curriculum is the same as that of other Divinity School students; if the student begins in the latter, the first-year curriculum is the same as that of other law students. The student’s second year consists of the full first-year program of the other school. In the third and fourth years of the program, the student takes courses in both schools. Approximately two-thirds of these courses are taken in the law school. In addition to the application, Duke Law School requires a personal statement, two letters of reference, and the LSAC report. Students will not be able to transfer into the joint degree program from other universities. Tuition and financial aid questions should be directed to Duke Law School. For more information about the Duke University School of Law and its admission process, call (919) 613-7020, e-mail admissions@law.duke.edu, or visit http://www.law.duke.edu.

Application Procedures for Master of Arts in Christian Studies Program (MACS)

Prospective students are encouraged to apply online at www.divinity.duke.edu/admissions/how-apply. The MACS application deadline for August 2017 enrollment is rolling with a final deadline of June 1, 2017.

Online applications and supplemental items must be submitted by 11:59 p.m. EST on the stated deadline date. If the application deadline falls on a weekend, applications and all supplemental items must be received by Admissions by 5 p.m. on the Monday immediately after the deadline date. Offers of admission for the August MACS class will be made on a rolling basis, no later than three weeks after the final application deadline.
A nonrefundable $55 application fee must be submitted after completing the application form in order to upload supplemental items listed below. Online applications require that the $55 fee be paid, by credit card only, at the time of submission.

In addition to the online application form and application fee, the applicant is required to provide the following supplemental items:

- one unofficial transcript from each undergraduate and graduate institution attended in PDF format. Applicants must upload one copy of an unofficial transcript for each institution attended. Acceptable unofficial transcripts include scanned copies of paper transcripts produced by the institution, electronic transcripts from an institution, and web-based academic records available to the student via a student records portal. If an applicant is offered a place in the incoming class and matriculates into the MACS program, he or she must submit official final transcripts from all undergraduate and graduate institutions attended before the applicant can register for classes in August 2017;
- a minimum of three reference letters written by people who are best qualified to judge the applicant as a prospective student in the Divinity School. Of these three references, two should be academic and one should be church or professional character reference. Church references may include the applicant’s pastor, campus minister, denominational official, etc. An appropriate academic reference writer is a college or university professor who has taught the applicant in a class. If an applicant has been out of school for five or more years, he or she may submit an additional professional character reference. A professional character reference may include a former supervisor or employer or someone who has known the applicant for three or more years and can speak to his or her potential for graduate studies. Family members, spouse, or fellow students are unacceptable as references. It is the responsibility of the applicant to request letters of reference from the appropriate persons. Reference letters must be submitted by the writer through the application portal or e-mailed directly by the recommender to the Office of Admissions (admissions@div.duke.edu). Reference letters should be written on official school, company, church, or personal letterhead;
- a three-page essay (1) describing the applicant’s goals for enrolling in the Master of Art in Christian Studies program; (2) integrating the reflection on a theological book(s) that has helped to shape the applicant’s theological imagination; and (3) explaining how the applicant understands his or her goals and development of a theological imagination in relation to the mission of Duke Divinity School to prepare leaders for the church, academy, and world.

It is also the responsibility of the applicant to contact the Office of Admissions prior to the application deadline to confirm that all supporting documents and information have been received.

Materials submitted in support of an application are not released for other purposes and cannot be returned to the applicant.

Admission Requirements

Those people are encouraged to apply for the MACS:

- who have been awarded a bachelor’s degree from a regionally accredited college or university prior to their intended date of enrollment;
- who have attained at least an overall B (3.00 on a 4.0 scale) academic average;
- who demonstrate program goals commensurate with this degree program.

Application Procedures for Master of Theology Program (THM)

Prospective students are encouraged to apply online at www.divinity.duke.edu/admissions/apply. The ThM application deadline for August 2017 enrollment is rolling with a final deadline of June 1, 2017.

Online applications and supplemental materials must be submitted by 11:59 p.m. EST on the stated deadline date. If the application deadline falls on a weekend, applications and all supplemental documents must be received by Admissions by 5 p.m. on the Monday immediately after the deadline date. Offers of admission for the August ThM class are announced no later than three weeks of the final application deadline.

A nonrefundable $55 application fee must be submitted after completing the application form in order to upload supplemental items listed below. Online applications require that the $55 fee be paid, by credit card only, at the time of submission.
In addition to online application and application fee, the applicant is required to provide the following supplemental items:

- one unofficial transcript from each undergraduate and graduate institution attended in PDF format. Applicants must upload one copy of an unofficial transcript for each institution attended. Acceptable unofficial transcripts include scanned copies of paper transcripts produced by the institution, electronic transcripts from an institution, and web-based academic records available to the student via a student records portal. If an applicant is offered a place in the incoming class and matriculates into the ThM program, he or she must submit official final transcripts from all undergraduate and graduate institutions attended before the applicant can register for classes in August 2017;
- a minimum of three reference letters written by people who are best qualified to judge the applicant as a prospective student in the Divinity School. Of these three references, two should be seminary professors qualified to appraise the applicant’s academic potential and one should be a denominational official qualified to appraise the applicant’s ministerial work. Family members, spouse, or fellow students are unacceptable as references. It is the responsibility of the applicant to request letters of reference from the appropriate persons. Reference letters must be submitted by the writer through the application portal or e-mailed directly by the recommender to the Office of Admissions (admissions@div.duke.edu). Reference letters should be written on official school, company, church, or personal letterhead;
- a three-page essay (1) describing the applicant’s personal, educational, and professional reasons for enrolling in the Master of Theology program and how he or she anticipates employing these studies in the applicant’s ministry; (2) integrating the reflection on a theological book(s) that has helped to shape the applicant’s theological imagination; and (3) explaining how the applicant understands his or her goals and development of a theological imagination in relation to the mission of Duke Divinity School to prepare leaders for the church, academy, and world; and
- a 4-6 page (1,000-1,500 words) academic writing sample such as an essay or excerpt of a paper or article written as part of the applicant’s seminary training. Applicants should include the title of the writing sample and provide context if an excerpt.

It is also the responsibility of the applicant to contact the Office of Admissions prior to the application deadline to confirm that all supporting documents and information have been received.

Materials submitted in support of an application are not released for other purposes and cannot be returned to the applicant.

Admission Requirements

Those people are encouraged to apply for the ThM:

- who have been awarded a bachelor’s degree from a regionally accredited college or university;
- who have or will have been awarded the MDiv degree (or the equivalent) from an accredited theological institution;
- who have attained at least an overall B+ (3.25 on a 4.0 scale) academic average in their foundational theology degree; and
- who desire to continue or resume their theological education for enhancement of professional competence in selected areas of study.

Other than one scholarship per year for an international student, master of theology students are not eligible for any form of scholarship assistance through Duke Divinity School. ThM students may be eligible for federal aid such as work-study or loans.

Application Procedures for Doctor of Ministry Program (DMIN)

Prospective students are encouraged to apply online at www.divinity.duke.edu/admissions/how-apply. Applications will be accepted for two early deadlines of November 15, 2016 and January 15, 2017. The final DMin application deadline for August 2017 enrollment is March 15, 2017.

Online applications must be submitted by 11:59 p.m. EST on the stated deadline date. If the application deadline falls on a weekend, applications and all supplemental items must be received by Admissions by 5 p.m. on the Monday immediately after the deadline date. Offers of admission for the August DMin class are announced within six weeks of the final application deadline.
A nonrefundable $55 application fee must be submitted after completing the application form in order to upload supplemental items noted below. Online applications require that the $55 fee be paid, by credit card only, at the time of submission.

In addition to online application and application fee, DMin applicants are required to provide the following supplemental items:

• one unofficial transcript from each undergraduate or graduate institution attended in PDF format. Applicants must upload one copy of an unofficial transcript for each institution attended. Acceptable unofficial transcripts include scanned copies of paper transcripts produced by the institution, electronic transcripts from an institution, and web-based academic records available to the student via a student records portal. If an applicant is offered a place in the incoming class and matriculates into the DMin program, he or she must submit official final transcripts from all undergraduate and graduate institutions attended before the applicant can register for classes in August 2017;
• four letters of reference. Two letters of reference from people capable of assessing the applicant’s intellectual and academic ability and two letters of reference (one from an ecclesial official and one from a lay person) that address the applicant’s performance in his or her current position of ministry;
• a two-page essay describing the applicant’s goals for undertaking doctoral study, including an indication of the proposed focus; and
• an academic writing sample of no more than 15 pages.

It is the responsibility of the applicant to request letters of reference from the appropriate persons. It is also the responsibility of the applicant to contact the Office of Admissions prior to the application deadline to confirm that all supporting documents and information have been received.

Materials submitted in support of an application are not released for other purposes and cannot be returned to the applicant.

Admission Requirements

Those people are encouraged to apply for the DMin:

• who have been awarded a master of divinity (MDiv) or a master of theological studies (MTS) or comparable master’s degree in theology from an ATS accredited school;
• who have attained at least an overall B+ (3.3 on a 4.0 scale) academic average; and
• who have spent at least five years in full-time ministry.

Application Procedures for Doctor of Theology Program (ThD)

Prospective students are encouraged to apply online at www.divinity.duke.edu/admissions/how-apply. The ThD application deadline for August 2017 enrollment is December 20, 2016.

Online application and all supplemental items must be submitted by 11:59 p.m. EST on the stated deadline date. If the application deadline falls on a weekend, applications and all supplemental items must be received by Admissions by 5 p.m. on the Monday immediately after the deadline date.

A nonrefundable $55 application fee must be submitted after completing the application form in order to upload supplemental items noted below. Online applications require that the $55 fee be paid, by credit card only, at the time of submission.

In addition to the online application and application fee, ThD applicants are required to provide the following supplemental items:

• one unofficial transcript from each undergraduate and graduate institution attended in PDF format. Applicants completing the online application must upload one copy of an unofficial transcript for each institution attended. Acceptable unofficial transcripts include scanned copies of paper transcripts produced by the institution, electronic transcripts from an institution, and web-based academic records available to the student via a student records portal. If an applicant is offered a place in the incoming class and matriculates into the ThD program, he or she must submit official final transcripts from all undergraduate and graduate institutions attended before the applicant can register for classes in August 2017;
• four letters of reference. Three should be academic from professors qualified to appraise the applicant’s academic potential. One letter should be from a person able to comment on the applicant’s experience in ministry.
and suitability for a program focused on the ministries and practices of Christian communities. Reference letters must be submitted by the writer through the application portal or e-mailed directly to the Office of Admissions (admissions@div.duke.edu). Reference letters should be written on official school, company, church, or personal letterhead;

- a two-page essay describing the applicant’s goals for undertaking doctoral study, including an indication of the proposed focus;
- resume or curriculum vitae (c.v.); and
- an academic writing sample of no more than 20-25 pages.

It is the responsibility of the student to contact the Office of Admissions prior to the application deadline to confirm that all supporting documents and information have been received.

Materials submitted in support of an application are not released for other purposes and cannot be returned to the applicant.

Admission Requirements for the ThD

Requirements for admission to the ThD program are:

- master of divinity (MDiv) or a master of theological studies (MTS) or comparable master's degree in theology from an ATS accredited school; and
- valid GRE scores (not more than five years old by the ThD application deadline). For test score reporting purposes the Duke Educational Testing Service (ETS) code number is 5156. The Divinity School receives the applicant's official GRE scores electronically from the ETS. The applicant must take the GRE in time for official scores to reach the Divinity School by the application deadline.

International students whose native language is not English are required to submit current TOEFL scores (not more than two years old by the ThD application deadline). See bulletin section on Policies and Procedures for International Applicants.

Admission as a Special Student

Special student status is a restricted category of admission for people who do not have need of a degree program and who desire access to the rich offerings of the Divinity School curriculum for particular purposes. Courses are taken for credit. Admission as a special student is distinct from admission to a degree program. As such, special student status is only available to U.S. citizens, permanent residents, or R-1 visa holders. International students are not eligible to apply for special student status due to visa restrictions.

Completed applications and all supporting credentials for special student status must be submitted by:

- December 1, 2016, for January 2017 enrollment;
- May 1, 2017, for summer term 2017 enrollment; or
- August 1, 2017, for August 2017 enrollment.

Online application and all supplemental items must be submitted by 11:59 p.m. EST on the stated deadline date. If the application deadline falls on a weekend, applications and all supplemental items must be received by Admissions by 5 p.m. on the Monday immediately after the deadline date.

A nonrefundable $55 application fee must be submitted after completing the application form in order to upload supplemental items noted below. Online applications require that the $55 fee be paid, by credit card only, at the time of submission.

In addition to the online application and application fee, the special student applicant is required to provide the following supporting items:

- one unofficial transcript from each undergraduate or graduate institution attended in PDF format. Applicants must upload one copy of an unofficial transcript for each institution attended. Acceptable unofficial transcripts include scanned copies of paper transcripts produced by the institution, electronic transcripts from an institution, and web-based academic records available to the student via a student records portal. If an applicant is offered special student status, he or she must submit official final transcripts from all undergraduate and graduate institutions attended before the applicant can be enrolled in classes;
- a minimum of two reference letters written by people who are best qualified to judge the applicant as a prospective student in the Divinity School. One should be academic or professional character, and one should be a church reference. Church references may include the applicant’s pastor, campus minister, denominational official, etc. An appropriate academic reference writer is a college or university professor who has taught the applicant in a class. If an applicant has been out of school for five or more years, he or she may submit a professional character reference. A professional character reference may include a former supervisor or employer or someone who has known the applicant for three or more years and can speak to his or her potential for graduate studies. Family members, spouse, or fellow students are unacceptable as references. It is the responsibility of the applicant to request letters of reference from the appropriate persons. Reference letters must be submitted by the writer through the application portal or e-mailed directly by the recommender to the Office of Admissions (admissions@div.duke.edu). Reference letters should be written on official school, company, church, or personal letterhead;

• resume or curriculum vitae (c.v.); and

• a three-page essay (1) describing the applicant’s sense of vocation in Christian ministry, articulating the significant points of affirmation that has led to his or her understanding of calling; (2) integrating the reflection on a theological book(s) that has helped to shape the applicant’s vocational call; and (3) explaining how the applicant understands this call in relation to the mission of Duke Divinity School to prepare leaders for the church, academy, and world.

Special student status is good for one calendar year only. A student desiring to continue as a special student beyond the one-year limit must reapply. Admission as a special student is distinct from admission to a degree program. There is no obligation on the part of the Duke Divinity School to offer admission to any of its degree programs to people who have been previously accepted as special students. Special students are ineligible for any form of scholarship through the Divinity School and are not eligible for federal student aid.

Policies and Procedures for International Applicants

In recognition of the invaluable contributions that students from outside the United States bring to theological discourse and to community life, Duke Divinity School welcomes all fully qualified international students to apply for all degree programs. Although applications from international students are accepted for all degree programs, the Divinity School prefers that students pursue the master of divinity degree in their respective home countries or regions due to the contextual nature of ministry to a congregation and to the Divinity School’s commitment to the needs of the world church. For August 2017 enrollment in the MDiv and MTS degree programs, international students must submit their applications and all supporting documents and information by the January 15, 2017 priority deadline. For the MACS, ThM, MACP, and DMin programs, international students must submit their applications and all supporting documents and information by no later than March 15, 2017. International applicants to the ThD program must adhere to that final application deadline.

In addition to the information required of all students, international students must submit the following with their application materials:

• a church letter from an ecclesiastical body or from a student’s church supporting the pursuit of theological studies in the United States;

• demonstrate English proficiency if the applicant’s native language is not English. This certification can be demonstrated by the international applicant in three ways:
  • received or will receive by the time of enrollment an undergraduate degree where the language of instruction was English only (the official language of the country is English);
  • earned or will earn by the time of enrollment an undergraduate degree from a college or university in the United States or US Territories; or
  • submits official scores from the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL) that meet the subtest and cumulative score requirements.

• The TOEFL is administered through the Educational Testing Service (ETS) in Princeton, New Jersey. For test score reporting purposes Duke’s Educational Testing Service (ETS) code number is 5156. The Divinity School receives the applicant’s official TOEFL scores electronically from the ETS. Applicants must take the TOEFL in time for official scores to reach the school by the application deadline. The score must not be more than two years old by the application deadline for the degree to which the applicant is applying. Personal copies are not acceptable, nor are “attested” or notarized copies.

• For MDiv, MTS, MACS, and MACP applicants the Divinity School requires a cumulative score of 93 on the TOEFL internet-based test (iBT) with a minimum of 23 scored in each subtest. MDiv, MTS, MACS, and MACP applicants who do not have access to the TOEFL iBT may submit scores from the TOEFL paper-based test (PBT). The TOEFL PBT score must be at least 580 with a minimum score of 5 on the Test of Written English (TWE). The TOEFL iBT is the preferred English proficiency test.
For ThM and ThD applicants, the Divinity School requires a cumulative score of 108 on the TOEFL iBT with a minimum of 27 scored in each subtest. ThM and ThD applicants who do not have access to the TOEFL iBT may submit scores from the TOEFL PBT. The TOEFL PBT score must be at least 610 with a minimum score of 6 on the TWE. The TOEFL iBT is the preferred English proficiency test.

Following acceptance of an admission offer and matriculation into a degree program, all entering international students must submit the full amount of the first year’s tuition (minus any Divinity School institutional support) to the Duke University cashier’s office no later than June 1, 2017. The Office of Admissions has instructions for wiring tuition money. Duke University Visa Services will not begin the visa application process until the Divinity School receives the full tuition deposit. These funds will be deposited in the student’s university bursar account. If the international student does not enroll, the full amount of these funds deposited in the student’s bursar account will be refunded to the student or to the student’s funding source.

Transfer of Credits

Transfer of credit to Duke Divinity School, leading to candidacy for the degree of master of divinity, will normally be limited to four courses. For the MTS program, two courses may be considered for transfer. Courses in which the student received a grade lower than B- will not be considered for transfer credit. Grades from credit transfer courses do not transfer to the Divinity School, only course credit. Courses taken online or mostly online will also not be accepted. Duke Divinity School will accept only courses completed at an ATS accredited school or APCE accredited CPE program, unless an exception is granted by the associate dean for academic programs. Courses completed more than five years prior to the intended date of enrollment will not be considered for transfer credit. Credits cannot be transferred until after a student matriculates in the degree program at the Divinity School.

Applicants for Transfer into a Degree Program are Evaluated on the Same Basis as Other Applicants

A student applying for transfer credits from another ATS accredited seminary must include the following with the required application materials:

- a statement of explanation and purpose for the proposed transfer as part of the essay; and
- the third letter of recommendation submitted must be a letter written by the academic dean or registrar of the seminary from which transfer of credits is sought indicating that the applicant is in good academic standing.

Admission Acceptance

MDiv, MACP, MTS, MACS, ThM, ThD, and Special Student applicants must indicate their acceptance of admission with a payment of a nonrefundable admission deposit of $100 ($250 for the DMin program) on or before the date specified in their acceptance letters. Upon matriculation, the deposit is used to open the student’s bursar account and is subtracted from the first semester fees. This fee will be paid via e-check through the Bursar’s Office website (www.dukeonline.duke.edu/bursar).

All entering students must complete and return the immunization and student health form to the student health service. Admissions must also receive a final official transcript verifying the conferral of the undergraduate (for the MDiv, MACP, MTS, and MACS) or graduate/seminary (for the ThM, DMin, or ThD) degree. All MDiv, MTS, and MACP students are subject to a background check prior to enrollment or participation in the programs.

Prospective students who do not matriculate by the beginning of the term for which they were originally admitted forfeit their admission unless they request a deferral in writing from the director of admissions by August 1, 2017. A one-year deferral of an admission offer may be granted for the MDiv, MTS, MACP, MACS, ThM, and DMin programs. Deferrals are not granted for the ThD program. If approved, the application will be placed in the deferred status. Those who are granted a deferral will be contacted by the Office of Admissions and must confirm their intent to enroll for Fall 2017 by no later than January 15, 2017. Scholarship offers do not carry over with an approved admission offer deferral. Deferred applicants who indicate their intent to enroll will be considered for scholarships during the next admissions cycle if they submit an updated resume and a brief one-page update on their work in the past few months no later than January 15, 2017.

Changing Degree Programs Once Enrolled at the Divinity School

Students enrolled in the MACS, MDiv, or MTS wishing to change from a degree program to another within Duke Divinity School may apply do so. Students enrolled in the ThM, MACP, DMin, and ThD programs are not eligible to seek admission into a different degree program.

Basic admission requirements for the specific degree program change sought must be met in order to be considered for a program change. (Students should consult the admissions requirements section for the program to which they are requesting the change.) Students requesting a program change are expected to have a minimum GPA of 3.0. Students may apply to change programs after completing one full semester of study. Applicants must meet with the director of admissions and submit the application materials by no later than the first day of classes for the semester in which the change is requested. Program change applications submitted after the first day of classes will be considered for the next academic semester.

Students seeking a program change must first contact the Office of Admissions to arrange a program change interview. In addition, a complete application and supporting materials include:

- Program Transfer Application form (fillable PDF);
- Statement of Purpose outlining the reasons for the program transfer request and describing the educational, personal, and vocational goals they hope to achieve by changing programs;
- electronic Duke Divinity School transcript that should be sent to admissions@div.duke.edu. The Office of Admissions will access prior transcripts through the registrar’s office; and
- one letter of reference from a Duke Divinity School faculty member. Students requesting to change to the MDiv must also submit a reference from a church-related official (pastor, campus minister, denominational official, etc.,) who can comment on the student’s vocational calling. Recommendation letters should be sent directly to Admissions via e-mail (admissions@div.duke.edu).

Once the Office of Admissions receives all application materials, a decision will be released within 7-10 business days. The application will then be transferred to the academic formation office so the program change is effective no later than the drop/add deadline for the current semester or by registration for transfers effective for the next academic semester. Institutional scholarships awarded to students to support their studies in the original degree program are not transferrable to the new program. The students will automatically qualify for the basic program scholarship awarded (e.g. MTS Scholarship, MDiv Ministerial Promise, or MACS Scholarship).

Readmission to Duke Divinity School

People seeking readmission to the Divinity School’s degree programs must complete the following requirements: (1) submit a new application; (2) submit an additional statement detailing reasons for withdrawal and reasons for seeking readmission at this time, and describing activities and employment undertaken since withdrawal; (3) submit the names of at least three additional people willing to serve as references who will be contacted by the student, one of whom must be an ecclesiastical official; and (4) transcripts of all academic work undertaken since withdrawal from the Divinity School. Applicants who have previously been dismissed must wait one full calendar year from the date of dismissal to reapply.

These new materials, supplemented by the individual’s original application and Divinity School academic and field education files, will be reviewed by members of the Committee on Admissions for an admission decision. An interview with the director of admissions prior to the processing of the application for readmission is encouraged and may be required. Any questions about readmission procedures should be addressed to the director of admissions. Applications for readmission will be evaluated on the basis of academic attainment, future promise for the ministry, and vocational clarity and commitment.

Policies and Procedures for Students with Disabilities

Duke University and Duke Divinity School are committed to equality of educational opportunities for qualified students with disabilities in compliance with Section 504 of the Federal Rehabilitation Act of 1973 and the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990. A student seeking information regarding documentation guidelines and procedures for receiving consideration for reasonable accommodations should contact the university’s Office of Services for Students with Disabilities. Call (919) 668-1267 or visit the office’s website at www.access.duke.edu.

Educational Requirements for United Methodist Elders and Deacons

Duke Divinity School offers the theological education necessary to complete the academic requirements for both the order of deacon and the order of elder through the United Methodist Church. The following summary outlines the various routes of academic preparation within Duke’s degree offerings or through Special Student status:

Elder. The United Methodist Church requires completion of the master of divinity (MDiv) degree for those seeking ordination to “Word, Service, Sacrament, and Order” as an elder in full connection.

Deacon. For those seeking ordination to “Word and Service” as a deacon in full connection, the United Methodist Church has provided three educational options:

- completion of a basic theological degree (MDiv, MTS) that includes the requirements for a minimum of twenty-four credit hours (eleven courses at Duke) in basic graduate theological studies (Theology, Old Testament, New Testament, Mission of the Church in the World, Evangelism, Worship and Liturgy, Church History, and courses in United Methodist Doctrine, Polity, and History). All of the basic graduate theological studies requirements are also fulfilled by completion of the MACP degree.

- for those who already hold a professional master's degree in the area of specialized ministry in which the candidate will serve (MSW, MA, etc.), the candidate must, in addition, complete a minimum of twenty-four credit hours (eleven courses at Duke) in basic graduate theological studies at a graduate theological seminary recognized by the United Methodist University Senate. This academic route may be fulfilled as a Special Student.

- for those who are age 35 or older, there is the possible alternate route to ordination as a deacon through professional certification or licensing and additional graduate credit in one's area of specialization, as well as the required minimum twenty-four credit hours of basic graduate theological studies. This academic route may be fulfilled as a Special Student.

For more information on the various routes of theological education for ordination, a candidate is encouraged to contact the United Methodist Division of Ordained Ministry: (615) 340-7389 or dom@gbhem.org. Additionally, it is always prudent to maintain communication with the candidate’s own annual conference regarding additional requirements for theological education and preparation for ministry.

Duke Divinity School Professional and Technical Standards

Introduction

As identified in the bulletin section The Role of the Divinity School, the principal purpose of Duke Divinity School is professional education for the ministry, which in today’s world is manifested in a variety of forms. Although the conventional and inherited styles of ministry are now undergoing change, the school curriculum continues to prepare students for the informed and discriminating exercise of the church’s historic offices through the ministry of word, sacrament, order, service, pastoral care, and teaching. The school believes these offices will remain, although the form and context of the local church may change.

With this in mind, Duke Divinity School prepares students for the mature performance of their vocation in community. The school hopes to develop in each graduate a disciplined intelligence, informed by sound learning and equipped for worthy professional service. It seeks to form leaders whose character reflects the integrity, qualities, and vision of the Christian Gospel. Its resources are offered to students with a diversity of ministerial aims, although the school seeks, by recruitment and financial support, to prepare persons for ordination or lay professional vocations in churches. The school seeks to be welcoming, nurturing, and hospitable to all students, including students with documented disabilities. In all its endeavors, the school aims to serve Jesus Christ through service to the church and the world.

To fulfill the role and purpose of Duke Divinity School, all candidates applying for admission must meet the requirements and expectations of the school’s curriculum. The study of theology and the formation for ministry are not exclusively intellectual exercises. Rather, a student needs a specific set of minimum attributes in order to succeed. Students, with or without reasonable accommodations, must meet the requirements and expectations listed below. The Committee on Admissions adheres to these professional and technical standards during the selection of persons applying for entry into the school. If you have questions regarding these standards, contact the Office of Admissions.

Intellectual, Theological, and Integrative Expectations

A student should be able to:

- assimilate, critique, prioritize, and appropriate the Christian story as understood through scripture, tradition, reason, experience, and as centered on the life, suffering, death, and resurrection of Jesus Christ;

- engage and comprehend extensive theological, historical, contextual, philosophical, and biblical resources in a timely manner. This information will be presented in a variety of educational settings, including lectures, small group discussions, field education placements, preceptorials, spiritual formation groups, and seminars. The student should be able to analyze, integrate, and apply this information appropriately for forming individuals, congregations, communities, and the world;

- display a growing ability to think theologically and critically in conversation with a diversity of viewpoints;

- meet all course participation requirements in the classroom and in contextual learning environments;
• cultivate vocational imagination in light of the Christian Gospel;
• maintain openness to vocational discernment within the church and the world; and
• assist individuals and communities in the theological understanding and interpretation of experiences, issues, and events.

Communication Expectations
A student should be able effectively to:
• communicate in diverse and challenging academic and contextual situations (e.g., preaching, visitation, teaching, worship leadership, group facilitation, and counseling);
• communicate empathetically and sensitively with individuals, groups, families, and congregations;
• integrate, process, and document information (e.g., compose, edit, and interpret information in the classroom, the library, and in contextual learning environments);
• enter and access electronic data using a computer or other device; and
• assimilate media presentations (e.g., PowerPoint presentations, white/chalkboard presentations, film/video presentations) in the learning environment for informational and illustrative purposes.

Behavioral and Social Expectations
A student should be able to:
• uphold Duke Divinity School's Conduct Covenant (see Appendix II. Conduct Covenant and Judicial Procedures);
• apply fully his/her intellectual skill, exercise good judgment, and complete all responsibilities attendant to the care of congregants/parishioners/clients;
• demonstrate a style of leadership combining integrity, authenticity, and the practice of faith;
• balance and manage effectively the demands experienced during theological training and in contextual learning environments (e.g., working with frustrating situations, working in high-stress situations, working under time pressure, working irregular schedules, handling multiple assignments and conflicting demands/priorities, reacting or responding to emergencies, performing independently or with minimal on-site supervision); and
• possess qualities of adaptability, flexibility, and the ability to function in the face of uncertainty.

Practice of Ministry (in Addition to the Professional and Technical Standards Above, the Following Relate to the Master of Divinity Degree)
A student should be able to:
• offer counsel and theological reflection in the development and implementation of goals for fulfilling the church's mission, the recruitment and nurture of lay leadership, and the ordering of the life of congregations;
• offer appropriate leadership for the liturgical and pastoral practices of the church;
• facilitate conflict resolution and reconciliation with individuals and within communities;
• form a compassionate relationship with congregants/parishioners/clients while maintaining appropriate boundaries for a professional relationship; and
• provide or arrange transportation for field education placements.

Conduct Covenant: Duke Divinity School
We, the faculty and students in the Divinity School of Duke University, make covenant, individually and corporately, to uphold the highest standards of personal and academic integrity. This includes, but is not limited to, never lying, cheating, stealing, causing harm to self or others, or defacing property. Set aside by our calling, we hold ourselves and each other to the highest standards of conduct.

As a divinity school committed to forming and educating people for the ministry of Jesus Christ, we covenant together to embody truth in every aspect of our lives, including our academic work. In joyful obedience to Christ, we gratefully involve our bodies, minds, and spirits in this community of discipline and love, recognizing that we are a people called to worship God by the Spirit of truth.

1 Duke Divinity School is a Christian community shaped by the Gospel of Jesus Christ. While we do not expect members of other faith traditions to share the theological framework out of which this covenant was developed, we welcome into our community anyone who is willing to live and work under the standards of conduct specified herein.

For more information on the Conduct Covenant and judicial procedures, see Appendix II. Conduct Covenant and Judicial Procedures.
Community and Student Life

The community and student life areas of Duke Divinity School include six offices: chaplain, ministerial formation, student life, admissions, field education, and financial aid. These offices partner with the academic program offices of the school in the processes of forming men and women for ministry in the name of Jesus Christ. Specifically, these offices seek to address, care for, and enhance the spiritual, physical, emotional, professional, and community life of students. Information pertaining to the offices of Admissions, Field Education, and Financial Aid is included in other areas of the bulletin and also is available on the Duke Divinity School website.

Confidentiality Policy

In this work, the resources of counseling and confidentiality often come into play. It is important for Duke Divinity students to know that the Community and Student Life areas abide by FERPA (Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act), employing a policy of confidentiality, which protects student privacy while providing for collegial consultation among student life and academic program staff when necessary. In order to provide comprehensive, effective and up-to-date services, a student life staff member may, only when necessary, consult with other colleagues in student life and/or academic programs about assistance/counsel for students. Otherwise, information revealed in counseling/conversation, even the information that a counseling appointment has been made, is not disclosed to persons other than those listed above unless the student provides written authorization for that information to be released. The following are exceptions to this practice of confidentiality:

- when the student life staff member believes the student presents an imminent danger to self or others;
- when the life or safety of a readily identifiable third person is endangered;
- when the student life staff member believes that a child or vulnerable adult is being subjected to abuse, neglect or exploitation; and
- when disclosure is made necessary by legal proceedings.

In all other cases, what is discussed in counseling will remain confidential.

Office of the Chaplain

The Office of the Chaplain provides spiritual support to the Divinity School community through three primary areas: pastoral care, community worship, and spiritual formation. Contact the Office of the Chaplain at (919) 660-3459.

Pastoral Care

The life of a student can be filled with a variety of anxieties, stresses, and hardships. The chaplain is available to be a source of support and advisement (or simply a listening ear) to students in a variety of areas, including spiritual concerns, vocational discernment, and anxieties about school or relationships. The chaplain also maintains a list of spiritual directors and therapists (many with theological training) in order to make referrals as necessary. Students may drop by the chaplain’s office or make an appointment.

Community Worship

Community worship is a vibrant part of the Divinity School’s life together. The chaplain’s office convenes weekly worship opportunities in Goodson Chapel. This includes daily morning prayer led by the Anglican Episcopal House of Studies, and three mid-day services on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays. Tuesday and Thursday services include faculty or student preaching and Communion (once a week). The Wednesday service is a simple service of prayer and praise, centered in scripture, silence, singing, and prayer. There are a range of diverse liturgical traditions represented and celebrated within the Goodson Chapel worship space—from the mystery of a formal Anglican High Mass to a free-spirited Gospel service. Students, faculty, and staff share in the leadership (and often in the planning) of worship. Additionally, as an act of hospitality to the wider Duke University community, Goodson Chapel also hosts several masses and other liturgies weekly led by the Duke Catholic Center.

The Divinity School enjoys a particularly close relationship with Duke Chapel. Duke Divinity School administrators and faculty are often among the guest preachers at Sunday morning worship services in Duke Chapel. Divinity School students have the opportunity to participate in chapel worship, either by reading scripture, serving communion, or singing in one of the chapel’s three choirs (the Chapel choir, Vespers choir, and Evensong choir), which provide choral leadership for the chapel’s various weekly services, as well as special music programs throughout the academic year, including an annual Advent performance of Handel’s Messiah and Spring Oratorio.

Spiritual Formation Groups

One of the primary goals of a theological education is for the training and sanctification of the mind. At Duke Divinity the sharpening of the mind is coupled with a commitment to spiritual nurture and discipline. The school’s curriculum seeks to cultivate both intellect and spirit in a unified reality—calling students to a life of study, prayer, and service. Central to this cultivation is the experience of spiritual formation groups. First-year MDiv students (optional for MTS students) are required to participate in year-long spiritual formation groups with fellow classmates. Led by local clergy and spiritual directors, these groups of about 10-11 students each meet weekly to share and to nurture spiritual practices including Lectio Divina, praying the Psalms, contemplative prayer, spiritual autobiographies, and solitude. The groups provide space for diverse students to reflect theologically and spiritually together. It is an opportunity to discover rich spiritual friendships, even in the midst of diverse perspectives and leanings. Many students will continue to pursue spiritual formation groups into their second and third year with advanced spiritual formation groups.

Ministerial Formation

Ministerial formation occurs in a variety of contexts at Duke Divinity School, including through coursework, field education, spiritual formation, houses of study, and denominational associations. In addition, the Transition to Ministry and Mentoring for Ministry programs provide opportunities for students to engage in vocational discernment, hear from and develop relationships with experienced ministers, strengthen leadership capacities, engage in reflective practices and gain practical knowledge to aid in the transition from academic life to lay or ordained ministry in the church and wider world.

Houses of Study & Denominational Associations

The Anglican Episcopal House of Studies (AEHS) is a community of students, faculty, and staff dedicated to nurturing and preparing Episcopalians and other Anglicans for future service to the church, enabling them to become so steeped in the classic tradition that they will be faithful, flexible, and imaginative as they apply its teachings and wisdom in their ministry.

The Baptist House of Studies is a program of support and education for Baptist students at Duke Divinity School. Established in 1989, Baptist House prepares students for Baptist ministry through theological education and participation in a supportive community.

The Roger Williams Fellowship, named for the seventeenth century Free Church trailblazer, is the Baptist student organization in the Divinity School. The fellowship sponsors monthly meetings on campus for conversation about contemporary issues in Baptist life and plans fellowship gatherings for students and faculty.

The Hispanic House of Studies assists the North Carolina and Western North Carolina Annual Conferences and Duke Divinity School in supporting and strengthening ministries to and with Hispanics and Latinos in North Carolina.

- Caminantes, or “Walkers,” is a group of fellow sojourners seeking to encounter Christ on the roads connecting Duke Divinity School to the world. The group meets weekly for spiritual formation from a Hispanic Methodist perspective, where participants read the Bible in Spanish, discuss texts emerging from the Latino community, and learn how to praise and pray bilingually. There is also the opportunity to attend a spiritual retreat in the fall semester in preparation for an encounter with the Methodist church in Latin America during the spring semester.

- Manos Unidas, or “United Hands,” is a student group that seeks to raise the Divinity School community’s consciousness of the relevance of the Latino community in the future of the church and the United States at large by providing learning opportunities through the sharing of food, music, and theological reflection with a Latin touch.
The Methodist/Wesleyan House of Studies provides opportunities for United Methodist and other Pan-Methodist students (AME, AMEZ, CME, Nazarene, Free Methodist, and Wesleyan) to gather for fellowship and formation.

• Deacons@Duke is a group of students exploring or engaged in the United Methodist deacon ordination track. The group meets several times each semester to discuss common concerns and issues related to becoming a deacon in the United Methodist Church. Persons exploring deacon or diaconal ministries (youth minister, Christian educator, minister of music, pastoral counseling, camp director, etc.) in other Christian traditions are also welcome to join.

The Presbyterian/Reformed House of Studies serves as an umbrella of support for students in the Reformed tradition at Duke Divinity School, including members of the PC(USA), PCA, UCC, RCA, and CRC denominations. The unique role of the The Presbyterian/Reformed House of Studies is to nurture the Reformed Christian community at the school by supporting and nurturing students as persons, pastors, and leaders in the life of the Reformed Christian tradition. The house holds regular gatherings to reflect theologically on Christian life and ministry, conducts spiritual formation retreats, cosponsors the annual McPherson Lectureship with the First Presbyterian Church in Durham, North Carolina, and celebrates student academic achievement at the annual Allen Verhey Memorial Student Colloquium.

The Office of Black Church Studies assists the theological formation of seminarians by supporting the work of the faculty, especially those teaching and administering courses in black church studies; counseling black seminarians and prospective students; providing educational opportunities through events, lectures, and domestic and international field education. It also helps students of African descent gain the greatest value from their theological formation, while supporting all students in deepening communion across racial and cultural boundaries.

• The Black Seminarians Union works closely with the Office of Black Church Studies in supporting the academic formation and social concerns of black seminarians. It works to highlight the significant contributions of the black church in the Divinity School community.

• Lecture Series. The fall and spring preaching and lecture series provide frequent opportunities to hear outstanding black scholars and preachers at the Divinity School.

• The Gardner C. Taylor Lecture Series, Pauli Murray/Nannie Helen Burroughs Lecture on Women and Religion, and the Martin Luther King Jr. Lecture Series are sponsored by the Office of Black Church Studies in conjunction with the Black Seminarians Union. These lectures expose seminarians, faculty, staff, alumni, and local congregations to the nation's most outstanding African American scholars and preachers.

Duke Divinity Pentecostals and Charismatics seek to create a community for students identifying with Pen-tecostalism, and promote and advocate for Pentecostals and Charismatics within the student body.

Centers, Initiatives and Programs for Student Formation

The Center for Reconciliation aims to form students into transformative Christian leaders who are equipped for the mission of reconciliation in the church, academy, and world through connecting to and building on Duke Divinity School’s programs of teaching and learning

The Center for Studies in the Wesleyan Tradition was founded in 1979 and has come to stand at the heart of the mission of Duke Divinity School. The center is focused on staffing, supervising, and enriching the curricular and extracurricular offerings in Methodist and Wesleyan Studies; developing and supporting significant educational outreach programs designed for the school’s United Methodist constituencies and beyond; developing and providing access to outstanding research resources for students and scholars of the broad Wesleyan tradition around the globe; and supporting the production of critical editions of the texts of John and Charles Wesley in print and online formats.

The Center for Theological Writing helps students in the Divinity School write theology well. It administers a general writing assessment for entering students, provides individual diagnostic sessions and feedback, and offers tutoring services throughout the academic year. In addition, workshops are regularly scheduled to complement many of the school’s core courses in order to help students write in a specific area—church history, Bible, etc.—and in a particular style.

Duke Initiatives in Theology and the Arts (DITA) promotes a vibrant engagement of Christian theology and the arts at Duke Divinity School and beyond through an integrated program of teaching, research, and artistic engagement.
The Theology, Medicine, and Culture (TMC) initiative creates opportunities for students, clergy, and health care practitioners to reimagine and reengage contemporary practices of health care in light of Christian tradition and the practices of Christian communities.

Thriving Rural Communities (TRC) initiative works to share and strengthen the gifts of rural North Carolina's clergy, congregations, communities, and creation in the name of Christ. TRC is a partnership of Duke Divinity School, The Duke Endowment, the North Carolina Conference of the United Methodist Church, and the Western North Carolina Conference of the United Methodist Church. It also is a part of Leadership Education at Duke Divinity.

The Friendship House program is a residential ministerial formation opportunity in which Duke Divinity School students and persons with intellectual and developmental disabilities live together in community. The Office of Ministerial Formation at the school operates the program in which three students share a four-bedroom apartment with one person with an intellectual or developmental disability. Students gain through lived experience a deeper understanding of the image of God in persons, a broader understanding of belonging, increased empathetic capacity, and an enlarged picture of the Kingdom of God. Students quickly learn that persons with disabilities are “differently-abled” and have gifts to contribute to any community, especially the church.

Student Life Organizations, Activities, Committees, and Information

Duke Divinity School's community life is enriched by a variety of ongoing and special events planned and coordinated by the Office of Student and Community Life in vibrant partnership with students, faculty, and staff. Offerings have included sports events, fellowship meals, exhibitions, “spirit” days, along with workshops, brown-bag discussions, and opportunities for community learning and service. The following list represents both long-standing and recent student initiatives. Denominationally affiliated student initiatives are listed under the Ministerial Formation section.

Student Life Organizations

For more information about the organizations listed below, including current student leadership, contact the Office of Student and Community Life at (919) 660-3548 unless otherwise noted.

The Divinity Student Council (DSC) is made up of all students in Duke Divinity School. The council's purpose is to help build and sustain Christian community among the student body by serving as a means of communication for events and activities sponsored by various official student organizations. Student organizations and committees are established to provide opportunities to express and share in personal, professional, and spiritual development. DSC serves group needs by publicizing events and activities, listening to and responding to the needs of the Divinity School community, faithfully discerning how those needs may best be met, and representing the needs and concerns of the student body to the school administration.

The Asian Theology Group engages theologically with the unique questions that arise within the Asian and Asian American expressions of the Christian tradition. The group also seeks to show hospitality to international Asian students and Asian American students in their transition to a new location and culture. Activities sponsored by this group include guest lectures for school-wide events, reading groups, and monthly potluck dinners.

Basin and Towel offers the community opportunities to participate in educational programs, spiritual/theological reflection, and outreach and service focused on the scriptural call to social justice and compassion.

The Black Seminarians Union seeks to ensure the development of a theological perspective commensurate with the Gospel of Jesus Christ and relevant to the needs of black seminarians and the black church. Its goal is to improve the quality of life theologically, academically, spiritually, politically, and socially for the entire Duke Divinity School community.

Creation Matters aims to inspire students, faculty, staff, and all Christians to recognize their interdependence with all God's creation, to support biblical and theological reflection on God's redemptive activity in and for creation, to engage in lifestyles of service and care in response to God's call to till and keep their “garden” homes, and to empower Christians to take practical steps to reorder and restore humanity’s broken relationships to creation and the Creator.
The Divinity Spouses Group provides social, spiritual, and educational activities for married students and their spouses with the aim of helping spouses know that they are also important, contributing, and welcomed members of the Divinity School community.

The Divinity Student Pastor Spouse Group provides social, spiritual, and educational activities for the spouses and families of students serving in student pastor appointments.

Global Fellowship is a group for international students and students with interest in international study and mission that meets for fellowship, and to discuss experiences and issues. It aims to partner with international friends in ministry and to advocate for justice issues throughout the world.

HOLD (Helping Others—and Ourselves—in Life and Death) fosters opportunities for discussion, education, and reflection on end-of-life issues. It works both within and beyond the student body to connect students with experiences for further learning and serving in end-of-life situations.

Duke Divinity Veterans Partnership cultivates conversations with students, staff, and faculty to advance the interests of prospective, current, and former service members in the church, world, and academy. Its primary aim is to develop a pastoral response to the problems of war and peace based on a fundamental conviction that God directs people toward peaceful resolution of conflict.

Manos Unidas, or “United Hands,” is a student group that nurtures the body of Christ by uniting in service and facilitating opportunities for ministry and conversation focused on Hispanic and other ethnic groups within the Duke Divinity School body and greater Durham community. Specifically, this student group seeks to raise the Divinity School community’s consciousness of the relevance of Latina/Latino congregations in America by planning bilingual, diverse worship and prayer experiences, and providing learning opportunities through the sharing of food, music, and culture.

New Creation Arts fosters creative, theological, and liturgical engagement with the arts at Duke Divinity School and the surrounding and global community. It does this through regular art exhibits in the school, including an annual, themed juried arts exhibit; a regular concert series showcasing local singer-songwriters; fellowship activities; and lending support to other groups hosting arts-related events.

The Sacred Dance Group is composed of students who participate in the leadership of community worship through the expression of dance. (Contact the Office of the Chaplain at (919) 660-3459 for current student leadership.)

Sacred Worth aims to serve the Divinity School community by increasing awareness of lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgender people in the church. All members of the community are invited to participate, and the group seeks to promote understanding about homosexuality in the church through various opportunities for discussion and dialogue.

STAR (Students Thinking Theologically about Reconciliation) is committed to creating a space for students to openly share their questions about reconciliation in the context of theological education, ministerial preparation, and spiritual formation. The group cultivates a community that explores what reconciliation is and how all might be a part of it through intimate conversation with one another and with the Triune God.

The Student Pastors’ Association provides an opportunity for students actively serving their denominations in an ordained or lay capacity to meet, to share, to plan, and to act on their common needs and concerns.

The Women’s Center serves the entire Divinity School community through a focus on the special needs and contributions of women in ministry and in and to the church and society. The office, coordinated by two students, is a resource center for the whole community, in addition to a support and action center for women in particular.

Duke Divinity Pentecostals and Charismatics seeks to create a community for students identifying with Pentecostalism, and promotes and advocates for Pentecostals and Charismatics within the student body.

Duke University Student Life Organizations

The Graduate and Professional Student Council advocates for the interests and needs of graduate and professional students at Duke University. Divinity students who are interested are encouraged to participate in this council. For more information, see the Duke Graduate and Professional Student Council website. For general information about Duke University graduate and professional student life, see The Graduate School website.

The Black Graduate and Professional Student Association (BGPSA) represents all minority graduate and professional students on the Duke University campus. The association’s primary mission is to enhance the Duke experience for its members through community service, social, and academically-based programming events. As an umbrella organization, the association welcomes students from groups including the: Black & Latino MBA Organization, Black Law Students Association, Black Seminarians Union, Bouchet Society, Hurston-James Society, and Student National Medical Association. Through its academic forums, luncheons, community service initiatives, social events, and recognition ceremony the group hopes to assist in the development of future minority leadership in the Duke community and in the world.

Student Life Activities

AXE of the Apostles is the improvisational comedy troupe of Duke Divinity School, making the school’s students, faculty, and staff laugh since 2008. It is made up of performers of all levels of experience who meet weekly to rehearse and have fun. The troupe performs at the Divinity School “Live at the Lampstand” talent show and other school events, as well as undergraduate residence halls at the request of graduate residents. AXE of the Apostles seeks to be an affirming, welcoming community celebrating God’s gifts of laughter, humor, and creativity that is open to all interested students. Contact axeoftheapostles@gmail.com for rehearsal information.

Broadway Revue is an annual Duke Divinity School production of popular Broadway musicals featuring music and dancing, produced by Divinity School students, and performed by students, faculty, and staff. This major fundraiser provides financial support for selected community service organizations.

Divinity Choirs. Membership in the Divinity Choir, Gospel Choir, and Chapel Band is open to all qualified students. The choirs rehearse once a week and sing regularly for weekday worship and at special seasonal programs and services. New members are chosen by informal auditions that are arranged for all who are interested. (Contact the Office of the Chaplain at (919) 660-3459 for current student leadership.)

Live at the Lampstand takes its cue from Matthew 5:15: “No one after lighting a lamp puts it under the bushel basket, but on the lampstand, and it gives light to all in the house.” This monthly lunch event showcases the wealth of gifts and talents of the entire Duke Divinity School community. Live offerings by faculty, staff, and students include vocal and instrumental pieces, original poetry and short story readings, dance, comedy, paintings, skits, etc. Lampstand is a popular and inspiring event that helps strengthen relationships, and spreads joy and appreciation among all members of the community.

Project BRI(DDD)GE (Building Relationships In Durham through Duke Divinity Graduate Education) is a week-long program for entering MDiv and MTS students that fosters Christian community, outreach, and service within the Durham, North Carolina, community. BRI(DDD)GE is held the week before entering student orientation in August. Selected entering students, along with returning student leaders, participate with organizations such as Urban Ministries of Durham, Habitat for Humanity, the Interfaith Hospitality Network, Duke Homestead, Hayti Heritage Center, and Reality Ministries in a faithful response to the needs of God’s people in the Durham area. Theological reflection on these experiences and immersion in the history and current life of Durham are also important components of this program. Applications are automatically mailed to Duke MDiv and MTS entering students in May prior to matriculation in August and are also available on the Divinity School website.

Student Life Committees

Faculty Committees. The student body is also represented on various faculty committees. Students serve with faculty and administration on the admissions, faculty search, worship, fine arts, curriculum, and other committees as appointed by the dean.

The Fellowship Committee plans community-wide events for students and faculty and their families. The activities include social gatherings during orientation, meals, and parties at holiday times, and fellowship times throughout the school terms. Members of this team provide leadership to Live at the Lampstand, a popular monthly event through which students, faculty, and staff share their various musical and artistic talents with the entire community.

Student Life Information

Duke Student E-mail Accounts

Duke University recognizes and utilizes electronic mail as a medium for official communications. The university provides all students with e-mail accounts as well as access to e-mail services from public clusters if students do not have personal computers of their own. All students are expected to access their e-mail accounts on a regular basis to check for and respond as necessary to such communications, just as they currently do with paper/postal service mail.
Duke Divinity School official communications (e.g., financial aid, field education, student life, academic programs, and bursar’s office) will be e-mailed only to the student’s Duke e-mail account. Each student is accountable to this information, which is important and usually time-sensitive. Therefore, the student is responsible for regularly accessing the Duke e-mail account while attending Duke Divinity School.

Living Accommodations

Off-Campus Housing

The majority of Divinity School students live in off-campus apartment complexes because of their proximity to the school and competitive rental rates. Off-campus rental properties are not inspected or approved by Duke University, nor does the university or its agents negotiate with owners for students. For assistance with off-campus housing options for graduate and professional students, contact Duke Housing, Dining & Residence Life at (919) 684-4304 or visit the website: http://studentaffairs.duke.edu/forms/chouse/search.php. For assistance with Divinity School roommates, contact the Office of Admissions at the Divinity School.

The Friendship House program is a residential ministerial formation opportunity in which Duke Divinity School students and people with intellectual and developmental disabilities live together in community. The Office of Ministerial Formation at the school operates the program in which three students share a four-bedroom apartment with one person with a disability. (See more information in the Centers, Initiatives and Programs for Student Formation section.)

On-Campus Housing

Limited on-campus housing is available for single and married (with or without children) graduate students at Central Campus Apartments and Townhouse Apartments. Students currently living in Central Campus who wish to return the next academic year receive first priority. Secondly, in recognition of the unique challenges that face entering international students, priority for assignment to graduate student housing will then be awarded to those students who arrive from abroad on student visa status. Applications received from domestic students prior to May 1 will be wait-listed. After May 1, space that has not yet been assigned to returning and international students will be made available to domestic students in the order in which applications were received. All students who request university housing are strongly encouraged to apply early. For more information, contact Duke Housing, Dining & Residence Life, 218 Alexander Ave., Durham, North Carolina 27705, (919) 684-4304 or visit http://studentaffairs.duke.edu/hdrl/graduate-professional-students/graduate-living-campus.

Students with disabilities who wish to explore the possibility of reasonable accommodations in on-campus housing should contact the Office of Services for Students with Disabilities at (919) 668-1267.

Residential Advisor On-Campus Housing

On-campus housing is available to graduate students who serve in residential advisor (RA) positions. This program includes free room and a stipend. Many Duke Divinity School students find this a helpful way to finance their theological education and to get involved in the larger university community. Students interested in serving as residential advisors should contact Duke Housing, Dining & Residence Life at 218 Alexander Ave., Duke University Box 90451, Durham, North Carolina 27708-0451, by calling (919) 684-4304 or visiting its website. Residential advisor applications are normally due the last week in January, and advisors are selected in March for the following academic year. However, interested students admitted to the Divinity School after March should contact the residential life office in case openings are still available.

Dining Services

Dining facilities with Duke Housing, Dining & Residence Life office accepts points, flex, and cash for payment and are located throughout the Duke campus. More information about the specific dining units is available by visiting the dining services website at www.dining.duke.edu or by contacting the dining services administrative office at (919) 660-3900.

Divinity Café

The Divinity Café is a green café located in the refectory of the Divinity School that serves hot, healthy, and homemade meals. Food is fresh from local farms and businesses, and provides the ingredients for serving conventional, vegetarian, organic, and vegan diners. The café is focused on economic, environmental, and social sustainability. It has become a favorite eating establishment for Divinity School and university patrons, as well as a place for students to relax, snack, study, eat, and fellowship throughout the day.
Family Support Resources

Duke University’s Staff and Family Programs in the Office of Human Resources has a website to assist interested persons in choosing quality child care or early education programs in the Durham area. This office also offers information and consultation on many family and work issues, including elder care, baby sitters, nanny agencies and services, summer camps and programs, a lending library, and a directory of classes on parenting. For more information, visit http://www.hr.duke.edu/benefits/family/care/dccp/index.php. Duke has an on-campus child care facility and also has partnered with the Child Care Services Association in order that Duke faculty, staff, and students will receive priority for vacant spaces at several area child care centers. For more information about this Duke Child Care Partnership, visit the Duke Human Resources website at http://www.hr.duke.edu/benefits/family/care/dccp/.

Student Health

The university health service provides medical care and health advice necessary to help students enjoy university life and community.

Student Health Center

The Student Health Center provides primary and on-site urgent care. It is located on Flowers Drive. Emergency transportation, if required, can be obtained from the Duke campus police. Residential staff personnel or Divinity School administrators should be consulted whenever possible for assistance in obtaining emergency treatment.

The facilities of the university health service clinic are available during both regular and summer sessions to all currently enrolled full-time and part-time degree students. The facilities of the university infirmary are available during the regular sessions, from the opening of the university in the fall until graduation day in the spring, to all currently enrolled full-time and part-time degree students. All currently enrolled full-time and part-time degree candidates are assessed a mandatory student health fee each semester. In the 2016-2017 academic year, the fee will be $386 per semester. Nondegree students are not assessed the fee. For more information on the student health fee, visit http://www.studentaffairs.duke.edu/studenthealth.

Student Insurance

Student insurance provides coverage for most specialists, emergency room, off-site urgent care, and major medical expenses. The university makes available both a single student health insurance plan and a family plan. For the 2016-2017 insurance rates, visit http://studentaffairs.duke.edu/studenthealth/health-insurance (all fees and rates are subject to change). Each full- or part-time degree student must purchase this student insurance or complete the waiver statement indicating that he or she is covered by other generally comparable insurance. The family insurance plan also covers primary health care for the family at Duke health care facilities at 80 percent of the usual, customary, and reasonable allowance after the deductible has been satisfied.

Students with Disabilities

Duke University and the Divinity School are committed to equality of educational opportunities for qualified students with disabilities in compliance with Section 504 of the Federal Rehabilitation Act of 1973 and the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990. A student seeking information regarding documentation guidelines and procedures for receiving consideration for reasonable accommodations should contact the University’s Office of Services for Students with Disabilities. Students with disabilities who wish to explore the possibility of reasonable accommodations in on-campus housing should also contact the office. Call (919) 668-1267 or visit the office’s website at http://www.access.duke.edu. The Divinity School's disabilities services liaison is the school's registrar in the Office of Academic Affairs.

Counseling and Psychological Services

Counseling and Psychological Services (CAPS) is a component of student services that provides a coordinated, comprehensive range of counseling and developmental services to assist and promote the personal growth of Duke students. The professional staff is composed of psychologists, clinical social workers, and psychiatrists experienced in working with students of all ages. They are also available to the entire university community for consultation, educational activities in student development, and mental health issues affecting not only individual students but the campus community as a whole.

CAPS maintains a policy of strict confidentiality concerning information about each student's contact with the CAPS staff. There are no charges for initial evaluation, brief counseling/psychotherapy, or self-development seminars. Appointments may be made by calling (919) 660-1000, coming by the office in 214 Page Building, West Campus, between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. If a student’s concern needs immediate attention that should be made known to the receptionist, and every effort will be made to arrange for the student to talk with a staff member at the earliest possible time. For more information, visit http://studentaffairs.duke.edu/caps.

Sexual Assault Support Services

Located in the Duke Women’s Center, the Office of Gender Violence Prevention and Intervention offers advocacy, support, information resources in the university, and a crisis information and referral line (919) 681-6882 for victims of sexual assault and past sexual violence. The office offers support groups for survivors and their friends or partners, as well as ongoing educational programs to alert students to problems of interpersonal violence. For more information, call the Duke Women’s Center at (919) 684-3897 or visit http://studentaffairs.duke.edu/wc/gender-violence.

Harassment and Discrimination Policy

Nondiscrimination Statement: Duke University is committed to encouraging and sustaining a learning and work community that is free from prohibited discrimination and harassment. The university prohibits discrimination and harassment on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, disability, veteran status, sexual orientation, gender identity, sex, genetic information, or age in the administration of its educational policies, admission policies, financial aid, employment, or any other university program or activity. The university also makes good faith efforts to recruit, employ, and promote qualified minorities, women, individuals with disabilities, and veterans. It admits qualified students to all the rights, privileges, programs, and activities generally accorded or made available to students. Duke University has designated Dr. Benjamin D. Reese, vice-president for institutional equity, as the individual responsible for the coordination and administration of its nondiscrimination and harassment policies generally. The Office for Institutional Equity is located in Smith Warehouse, 114 S. Buchanan Blvd., Bay 8, Durham, North Carolina 27708. It can be contacted at (919) 684-8222 or at ben.reese@duke.edu.

The university also does not tolerate harassment of any kind. Sexual harassment and sexual misconduct are forms of sex discrimination and prohibited by the university. Duke University has designated Howard Kallem as its director of Title IX compliance and Age Discrimination Act coordinator. He is also with the Office for Institutional Equity and can be contacted at (919) 684-1437 or howard.kallem@duke.edu.

Questions or comments about discrimination, harassment, domestic violence, dating violence, and stalking can be directed to the Office for Institutional Equity, (919) 684-8222. Questions or comments about sex-based and sexual harassment, domestic violence, dating violence, and stalking committed by a student can be directed to the Office of Student Conduct at (919) 684-6938. Additional information, including the complete text of the university’s discrimination and harassment policies and appropriate complaint procedures, may be found by contacting the Office for Institutional Equity or the Office of Student Conduct.

For further information on notice of nondiscrimination, contact the appropriate federal office by visiting http://wdcrbcolp01.ed.gov/CFAPPS/OCR/contactus.cfm for the address and phone number of the office that serves your area, or call 1 (800) 421-3481.

Note: Any university employee—as well as any student who serves in an ongoing peer-advising role—informed of an allegation of sexual misconduct involving a student is expected to notify the Office of Student Conduct with the names of the parties involved and the details of the report shared with him/her. University employees who serve in a professional role in which communication is privileged under North Carolina law (e.g., medical providers, therapists, licensed rape crisis counselors, clergy) are not bound by this expectation, except as required by law.

Alcohol Policy

See Appendix III. Alcohol to view the Duke University and the Duke Divinity School alcohol policies. Events officially sponsored by the Divinity Student Council and Duke Divinity School student organizations do not include the provision and consumption of alcohol.

Motor Vehicle Registration

Students possessing or maintaining a motor vehicle at Duke University must register it at the beginning of the academic year for purposes of parking. If a motor vehicle is acquired and maintained/parked after academic registration, it must be registered within five calendar days after operation on the campus begins.

Students may register vehicles at University Parking Services (2010 Campus Drive), the Customer Service Center, Room 04230 in Duke Clinic, next to the Duke University Medical Center Bookstore, or by visiting the parking services website at http://parking.duke.edu. This site also has information about transit services on campus. At the time of registration the student will need license plate number, Social Security number, local address, phone number, and year/make/color of motor vehicle. The fee can be paid by check, cash, or credit card. For more information call (919) 684-7275.

Campus Security

The Duke University Police Department provides comprehensive law enforcement and security services to all components of Duke University. Under the federal Campus Security Act (20 USC 1092f), prospective students may obtain a copy of the university’s annual security report by visiting the Duke University Police Department at 502 Oregon St., Durham, North Carolina 27708 or by calling (919) 684-3350. They may also visit the Duke police website at www.duke.edu/police. This report includes campus crime statistics, and the university’s safety and security policies. For emergencies, dial 9-1-1. For nonemergencies, dial (919) 684-2444.

Cultural Resources

Duke Divinity School students enjoy access to the many resources of the university community, particularly in the area of the performing arts. Two active campus film societies sponsor screenings of major motion pictures on Saturday and Sunday evenings. Other films of a classical nature and free films for children also are scheduled. Opportunities in music, dance, and drama are provided by the following: the Duke Artists Series, Broadway at Duke, the Chamber Arts Society, Hoof’n Horn, the Duke University Collegium Musicum, Duke Players, Duke Dance, the Duke University Symphony Orchestra and the Wind Symphony, the Duke University Jazz Ensemble, the Ciompi Quartet, Dance Black, and the Modern Black Mass Choir, among others. The Nasher Museum of Art, which opened in 2005, is a major center for the arts on campus and in the Triangle area. It offers leading-edge art exhibitions and dynamic programs including performing arts events, lectures, film series, and social gatherings. Admission is free to Duke University students, faculty, and staff with a valid ID and Durham residents with valid proof of residency.

Athletic Programs

In addition to unrestricted access to all university athletic and recreational facilities, Divinity School students enjoy other benefits from Duke’s commitment to college athletics. The university is a member of the Atlantic Coast Conference of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, and offers intercollegiate competition in a variety of sports. Admission to all intercollegiate athletic events except men’s basketball is free to graduate and professional students using their university ID cards. Season tickets to men’s basketball games are subject to a camp-out and lottery system operated by the Graduate and Professional Student Council. The university supports a strong intramural program in which the Divinity School participates enthusiastically. In recent seasons the school has fielded teams in football; men’s, women’s, and corecreational basketball; volleyball; soccer; and softball.

Student Conduct Policy

Duke University is a community of scholars and learners, committed to the principles of honesty, trustworthiness, fairness, and respect for others. Students share with faculty and staff the responsibility for promoting a climate of integrity. As citizens of this community, students are expected to adhere to these fundamental values at all times, in both their academic and nonacademic endeavors.

To uphold the Duke Community Standard:

- I will not lie, cheat or steal in my academic endeavors;
- I will conduct myself honorably in all my endeavors; and
- I will act if the Duke Community Standard is compromised.

Conduct Covenant: Duke Divinity School

We, the faculty and students in the Divinity School of Duke University, make covenant, individually and corporately, to uphold the highest standards of personal and academic integrity. This includes, but is not limited to, never

---

1. Duke Divinity School is a Christian community shaped by the Gospel of Jesus Christ. While we do not expect members of other faith traditions to share the theological framework out of which this covenant was developed, we welcome into our community anyone who is willing to live and work under the standards of conduct specified herein.
lying, cheating, stealing, causing harm to self or others, or defacing property. Set aside by our calling, we hold ourselves and each other to the highest standards of conduct.

As a divinity school committed to forming and educating people for the ministry of Jesus Christ, we covenant together to embody truth in every aspect of our lives, including our academic work. In joyful obedience to Christ, we gratefully involve our bodies, minds, and spirits in this community of discipline and love, recognizing that we are a people called to worship God by the Spirit of truth.

For more information on the Conduct Covenant and judicial procedures, see Appendix II. Conduct Covenant and Judicial Procedures.

a.Tuition and fee rates listed are estimated for 2016-2017 and subject to change.

All degree seeking students are liable for tuition, fees, and all other costs and regulations for the degrees. ThM students are not ordinarily eligible for institutional financial aid, although they may qualify for federal loans and federal work study.

Special Students

A special student is one who is enrolled for academic credit, but who is not a candidate for a degree at that time. No financial aid is available.

International Students

All entering international students must submit the full amount of the first year’s tuition to Duke Divinity School financial aid office by no later than June 1 for fall enrollment (See further details in the bulletin section Policies and Procedures for International Applicants). All returning international students are required to make an appointment with the financial aid office prior to June 1 to review funding sources for the upcoming academic year (including field education grants, outside resources, scholarships, and other employment). If there are funding concerns, the international office will help the student explore work authorization and visa options.

Audit Fee

Anyone seeking to audit a course in the Divinity School must, with the consent of the instructor concerned, secure permission from the Office of Academic Affairs. A fee of $600 per course will be charged to all auditors who are not enrolled as full-time students.
Late Registration Fee

Continuing students who fail to register during the registration period must pay a fee of $50 to the bursar.

Course Continuation Fee

In instances where a student has registered for but not completed all the courses or requirements for his or her program, a $625 per semester fee is required. The student must also register for the continuation course (Continuation - Divinity 1).

ThD Continuation Fee. ThD students who have completed coursework will need to register for the continuation course (Continuation - Divinity section 2) for the fall and spring semester. For the 2016-2017 academic year, the ThD continuation fee is $2,800 per semester.

Estimated Total Costs

The total estimated cost for nine months (including tuition, all applicable fees, books, room, board, and other living expenses) for a student to attend Duke Divinity School varies according to individual tastes and requirements, and is estimated to be between $26,404 to $61,949 depending upon the degree program.

Housing Fees

A shared apartment in an off-campus, privately owned apartment complex averages $637-$866 per person per month in rent and utilities. Rates for Central Campus Apartments will be quoted to applying students upon request to the manager of apartments and property. Refunds on housing fees will be made in accordance with the established schedules of the university.

Athletic Fee

Divinity School students may secure admission to all regularly scheduled university athletic contests (except men’s varsity basketball games) held on the university grounds during the entire academic year simply by presenting the student identification card. Season tickets to the men’s varsity basketball games are secured through a lottery system.

Motor Vehicle Registration Fee

See specific information on the motor vehicle registration fee in the Community and Student Life chapter of the bulletin or visit http://parking.duke.edu.

Payment and Penalty

Invoices for tuition, fees, and other charges are delivered to students electronically on ACES — students will not receive a copy via US Mail—and are payable by the invoice due date. ACES is an online system to view student accounts, financial aid, and personal data, and to register for classes. As a part of the agreement of admission to Duke University, a student is required to pay all invoices as presented. If full payment is not received, a late payment charge as described below will be assessed on the next invoice and certain restrictions as stated below will be applied. A monthly tuition payment plan is available through Tuition Management Systems. For more information on this plan, call (800) 722-4867 or visit www.afford.com/duke. If payment in the amount of the total amount due on the student invoice is not received by the invoice due date, a late payment penalty charge will be accrued from the billing date of the invoice. The penalty charge will be at a rate of 1.25 percent per month (16 percent per annum) applied to the past due balance on the student invoice. The past due balance is defined as the previous balance less any payments and credits received during the current month and also any student loan memo credits, related to the previous balance, which appear on the invoice.

An individual will be in default of this agreement if the total amount due on the student invoice is not paid in full by the invoice due date. An individual who is in default will not be allowed to register for classes, receive a transcript of academic records, have academic credits certified, be granted a leave of absence, or receive a diploma at graduation. In addition, an individual in default may be subject to withdrawal from school.

Refunds of tuition and fees are governed by the following policy:

• In the event of death, a full tuition and fees refund will be granted; and
• In all other cases of withdrawal from school, tuition will be refunded according to the following schedule:
  • Withdrawal before the opening of classes—a full refund; withdrawal during the first or second week—80 percent; withdrawal during the third through fifth week—60 percent; withdrawal during the sixth week—20 percent; withdrawal after the sixth week—no refund. No refund will be granted for reduction in course load after the Drop/Add period.
Tuition or other charges paid from grants or loans will be restored to those funds on the same pro rata basis and will be refunded to the student or carried forward.

These regulations apply to all Duke Divinity School students: degree candidates, special students, and auditors.

Debts

No records are released, and no students are considered by the faculty as candidates for graduation, until they have settled with the bursar for all indebtedness. Bills may be sent to parents or guardians provided the bursar has been requested in writing to do so. Failure to pay all university charges on or before the times specified by the university for the semester will bar the student from class attendance until the account is settled in full.

Financial Aid on Student Bills

Financial aid awards will appear as anticipated aid on a student’s billing statement once a student has accepted his or her financial aid awards. A student billing statement will include anticipated financial aid transactions when calculating the amount the student needs to pay.

Financial aid is credited to a student’s account ten days before the start of each term. Disbursement of a student’s awards will occur once the student has completed all required applications and provided all required documentation and information. Students may check the status of their financial aid awards on ACES.

Tuition Structure

- The MDiv degree is presumed to be a three-year, six-semester program; the MTS degree is a two-year, four-semester program, based on students taking four courses per semester.
- For full-time students, tuition is charged on a per-semester basis and is not affected by the number of courses taken.
- Students may take a reduced load of three courses per semester and remain full time. A merit scholarship student is required to take four courses to remain eligible for a merit scholarship. In special circumstances, students may take five courses per semester, but this is considered an overload and requires permission of the associate dean for academic programs.
- Because student pastors are required to take three courses per semester their program takes four years to complete. Therefore, they will receive tuition grants to ensure that the overall costs of their four-year MDiv degree will be the same as the cost of the three-year program.
- Students placed on a limited program by the Academic Policies Committee will receive tuition grants so that they are not financially penalized by the required reduction in the number of classes they take.
- Students taking one or two courses per semester are considered part-time and will be charged a per-course tuition rate that will be equivalent to one-fourth the per-semester tuition amount plus a 10 percent registration fee. Part-time students are not eligible for merit scholarships or institutional aid.
- Divinity School scholarship awards are calculated as a percentage of overall tuition.

Student Financial Aid

A student should select a school on the basis of educational opportunity. At the same time, financial consideration will be a legitimate and often pressing concern. Each student should formulate at least a tentative plan for financing the entire seminary education. Although the exact method of financing the full theological degree may not be assured at the beginning, a student should have a clear understanding of the expenses and available sources of income for the first year and the assurance that there exist ways of financing subsequent years. As Duke Divinity School seeks to handle its financial resources with a view toward Christian charity and stewardship, the school expects responsibility and integrity of students befitting their Christian commitment. While the financial aid office is willing to aid students with financial counsel, the student and the student’s family will bear a significant share of the educational expenses. In addition to personal and family resources, earnings, and loans, a student may seek financial assistance from his or her local church, civic groups, and foundations. The Divinity School financial aid may include scholarships, grants, field education grants, employment, or loans. Students should plan a financial program that incurs as little indebtedness as possible.

Most Duke Divinity School students receive some form of financial assistance, and students need to be mindful that such aid is a privilege to be enjoyed thanks to the many benefactors who have graciously given funds to the school. The total amount of aid available through the Divinity School is limited. Further, the conditions set forth by the individual or institutional donors determine the circumstances under which the grants can be made. Almost without exception, the donors require ecclesiastical endorsement and/or declaration of ministerial vocational aim.

In the interest of providing reasonable accommodations under the Americans with Disabilities Act, the Divinity School will permit students with appropriately documented disabilities that prevent them from carrying a full course load (minimally three courses per semester) to enroll in either one or two courses per semester and retain eligibility for Divinity School financial assistance. Such accommodation will be authorized by the registrar. Contested decisions regarding this accommodation may be brought before the Financial Aid Appeals Committee. Students so authorized are free to reduce their course load accordingly while maintaining Divinity School aid and, where applicable and permitted other forms of financial assistance. Students so authorized to enroll less than full time and retain eligibility for Divinity School financial aid are expected to return to full-time enrollment if and/or when their medical condition improves sufficiently to permit it.

Students who have questions about Duke Divinity School’s response to their financial aid request should first contact the Financial Aid Office. Where desired, students may file an appeals form for full review by the Financial Aid Appeals Committee.

Ministerial Tuition Scholarships

Ministerial tuition scholarships are offered for MDiv students, ranging up to 33 percent of tuition in the first year and 22 percent of tuition in succeeding years. Ministerial tuition scholarships ranging up to 22 percent of tuition per year are awarded to MTS students in the first and second years of study. Students enrolled in dual or joint degree programs are offered ministerial tuition scholarships ranging from 22 (JD/MTS) to 25 percent (MDiv/MSW) per year. MACS students receive 20 percent ministerial tuition scholarships, while MACP and DMin students receive 25 percent ministerial tuition scholarships. Because of the purpose of and educational objectives of the school, resources for ministerial tuition scholarships are primarily available to students with declared aims leading to ordination or recognized lay ministries.

The principles regarding the disbursement of institutional scholarships are:
\begin{itemize}
  \item In order to receive ministerial tuition scholarships from the Divinity School, a student must be enrolled full time and maintain an overall academic average of 2.0 or higher.
  \item Ministerial tuition scholarships will be made within the limits of the conditions set forth governing each source.
  \item Financial aid awards are made on an academic-year basis. The assistance may consist of ministerial tuition scholarships, field education grants, employment, and loans. A new Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) must be filed each year.
  \item Ministerial tuition scholarship awards are greater for the first year of study to assist students in the MDiv degree programs (excluding dual and joint degree programs) as much as possible through their transitional first year at Duke. Consequently, scholarships for the second and third years of study for those students will be less than those awarded for the critical first year.
  \item Ordinarily, ministerial tuition scholarships are not extended beyond six semesters.
  \item Financial aid resources for MTS, MACP, DMin, and ThD students are limited. Candidates are encouraged to apply early.
  \item Special students and ThM students (with the exception of one international scholar annually) are not eligible for any form of financial assistance from the Divinity School. ThM and ThD students are eligible to apply for denominational assistance, federal loans, and federal work study.
\end{itemize}

Merit Scholarship Program

A limited number of merit scholarships are available to encourage qualified students to pursue their preparation for the Christian ministry. Scholarships are not deferrable. Students applying for admission to the MDiv and MTS degree programs are automatically considered for merit scholarships. Merit scholarships are awarded for August admission on the basis of merit and require full-time enrollment (four courses per term). To retain scholarships, students must maintain satisfactory academic progress as defined in this section. To receive federal Title IV financial aid, federal student loans and federal work study, students are required to be enrolled for a minimum of six credit hours per term or three courses.
Satisfactory Academic Progress for Students with Merit Scholarships

• If a scholarship student’s GPA declines over two consecutive semesters but remains above the 3.0 GPA threshold, a consultation with the academic dean and associate dean for student services will be required.
• If a scholarship student’s cumulative GPA at the end of each academic year (August to May) falls in the range from 2.5 to under 3.0, the student will be placed on scholarship probation for the first semester of the next academic year.
• Students on probation must inform and receive approval from the academic dean regarding courses registered for during the probationary semester; such students will be required to follow the paradigm.
• The student’s cumulative GPA must be above the 3.0 threshold at the end of the probationary semester; if not, the student forfeits the scholarship. If the cumulative GPA exceeds the 3.0 threshold following the probationary semester, the student retains the scholarship.
• Only one probationary semester is granted during a student’s tenure at the Divinity School. Consequently, if the cumulative GPA of a scholarship student who has already been on probation falls below 3.0 a second time, the student must forfeit the scholarship.
• A scholarship student whose cumulative GPA at the end of each academic year (August to May) falls below 2.5 automatically forfeits the scholarship with no probationary period allowed.
• Academic misconduct (cheating, plagiarism, etc.) may result in scholarship forfeiture.

Divinity Fellowships

Divinity Fellowships, ranging up to 100 percent of tuition per year, are awarded to entering MDiv students. To be considered, students must have a minimum cumulative 3.5 GPA from their undergraduate or graduate program and have started the candidacy process for ordination in the United Methodist Church or the process that leads to ordination in another denomination. Recipients must enroll in four courses per semester.

Divinity Rural Fellowships

Divinity Rural Fellowships, ranging up to 100 percent of tuition per year, are awarded to students from Western North Carolina and North Carolina annual conferences of the United Methodist Church who exhibit a calling and passion for leadership in rural North Carolina. Rural ministry fellows are appointed to serve a ten-week summer field education placement in a Duke partner congregation serving rural North Carolina at the end of their first year.

Duke Scholarships

Duke Scholarships, ranging up to 100 percent of tuition are awarded to both entering and returning students who demonstrate outstanding academic achievement and exceptional promise for either ordained or diaconal/lay ministry. Scholarships are awarded annually to entering master of divinity candidates. The scholarship will be renewed each year so long as the recipient (1) maintains satisfactory academic progress and (2) is growing in his or her understanding, skills, and commitment to the ministry of the church.

Ray C. Petry Scholarships

Petry scholarships, ranging up to 100 percent of tuition, are awarded to entering MTS students on the basis of academic excellence and promise of significant future contributions in the field of religious studies. The scholarships are renewable in the second year of study assuming the recipient maintains satisfactory academic progress.

Distinguished Service Scholarships

Distinguished Service Scholarships, ranging from 50 to 75 percent of tuition per year, are awarded to entering master of divinity students who combine outstanding leadership and service in the church with strong academic achievement. These scholarships are renewable in the second and third years of study assuming the recipients (1) exhibit continued ministerial promise and growth as reflected in participation in field education and the life of the Divinity School and Durham, North Carolina, communities and (2) maintain satisfactory academic progress.

Dean’s Scholarships

Dean’s Scholarships, ranging up to 75 percent of tuition per year, are awarded to entering master of divinity students. Factors taken into account include ethnic origin, missional responsibilities for the church at home and abroad, and denominational needs. These scholarships are renewable in the second and third years of study assuming the recipients (1) exhibit continued growth in the understanding of and commitment to Christian ministry and (2) maintain satisfactory academic progress.
Hispanic/Latino Ministry Apprenticeships

Hispanic/Latino Ministry Apprenticeships, ranging up to 50 percent of tuition per year, are awarded for students who exhibit a calling and passion for leadership in North Carolina, with priority being given to students from Western North Carolina and North Carolina annual conferences of the United Methodist Church. Hispanic/Latino Ministry apprentices are appointed to a long-term field education placement in one of several Duke partner communities serving Hispanic/Latino ministry settings.

University Scholar

Full tuition for one year. The University Scholars program was created with a gift by Bill and Melinda Gates to stimulate an interdisciplinary, intergenerational community of scholars. One exceptional, creative student with interdisciplinary interests is selected for this award. Scholars have the opportunity to participate monthly in a seminar with undergraduate scholars and other graduate and professional students at Duke.

Martin Luther King Jr. Memorial Endowed Fund Scholarships

Up to six scholarships annually are given to entering students who belong to ethnic minorities. These scholarships reward outstanding promise for ministry and strong academic performance. The scholarship award is a minimum of $2,000 and is not renewable for the second and third years of study.

International Student Scholarships

In cooperation with the Crusade Scholarship Committee of the United Methodist Church and other authorized church agencies, international students are selected and admitted to courses of study. The Divinity School offers one scholarship per year to an international student in the master of theology degree program. The scholarship offers up to one year’s full tuition.

Other Scholarship Awards

Named scholarships funded by permanent endowments as listed on the pages following are awarded annually. In addition, the Divinity School receives funds designated for scholarships each year from several other sources including the Dickson Foundation of Mount Holly, North Carolina; the Will Ervin Fund of Richlands, North Carolina; the H.E.S., Inc. of Los Angeles, California; the Magee Christian Education Foundation of Bloomsburg, Pennsylvania; and numerous individuals and service organizations.

Financial Resources

Personal

In order that both Duke Divinity School and churches may be able to extend the use of their limited funds to as many students as possible, a student who desires a theological education should be willing to defray as far as possible the cost of such an education. Resources may include savings, earnings, gifts, support or loans, and if married, earnings of a spouse. In calculating anticipated income, the student first considers personal resources.

Church

Many local churches, conferences, or other governing bodies provide gifts and grants for theological education, such as ministerial education funds that provide grants and/or service loans to theological students. The student makes application to the home church, annual conference, presbytery, or other governing body. The Financial Aid Office cooperates with these church agencies in making recommendations and in handling the funds. United Methodist students and others must be under the care of the appropriate church body to be eligible for church support. The school cannot compensate for a student’s indisposition to receive church funds when such are available on application through the Annual Conference Ministerial Education Fund or other agencies.

Duke Divinity School, as a member school of the Association of United Methodist Theological Schools, takes cognizance of and subscribes to recommended goals, definitions, guiding principles, and practices regarding the administration of United Methodist Church funds for student financial aid as adopted by the association as advice and counsel in 2010 and as bearing upon tuition grants and scholarships, as follows:

Rationale and Goals

Historically, seminaries have been concerned with providing financial aid to those who evidenced financial need in pursuit of their theological studies. Though that is still a major concern, the current environment also demands recognition of academic achievement or other forms of merit. Theological schools need highly qualified students regardless of financial status. In addition, students, schools, churches, and judicatories have expressed growing concerns regarding the increased debt load of students graduating from theological school and entering ministry. These factors lead to the following goals for financial aid provided by ATS member schools:

- Theological schools should take into account aid granted on the basis of both financial need and merit.
- Theological schools should counsel students regarding the consequences of educational debt.
- Theological schools must take into account the many federal, state, and provincial regulations required of institutions participating in government loan programs.

* Adopted as advice and counsel by the association in 2010.

Field Education Grants

Amounts ranging from $7,600 to a maximum of $9,100 are made available through the Divinity School and The Duke Endowment to students who are approved to participate in the field education program. The offices of field education and financial aid work together in determining placement and grant amount.

This program includes the summer interns, academic year interns, and student pastors. See full description under the section of the bulletin on field education. Full-time students not participating in the Field Education program may work up to nineteen-point-nine hours per week in outside employment. Persons participating in the field education program, either summer or academic year placement, may not engage in other forms of employment.

Pre-Enrollment Ministry Discernment Placements

A ten-week rural church placement in North Carolina is available to entering United Methodist master of divinity students during the summer prior to their enrollment in the fall semester. Selected students receive financial support from The Duke Endowment, currently $9,000 for the field education placement. The church will provide room, board, and travel expenses. See the Field Education chapter of the bulletin for further details.

The Duke Endowment Student Pastor Grants

United Methodist students serving under episcopal appointment as student pastors in the state of North Carolina may qualify for tuition assistance up to $6,800 through The Duke Endowment. See the Field Education chapter for further details.

Loans

Loan funds held in trust by the university, as well as United Methodist student loans and funds supplied by the federal government, are available to qualified students.

Unless otherwise indicated, all correspondence concerning financial aid should be directed to Financial Aid Office, Duke University Divinity School, Box 90969, Durham, NC 27708-0969.

Employment

Students or spouses desiring employment with the university should apply to the Duke University Employment Office. Students or spouses make their own arrangements for employment either in the city of Durham, North Carolina, or on campus.

Endowed Funds

Certain special funds have been established as endowments, the income from which is used to provide financial aid through scholarships and field education grants for students, support for professorships, library resources, and enhancement of the Divinity School program. The funds listed below serve as essential resources for the preparation of persons for leadership in Christian ministry. Individuals do not apply for any of these funds. All awards are made through appropriate committee action according to university guidelines.

The African-American Alumni Legacy Scholarship Endowment Fund was established in 2000 by graduates and friends to honor the memories of Joseph Bethea, Herbert Edwards, C. Eric Lincoln, Samuel Proctor, and Grant Shockley. The fund helps to affirm the breadth and value of experiences at Duke, and to make it possible for new generations of leadership to be trained in the great traditions of the black church.

The Alban Institute Fund was established in 2014 by the trustees of the Alban Institute, Inc. of Herndon, Virginia, to continue the remarkable legacy of the Alban Institute, founded in 1974, to provide thought leadership, practical resources, and education for the enhancement of congregations.

The scholarship, to be funded through a planned gift, will especially benefit United Methodist students from the North Carolina Conference.

The Claude and Betty Jean Young Scholarship Fund was established in 2015 by H. Claude Young Jr., Trinity College Class of 1951 and Duke Divinity School Class of 1954, and his wife, Betty Jean Young, of Pittsboro, North Carolina, with deep appreciation for the splendid education and lasting friendships that the family has enjoyed through Duke University, and to encourage and support excellence in ministerial education in the Divinity School for the Church of Jesus Christ.

The York Family Scholarship Fund was established in 2003 by Vann and Ann York of High Point, North Carolina, to encourage excellence in ministerial education and to celebrate the many ties between members of the family (Lynn C. York, Trinity College Class of 1979; Elizabeth York Schiff, Trinity College Class of 1981, Law School Class of 1985; James A. Schiff, Trinity College Class of 1981; Gregory B. York, Trinity College Class of 1985; and Caren Copeland York, Trinity College Class of 1985), the United Methodist Church, and Duke University.

The Mary R. Zavada Memorial Scholarship in Catholic and Ecumenical Studies Fund was established in 2014 by John M. Zavada Jr. of Arlington, Virginia, in loving memory of his sister, Mary R. Zavada, in the spirit of advancing ecumenism and independent thinking among Christian traditions. Preference will be given to female students of any faith and ethnic background in the Doctor of Theology program who are pursuing Catholic and/or ecumenical studies.
Additional Resources

The Duke Endowment, established in 1924 and based in Charlotte, North Carolina, provides field education grants through the Rural Church Division for students of the Divinity School who serve in rural United Methodist churches under the endowment and field education program.

The Foundation for Evangelism, based at Lake Junaluska, North Carolina, provides generous annual support for the teaching of evangelism through expendable income from the Jane and Royce Reynolds Professorship endowment.

The James A. Gray Fund was presented to the Divinity School in 1947 by James A. Gray of Winston-Salem, North Carolina, for use in expanding and maintaining its educational services.

The United Methodist Church makes a substantial contribution to the Divinity School by designating a percentage of its Ministerial Education Fund and World Service Offerings for theological education.
Field Education

A Program for Ministerial Formation

Field education is central to Duke Divinity School’s master of divinity degree program. Ministry contexts provide abundant opportunity for action as well as reflection, enabling students to work with their personal and spiritual gifts and experiences as well as the rich conceptual material offered by the Divinity School. In these settings students are typically (1) working to clarify and test their calls to ordained or lay ministry; (2) exploring ministerial roles and identity; (3) building and strengthening the diverse skills required for ministry; and (4) learning to understand and approach ministry theologically as well as psychologically, sociologically, and organizationally. A handbook of policies and procedures is available from the Office of Field Education or can be viewed online at http://www.divinity.duke.edu/academics/field-education.

Field Education Credit Requirements

Two units of approved field education placement are required for graduation in the master of divinity degree program. Even though degree program requirements do not exceed two units, if requested, the Office of Field Education will give priority to placing students in three settings. Each student is required to complete one unit in a church (congregation/parish-based) setting, unless permitted by the Field Education Committee to do otherwise.

A unit is defined by one term placement, either a full-time summer term (forty hours per week in preparation and presence for a minimum of ten weeks) or an academic term (thirteen to fifteen hours per week in preparation and presence for a minimum of thirty weeks). To be approved, the setting must offer qualified on-site supervision with regular student/supervisor theological reflection on the practice of ministry. In addition, the placement must be guided by a learning-serving covenant and provide opportunities for effective feedback and evaluation.

Credit for one unit of field education is extended according to the following processes: (1) the student submits (by the published deadline) an application and formally interviews with the scheduled director or assistant director of the Office of Field Education; (2) receives approval for placement; (3) attends the May orientation for a summer field education placement or six Mentoring for Ministry workshops for an academic year placement; (4) develops and completes a learning-serving covenant with acceptable quality of work; (5) cooperates with the supervisor; (6) submits two written reflections by the given deadlines and participates in two scheduled peer group reflections; (7) ensures that the evaluative process is conducted and completed evaluations are submitted on time (evaluations must be submitted by the field supervisor, the student, and, if applicable, a lay mentoring team); and (8) submits a student evaluation of the experience on time. The student’s faculty advisor (or faculty/staff designee of the Academic Program’s Field Education Committee) will review the evaluations and, in consultation with the field education staff, determine if credit is appropriate.

Current students who intend to receive a Divinity or Duke Endowment funded summer field education placement must be full-time students in the subsequent fall and/or spring semesters (students who will return to Duke Divinity School following the completion of a required judicatory year at another seminary may request exemption from this policy). Examples of subsequent academic year circumstances which would occasion a nonfunded summer field education placement include planned leave of absence, planned withdrawal, etc. Should an enrolled student encounter unforeseen circumstances requiring academic leave or withdrawal following a summer field education experience, only the grant portion of the summer field education funding will be forfeited.

A student may alternately fulfill Duke Divinity School’s field education requirements for graduation by serving as a student pastor of a congregation during his or her period of study. See the bulletin section titled Students Serving As Pastors for more information.

Guiding Ministerial Formation

Development of readiness for ministry is the responsibility of each student. If the field education staff has reservations about a student’s readiness for field placement, the staff will specify requirements preparatory to assignment. If the student disagrees with this assessment, the student may appeal the staff’s decision to the Field Education Committee. The committee will review applicable materials such as Duke Divinity School admissions documents, prior placement evaluations, and additional professional evaluation. The committee may solicit interviews of involved persons, Divinity School faculty/staff perceptions, and evaluation by the field education staff. The committee will approve the field assignment or refer the student to remedial avenues of personal and professional development, including, if necessary, a leave of absence or withdrawal from school. Such action will be referred to the Academic Policies Committee for inclusion in assessment of that student’s progress toward graduation.

Field Settings for Ministerial Formation

Students may elect to meet their field learning requirements as follows:

- Volunteer Placements (unfunded). Students, with the direction of the Office of Field Education, have latitude in selecting volunteer settings. As volunteers in ministry, students must invest a minimum of 300 hours in preparation and presence, a minimum of ten weeks (summer placement), and a minimum of thirty weeks (academic year placement) in the setting, and comply with the requirements specified by the Divinity School.

- Student-Initiated Placements (funded by the congregation/ministry setting). Students may request credit for service at a congregation or agency where the student has initiated an internship or staff position. Students, with the direction of the Office of Field Education, have latitude in selecting their student-initiated settings. They must invest a minimum of 300 hours in preparation and presence, a minimum of ten weeks (summer placement), and a minimum of thirty weeks (academic year placement) in the setting, and comply with the requirements specified by the Divinity School.

- Settings developed by the Divinity School. These settings have historically offered opportunities for ministerial service, supervision, appropriate identity, and evaluation; or they show promise for meeting these expectations. A variety of ministry settings are available for particular student goals: parish settings (rural, suburban, and urban patterns), institutional settings, and international settings. These settings normally require a minimum of 400 hours in preparation and presence, a minimum of ten weeks (summer placement), and a minimum of thirty weeks (academic year placement) in the setting.

While the Divinity School offers a rich diversity of settings for personal and ministerial formation, the majority of settings developed by the Divinity School are in local churches in small communities. Because of the Divinity School’s ties with the United Methodist Church, most of these field placements occur in that tradition. However, the Divinity School will assist every student who is seeking ordination in finding at least one placement in his or her own denominational tradition.

Some students are ill-advised to take a field placement outside their own denominational tradition. Such placement may jeopardize prospects for ordination. Students are cautioned against solving short-range financial problems by creating long-range tension with their ordaining body.

Specialized ministries offered through the Divinity School Field Education program do not pose the same denominational dynamics as those presented by the congregational setting outside a person’s own faith tradition. In most instances, students will be considered for these settings who have already met the placement requirement for a congregational setting and who are otherwise qualified vocationally, personally, financially, academically, etc.

Funding for numerous placements is provided to the Divinity School through the generosity of The Duke Endowment, a private charitable trust administered by its own board of trustees and a legally separate entity from Duke University. The Rural Church Division of The Duke Endowment is authorized by its 1924 indenture to work exclusively with United Methodist churches located within the state of North Carolina and in communities under 1,500 persons, according to the most recent federal census.

The United Methodist Church is open and ecumenical in spirit, with numerous churches that have provided Duke Divinity students from diverse cultural and denominational backgrounds opportunities for contextual learning. However, not every United Methodist pastor and/or congregation is willing to host students from non-Wesleyan traditions. Therefore, placement of students to The Duke Endowment-eligible settings will depend upon the availability of congregations and pastor-supervisors.

The Divinity School is not obligated to provide students a funded field education placement. Funded placements are dependent upon the availability of funding, the restrictions of funding sources, the interests of parishes and agencies in cooperating with the field education program, the openness of settings to working with students of diverse faith traditions, students’ willingness and abilities to meet the expectations of settings, etc. Students engaged in full-time, nonfield education employment are not eligible for Divinity School directed funding.
When placed in funded settings, each student receives a portion of the award as stipend (paid directly to each student through the Duke Payroll Office) and a portion of the award as grant (paid into the bursar account of each student). Personal transportation is the responsibility of each student, and a prerequisite for funded placement.

All individuals applying for field education are subject to a background check.

Pre-Enrollment Ministry Discernment Program for Contextual Learning

The Divinity School offers up to twenty pre-enrollment MDiv students who are open to discerning ministry in the United Methodist Church a field education placement in a rural North Carolina United Methodist church during the summer before they matriculate. These placements offer an opportunity to explore the nature of the church; the role of ministry; personal gifts for ministry and how these gifts relate to the office of ministry; and the implications of these experiences for students’ emerging Christian vocation.

Anticipating the first year of theological education and future field education placement, this program provides students close-range introduction to the nature and dynamics of the practice of ministry under trained and committed pastoral supervisors and lay persons. Orientation events and theological reflection exercises with current Divinity School students provide critical support and learning opportunities which enhance the process of spiritual, vocational, and personal discernment. Honest perspective from pastors and laity on the students’ use of this opportunity gives students an early read on their potential for leadership in the community of faith.

These experiences fall exclusively within United Methodist congregations in the state of North Carolina, primarily in rural or semi-rural settings. Pre-enrollment placements offer a stipend, partial scholarship, housing, meals, and travel expense for the ten-week term. Students must be available to attend an orientation session in early May, have access to personal transportation, and be available to serve anywhere in North Carolina.

Because the Pre-Enrollment Ministry Discernment Program for Contextual Learning occurs prior to enrollment at Duke Divinity School, such placements will not receive field education placement credit.

Students Serving As Pastors

Students entering Duke Divinity School or completing their first year of study may apply to be recognized as student pastors if they serve as pastors of churches or part-time associates during their tenure at Duke Divinity School. This service may suffice for fulfillment of all field education requirements. Student pastor appointments or calls are arranged by the appropriate denominational official or body: the Office of Field Education cannot arrange student pastor appointments or calls, although it seeks to facilitate the appointment process. Once a student has been appointed or called as a pastor by the appropriate jurisdictional, denomination, or congregational authorities, Duke Divinity School may recognize this arrangement and award appropriate field education credit for this ministerial service. The Divinity School requires that students wishing to serve as student pastors consult with the Office of Field Education and submit an application for field education credit in order for the student’s pastoral service to be recognized.

Student pastors may enroll in no more than three courses per semester, requiring eight semesters to complete the master of divinity degree. Student pastors are not permitted to enroll in summer study of any kind. Relaxation of student pastor limitations on enrollment requires the permission (on the appropriate form) of the supervising church official, the pastor-parish or other personnel committee, the field education staff, and the associate dean for academic programs. Student pastors are strongly and actively discouraged from attempting to commute more than fifty miles one way on a daily basis. Extensive commuting will jeopardize the student’s academic program, health, ministry, and family life.

In keeping with the goal of the school to develop competence in ministry, student pastors should use their appointments as learning contexts. To facilitate this contextual learning process, student pastors meet monthly during the academic year with student pastor mentoring groups, composed of other student pastor peers and a learned pastor who engage together in mutual counsel, direction, and critical theological reflection. Evaluation by the student’s parish (and, if United Methodist, the district superintendent) is also required during the student’s first and third years of service. All student pastors who are serving in settings that do not have appropriate mentoring and evaluation processes in place shall be required to do one unit of CPE during the academic year (either parish-based or a regular unit) before graduating from the MDiv program.
If all of the conditions outlined for field education credit are met, and all reports are completed and filed at the appropriate time, credit may be extended. If, however, the parish setting proves inadequate for the student’s needs for ministerial growth and development, the field education staff will convene a review committee consisting of the student’s faculty advisor, a member of the Field Education Committee, and one of the field education staff to review the student’s needs and take appropriate action to assist the student in growth. Examples of such action are: requiring an alternative field experience, a basic unit of clinical pastoral education, psychological evaluation, personal therapy, spiritual direction, or leave of absence from the school.

In summary, the process for student pastors to receive field education credit for their call or appointment is: apply for credit with the Office of Field Education, register for only three classes per semester, participate in an assigned mentoring group, and submit requisite evaluation materials for two separate years of service.

Clinical Pastoral Education (CPE)

Master of divinity students may use a basic unit of clinical pastoral education (CPE) to meet one placement requirement. CPE units may be taken during the academic year or during the summer. Students may also elect to receive academic course credit for CPE.

CPE Not Requesting Academic Credit

Field Education Requirement

Students seeking to fulfill the first or the second field education requirement through CPE should initially consult with the Office of Field Education. The student submits an application to a CPE program that is accredited by the Association for Clinical Pastoral Education, Inc. (ACPE) at www.acpe.edu. The student then arranges for an interview with the CPE staff, gains acceptance to the program, submits an information form to the Office of Field Education, and then enrolls in the CPE program that is accredited by the ACPE. The student is responsible for paying the CPE center directly for all fees related to enrollment in and completion of the unit. The student is responsible for having the CPE center mail directly to the Office of Field Education the original or certified copy of the supervisor's final evaluation indicating the unit was successfully completed and a full unit of CPE credit was extended. Upon this notification, the Office of Field Education will inform the Divinity School registry, so that a unit of field education will be recorded. A unit of field education for CPE is contingent upon the Office of Field Education staff’s approval of both the program and experience. All student pastors who are serving in settings that do not have appropriate mentoring and evaluation processes in place shall be required to do one unit of CPE during the academic year (either parish-based or a regular unit) before graduating from the MDiv program.

Conference/Judicatory Requirement

Many denominational conferences and judicatories require candidates for ordained ministry to complete a unit of Clinical Pastoral Education in an accredited CPE center. To satisfy this requirement, a student may enroll in a CPE program of his/her choice that is accredited by the ACPE. The student is responsible for paying the CPE center directly for all fees related to enrollment in and completion of the unit. The student is also responsible for having the CPE center mail directly to the Office of Field Education the original or certified copy of the supervisor's final evaluation indicating the unit was successfully completed and a full unit of CPE credit was extended. By request, the Office of Field Education will be responsible for notifying the student's appropriate denominational/judicatory officials regarding successful completion of the required CPE unit.

Personal/Professional Growth

Students may enroll in a unit of Clinical Pastoral Education for the sole purpose of personal growth and professional/pastoral skills development (no judicatory and/or field education credits are needed/requested). The student is responsible for paying the CPE center directly for all fees related to enrollment in and completion of the unit.

CPE Requesting Academic Credit

Academic Credit

In all cases above, if a student also desires academic credit (two course credits) for an accredited clinical pastoral education unit, then he or she must register for CPE 100 during Duke Divinity School course registration period. The student should gain acceptance in the CPE program before registering for CPE 100. The student will be responsible for Divinity School tuition costs related to the CPE unit’s two-course equivalency. The Divinity School tuition charge for these two course credits will be at the current school’s tuition rate at the time the academic credit is officially recorded on the student’s record. The respective CPE center’s fee will be paid by the Divinity School (up to $450—if the center’s fee is more than $450, the student is responsible for the difference). The student is also responsible for having the CPE center mail directly to the Office of Field Education the original or certified copy of the supervisor’s final evaluation indicating the unit was successfully completed and a full unit of CPE credit extended. The Office of Field Education will then notify the Divinity School registry to this effect, and academic credit for two courses will be recorded.

The Divinity School will consider academic credit for CPE units completed in prior semesters. However, the school will not reimburse the student for CPE center fees incurred. In these cases, the student will pay the current Divinity School tuition rate at the time the academic credit is officially recorded on the student’s record. Approval of the academic credit for a CPE unit completed prior to Divinity School enrollment from an ACPE, Inc. accredited agency will be determined by the director of field education and the academic dean.

The timing for CPE should be decided in consultation with the Field Education Office. When a student would best enroll in a basic unit of CPE will depend upon the student’s curriculum, personal circumstances, andjudicatory requirements. It is not recommended during the first year of study. Students need a year of basic foundational work in theology prior to CPE. Students seriously contemplating a career in pastoral counseling should take CPE earlier in their curriculum in order to engage vocational testing in an institutional setting. The personal discovery that often occurs in CPE can prove beneficial in shaping later curriculum choices while in divinity school.

CPE is viewed as field education and creditable as such, therefore, students completing a field education unit through the Divinity School Office of Field Education may not be simultaneously enrolled in CPE. Students employed by churches and/or agencies that are not part of a formal field education placement may enroll in CPE, but are cautioned to give close attention to work load.

Parish-Based CPE

In partnership with Duke Hospital, the Divinity School offers an extended parish-based CPE unit in which students complete their clinical hours in local parishes. The extended parish-based CPE is a thirty-week academic year program that is open to students who are interested in exploring issues of crisis, death, and grief in a parish setting. Student pastors are particularly encouraged to apply for this program. For more information regarding parish-based CPE, visit http://www.divinity.duke.edu/academics/field-education/clinical-pastoral-education#parish-based.

International Field Education

Duke Divinity School is committed to the pursuit of international studies. The school’s commitment to a global ministry perspective has resulted in sustained international field education opportunities. Policies and procedures are available for review in the Field Education Office or online at http://divinity.duke.edu/academics/field-education/forms-and-policies.

Duke Divinity School is gifted with faculty/staff and alumni who are committed to coordinating international field education opportunities. Because of their high level of commitment, the Divinity School offers funding for selected international field education placements coordinated by these faculty/staff and alumni. An interview/selection process for these placements is coordinated through the Office of Field Education. The Divinity School’s summer internships in international field education place theological education and pastoral training in the context of an increasingly interconnected global community. The program currently includes internships in Mexico, El Salvador, South Africa, Kenya, South Sudan, and Uganda. Students selected for these ten-week summer placements receive a stipend to offset travel and living expenses as well as tuition assistance.

Students may also self-initiate an international placement for the summer term. The Field Education calendar will post deadlines for the application and interview process for self-initiating students. Self-initiating students will interview with the director or assistant director of the Office of Field Education. In the interview process, the director or assistant director will ascertain the appropriateness of the placement for field education credit, and may consult with other Divinity School staff and/or faculty in determining the suitability of the placement for field education credit.
International Programs

A Global Perspective for Duke Divinity School

As an institution within the church, Duke Divinity School seeks to contribute to and learn from the life of the church in an increasingly globalized world. This desire to contribute and to learn takes its shape from Christ’s invitation to share in God’s love for the world. Through its international engagements, the Divinity School also seeks to respond to God’s call for unity in diversity among the churches and in the world. As an institution that educates and forms students for ministry, the Divinity School seeks to engage students with the life of the church in a wider world as part of their education and formation. The Divinity School also seeks to play a full part in the internationalization of Duke University. Besides giving students an ever deeper appreciation for the international context of their lives, the Divinity School encourages faculty to develop cross-cultural research programs that in turn inform course development and teaching.

The Home Country

The International Studies Committee of Duke Divinity School serves as an ongoing resource to welcome and accommodate the students from other countries who make a significant contribution to the community. The Internationally Minded People of Faith (IMPF) extends that hospitality on behalf of the student population of the Divinity School, including the organization of an international worship service each semester. Every year, the school has about a dozen international students from various countries. The school also is a strong proponent of international students receiving the fundamental theological training in their home country.

Academic Study

In addition to courses in world Christianity and courses in the history of religion administered by the Graduate Program in Religion, various departments within the Divinity School offer courses related to international studies.

As complement to the course offerings, the Lecture Program Committee and the Office of Black Church Studies bring a succession of distinguished scholars and church leaders to speak in the school. Among these have been Lesslie Newbigin, Gustavo Gutierrez, Kwane Bediako, Njongokulu Ndungane, Jacques Dupuis, Dana Robert, and Cornelius van der Kooi.

Travel Seminars

On occasion, Duke Divinity faculty offer courses that include a travel component as part of the course (e.g., Tour of Turkey (Church History 766/New Testament 755) and Readings of Our Lives: Contemporary African Bible Interpretations (Old Testament 807)). In an effort to sustain its commitment to the Peru Initiative envisioned by the late Dr. Fredrick Herzog, the Divinity School has sent students, staff, and alumni to various locations within the country to conduct clergy education workshops during spring break.

Student Partnerships and Exchanges

Exchange programs are in place between the Divinity School and Tübingen University in partnership with the Methodist-related Reutlingen School of Theology in Germany. Partnerships are also in place for exchanges with the University of Durham, England, and the Free University of Amsterdam, The Netherlands, as well as Chung Chi Seminary at The Chinese University of Hong Kong. These exchanges facilitate divinity students studying on their campuses and their students coming to Duke Divinity School for a full academic year. Most recently a relationship has been established with Leipzig University in Germany for doctoral students in homiletics.

Individual students occasionally have made private arrangements for study abroad. This study has most often taken place in England or Scotland, with academic credit usually transferable toward the Duke degree. The Divinity School is also strengthening its International Field Education opportunities with summer internships in South Africa, Uganda, Kenya, South Sudan, Mexico, and El Salvador. These placements occur in both rural and urban settings.

Faculty Partnerships

Duke Divinity School is in partnership with several international church and academic institutions. Through these partnerships, faculty and students from the school and the partner institutions share expertise, experiences, and pray with and for one another. The partnership programs afford the opportunity for Duke Divinity School faculty and staff to visit, teach, serve, and learn from the partner institutions, and for their students, faculty, and staff to visit Duke University.

International Service

The involvement of Duke Divinity School with international institutions and cultures has always gone beyond one-way educational opportunities. Over the years, faculty, alumnae and alumni, and students have lived and worked in locations abroad, under both ecclesiastical and secular auspices. The latest listings include more than one hundred seminary graduates in ministry overseas.

Divinity students often participate in international service projects on a short-term basis. Faculty and staff, too, are engaged in a variety of activities outside the United States. In addition to innumerable conferences and lectures in Canada and Europe, professors have taught and given papers in numerous countries. For example, Professors Richard Hays, Stephen Chapman, Laceye Warner, and William Turner have all taught at John Wesley College, now Seth Mokitimi Seminary in Southern Africa, as a part of its visiting-lecturer program.
Black Church Studies

The Office of Black Church Studies

The Office of Black Church Studies (OBCS) is a conduit for the engagement of Duke Divinity School with the black church, black theology, and the black community. It represents an appreciation for the study of and involvement in Afro-Christian experiences. The OBCS and its affiliates seek to illuminate the several dimensions of these experiences, to investigate and expose the contributions which the global black church has made and can make to the black community, the nation, and the world. The OBCS also aims to actualize the potential for service to the church through its special concerns for ministry and mission to people of African descent in church and society.

The Office of Black Church Studies has four principal objectives: (1) to insure that black students are exposed to adequate resources to prepare them academically, vocationally, and spiritually for ministry allowing them to derive the greatest possible value from theological education; (2) to call the entire Divinity School community and the church into ongoing dialogue about the global black church and allow this exchange to inform understandings of contemporary church leadership, particularly as it relates to difference, liberation, and reconciliation; (3) to facilitate connections with alumni, congregations, and community organizations; and (4) to foster an appreciation for the epistemic and prophetic distinctiveness of the black religious experience. In keeping with these objectives, the Office of Black Church Studies provides the following programs, activities, and services.

Academic Study

American theological education has long ignored the concerns and contributions of the black religious experience, a circumstance that the Divinity School curriculum addresses through (1) offering courses whose content and methods draw upon scholarship about and by African Americans and (2) the inclusion of African American scholarship in courses throughout the curriculum. Courses taught in black church studies and related areas include:

- African Americans and the Bible
- Theology in the Black Church Traditions
- Christian Identity and the Formation of the Racial World
- Introduction to Womanist Theology
- Deep River: Howard Thurman, Spirituality, and the Prophetic Life
- Person and Work of the Holy Spirit
- The Life and Thought of Martin Luther King Jr.
- Black Intellectuals and Religion: Selected Topics in Black Church
- Christianity, Race, and the American Nation
- Balm in Gilead
- Worship in African American Church Traditions

Preaching and Lecture Series

Fall and spring preaching and lecture series provide frequent opportunities to hear outstanding black scholars and preachers in Divinity School classes and worship services. The Gardner C. Taylor Preaching Series brings outstanding black preachers to the campus, the Pauli Murray/Nannie Helen Burroughs Lecture on Women and Religion brings womanist and black feminist religious scholars whose work emphasizes the intersections of race, gender, and class to the Divinity School community, and the Martin Luther King Jr. Lecture Series brings scholars and community leaders of national stature to address the issues of justice, peace, and liberation in relation to the insights of the Gospel and the black religious experience.

Global Partnerships

The Office of Black Church Studies assists the school in managing local and global partnerships. Through these important partnerships, students are able to participate in field education placements and travel seminars. Additionally, faculty members are able to participate in guest lectureships.
Continuing Education

In cooperation with Leadership Education at Duke Divinity School, the Office of Black Church Studies provides programs for black pastors in the region, including the Gardner C. Taylor Lecture Series, the Pauli Murray/Nannie Helen Burroughs Lecture, the Martin Luther King Jr. Lecture Series, and seminars that address concerns of the black church and communities of African descent. Occasional conferences, colloquies, symposia, and the Annual Convocation and Pastors’ School supplement these offerings.

There are opportunities for academic study for all qualified black pastors and lay persons. The extensive holdings of the Divinity School Library are also available upon application to the librarian.

Church Relationships

Through the Office of Black Church Studies, Duke Divinity School reaches out to black churches in the Triangle area and across the nation. Such relationships not only afford excellent field settings for ministerial study and work, but they also provide a laboratory in which persons can gain wider knowledge of and deeper appreciation for black Christian experience.

The Office of Black Church Studies provides counsel and advice to prospective black seminarians and all students who are inspired by the prophetic tradition of the black church. Inquiries concerning study opportunities available at Duke Divinity School should be directed to the Office of Black Church Studies at obcs@div.duke.edu or (919) 660-3461.
Leadership Education at Duke Divinity participates in the cultivation of thriving communities that are signs, foretastes, and instruments of the reign of God. It addresses a yearning for greater strength and vitality among Christian institutions and for greater faithfulness and effectiveness in the leadership and management of those institutions. Thriving communities need vibrant Christian institutions, and both need excellent Christ-shaped leadership. In partnership with leaders throughout the church, Leadership Education has learned that four capacities are foundational in sustaining vibrant Christian institutions:

- traditioned innovation, rooted in the story of the Trinity, invigorates the present and envisions the future by honoring the church’s past;
- transformative leadership, responsive to God through the development of mindsets, activities, and traits, equips people to advance the church’s mission;
- generative organization, in keeping with the Triune God’s intention in creation, continually orders human activities and relationships toward a common end by attending to issues of scale and scope, enhancing networks, and overinvesting in the young; and
- sustainable design, in response to God’s provision, calls forth the cultivation of human, intellectual, service, network, and financial capital to enable institutions and communities to grow, prune, and renew over time.

Leadership Education designs educational services, develops intellectual resources, and facilitates networks of institutions that cultivate a coherent vision of Christian institutional leadership and that form Christian leaders in the mindsets, activities, and traits that are crucial to thriving communities. Offerings include open-application programs, an online magazine, web resources, and collaborative working groups that address the deepest challenges facing Christian institutions.

Leadership Education aims to create lasting change by strengthening the ecology of Christian institutions that enable US congregations and pastors to flourish. It works with those institutions whose mission is the formation of Christians and which have the strength to have scalable impact: denominations, seminaries, church-related colleges, consultancies, large membership congregations, Christian nonprofit organizations, and others. Leadership education works across the country, with current and future leaders, using expertise from disciplines as varied as theology, business, sociology, and the arts.

Denominational Leadership: Serving God and the Church as an Executive Leader

This program equips denominational staff members who have previously served congregations with tools and strategies to effectively navigate the complexities and changing landscape of institutional leadership.

People of all denominations who are transitioning from parish ministry to executive-level positions within denominational governing bodies or who have been in their role fewer than three years are welcome to apply for this selective program.

Executive Certificate in Religious Fundraising

The Executive Certificate in Religious Fundraising, designed by Lake Institute on Faith & Giving and offered by Leadership Education at Duke Divinity, explores how to develop fundraising skills and cultivate a spirit of generosity within a community of faith. The certificate program is designed for pastors, judicatory executives, and leaders of faith-based organizations and includes an intensive four-day retreat, an online peer community, and a final project designed to fit the needs of participants.
Faith & Leadership

Faith & Leadership (www.faithandleadership.com) is the online magazine of Leadership Education at Duke Divinity, which designs educational services, develops intellectual resources, and facilitates networks of institutions.

The aim of the magazine is to create lasting change by strengthening the ecology of Christian institutions that enable US congregations and pastors to flourish. Its audience includes those institutions whose mission is the formation of Christians and that have the strength to have scalable impact: denominations, seminaries, church-related colleges, consultancies, large membership congregations, and Christian nonprofit organizations.

Every two weeks, Faith & Leadership publishes new content that draws on multiple disciplines. Each weekday it publishes News & Ideas, a news roundup.

Foundations of Christian Leadership

Foundations of Christian Leadership brings together emerging leaders from a variety of faith-based organizations as colleagues in an encouraging and collaborative learning environment. Through two four-day residential sessions and two online gatherings, the program helps participants cultivate the kinds of practices that are essential for transformative leadership within vibrant Christian institutions and congregations. Participants also may apply for $5,000 grants to fund innovative experiments that they design and lead within their organizations.
Alban at Duke Divinity School

Alban at Duke Divinity School offers programs and resources that create the capacity for those who care deeply about resourcing congregations to strengthen and form new networks and connections. It publishes the Alban Weekly newsletter and partners with publisher Rowman & Littlefield to produce books about topics related to congregational leadership under the Alban imprint. Alban also creates learning opportunities, including online courses and webinars, independently and in partnership with other institutions.

Clergy Health Initiative

The Duke Clergy Health Initiative is a multi-year effort funded in 2007 by The Duke Endowment to assess and improve the health of United Methodist clergy in North Carolina. By helping pastors articulate and sustain a holistic understanding of health, Duke Divinity School hopes to improve the broader health of the congregations and communities they serve. The Clergy Health Initiative has conducted a longitudinal survey of all United Methodist clergy biennially since 2008. From 2011-2014, it offered a holistic health intervention, Spirited Life, to more than 1,100 clergy across the state. It is currently engaged in a study of clergy well-being and dissemination of findings from the Spirited Life intervention and the ongoing longitudinal survey. The Divinity School plans to use this research to guide conferences and other organizations across the country in making effective decisions related to clergy health.

The Clergy Health Initiative is one of several programs operated by the Duke Divinity School in collaboration with The Duke Endowment and the North Carolina and Western North Carolina Conferences of the United Methodist Church in an effort to form communities that work with and are enriched by local United Methodist congregations. For details on the Clergy Health Initiative, visit http://divinity.duke.edu/initiatives/clergy-health-initiative.

Convocation & Pastors’ School

The annual Convocation & Pastors’ School is an intensive two-day conference that offers lectures, worship, and seminars for Christian leaders of all traditions. Led by scholars and practitioners from Duke and beyond, this event is a cooperative endeavor with the North Carolina and Western North Carolina Conferences of the United Methodist Church. The convocation also includes alumni gatherings.

Convocation on the Rural Church

The Convocation on the Rural Church is an opportunity for pastoral leaders from rural United Methodist churches in North Carolina to come together for worship, plenary sessions, workshops, and conversation about the state of the rural church and how it can engage in even more vibrant ministry and mission.

Course of Study

The Course of Study for Ordained Ministry has been established by the Board of Higher Education and Ministry of the United Methodist Church as an alternate educational route for persons seeking to serve as pastors in United Methodist congregations. Duke Divinity School cooperates with the board to offer the course of study program each summer and on a part-time basis on weekends throughout the academic year. Course instructors include faculty and staff of the Duke Divinity School and other universities and institutions. University course credit is not granted.

Denominational Studies

Duke Divinity School offers the full array of courses required for elder’s and deacon’s orders in the United Methodist Church (see below for particulars). It also offers courses in the history and polity of other denominations substantially represented in the student population. Baptist, Christian (Disciples of Christ), Episcopal, Presbyterian, and United Church of Christ courses occur on a regular, usually two-year cycle. Courses on other traditions have been arranged when needed and when staffing was available.

In 1989, Duke Divinity School began creating advisory committees on denominational studies. Three have been established to date: a Committee on Presbyterian Studies, a Committee on Episcopal Studies, and the Board of Directors of the Baptist House of Studies. Others may be established if needed.

The task of such committees is to take under care the persons from the respective traditions who are preparing for diverse ministries at Duke Divinity School. That care shall consist of advising students; counseling and preparing candidates for judicatory examinations or interviews; advising the Divinity School on the curricular and extra-curricular needs of those students; participating as appropriate and necessary in teaching of courses designed with students from the respective tradition in mind; creating an atmosphere at Duke University conducive to the effective preparation of that denomination’s ministers; and holding events, services, and workshops instrumental toward the transmission of denominational practice, tradition, and doctrine.

The Anglican Episcopal House of Studies

The Anglican Episcopal House of Studies (AEHS) is a fellowship of learning within the wider Duke Divinity School that participates in all aspects of Divinity School life yet offers its own distinct formational opportunities.

The vision of AEHS is to help nurture and form the next generation of leaders in and for the church, enabling them to become so steeped in the classic tradition that they will be faithful, flexible, and imaginative as they apply it, even in challenging and turbulent times.

Episcopal and other Anglican students who study at Duke Divinity School should expect to be nourished and stretched in many dimensions—academic rigor, ecclesial confession, radical service, and personal holiness. This reflects God’s commandment to love God with all one’s heart, soul, mind, and strength.

For details about AEHS, visit http://divinity.duke.edu/initiatives-centers/aehs.

The Baptist House of Studies

The Baptist House of Studies is a program of support and education for Baptist students at Duke Divinity School. Established in 1989, Baptist House prepares students for Baptist ministry through theological education and participation in a supportive community.

As the students study and attend classes in an ecumenical setting, Baptist faculty and administrative staff serve as their advisors and mentors. For the school’s Baptist students, Baptist House is a theological and spiritual home, anchoring them in their Baptist identity and connecting them with one another and the larger Baptist world.

While Baptists have always attended the Divinity School, their ranks have expanded dramatically since the creation of Baptist House. Today, about one hundred Baptist students are studying for ministry at Duke Divinity School, which is second only to United Methodists among denominations represented in the student body. For details about the Baptist House, visit http://divinity.duke.edu/initiatives-centers/baptist-house.

The Methodist/Wesleyan House of Studies

Established in 2008, the Methodist/Wesleyan House is an informal gathering of students, faculty, and senior staff, who are affiliated with the United Methodist Church and other Wesleyan denominations that have active membership in the World Methodist Council—representing 108 ecclesial bodies worldwide. With approximately 60 percent of the student body and forty faculty and senior staff members from these Wesleyan churches, regular meetings during the semester provide a rich venue of social and intellectual exchange. The close and historic connections of the Divinity School to the United Methodist Church and the prescribed academic work for ordination are complemented by the wide range of activities orchestrated through the student leadership team of the Methodist/Wesleyan House. Membership in an affiliated denomination is not a requirement for participation in activities. For details about the Methodist/Wesleyan House, visit https://divinity.duke.edu/initiatives-centers/methodist-house.

The Presbyterian/Reformed House of Studies

The Presbyterian/Reformed House of Studies participates in the mission of Duke Divinity School, which seeks to form persons to serve and bear witness to the Triune God in the church, the academy, and the world. The Presbyterian/Reformed House of Studies serves as an umbrella of support for students from the Reformed tradition, including members of the PC(USA), PCA, UCC, RCA, and CRC denominations. In this capacity it serves to nurture the Reformed Christian community at the Divinity School by supporting and nurturing students as persons, pastors, and leaders in the life of the Reformed Christian tradition. This includes: commending Christian life and ministry that is catholic and evangelical (in the classic sense of both words); forming a love in students for Reformed communions, especially for their uniqueness and what they share with other communions; and encouraging and equipping students to be insightful about the challenges facing Reformed churches, and also to eagerly and confidently address those challenges. To address these formational opportunities, the Presbyterian/Reformed House of Studies holds regular thematically-oriented gatherings to reflect theologically on Christian life and ministry, conducts spiritual formation retreats, cosponsors the annual McPherson Lectureship in partnership with the First Presbyterian Church in Durham, North Carolina, and celebrates student academic achievement with the annual Allen Verhey Memorial Student Colloquium. Guidance through the ordination process of the various Reformed bodies and vocational counsel throughout the Divinity School experience is also provided.

The Roger Williams Fellowship

The Roger Williams Fellowship, named for the seventeenth century Free Church trailblazer, is the Baptist student organization in the Divinity School. The organization sponsors monthly meetings on campus for conversation about contemporary issues in Baptist life and plans fellowship gatherings for students and faculty.

Theology, Medicine, and Culture Initiative

The Theology, Medicine, and Culture (TMC) initiative creates opportunities for students, clergy, and health care practitioners to reimagine and reengage contemporary practices of health care in light of Christian tradition and the practices of Christian communities.

Building on the unique strengths and commitments of Duke Divinity School, the TMC initiative pursues two primary goals:

• to invite seminarians, clergy, students in the health professions, and practicing clinicians to deep theological study and formation in the context of a community of shared prayer, dialogue, and friendship at Duke Divinity School; and
• to cultivate creative practices regarding health and medicine that emerge from a scriptural imagination, engagement with the living Christian tradition, and attention to and reflection on contemporary contexts.

TMC PROGRAMS

• The Fellowship in Theology, Medicine, and Culture invites health care practitioners and others with full-time vocations to health care to pursue a degree at Duke Divinity School in the context of a community of shared prayer, conversation, and friendship.
• The Reimagining Health Collaborative invites teams from Christian congregations to partner with each other and with Duke Divinity School faculty to explore theologically faithful ways of engaging health, wellness, disability, illness, and suffering.
• Duke Divinity School students are able to complete the Certificate in Theology, Medicine, and Culture, which prepares students for robust theological and practical engagement with contemporary practices in medicine and healthcare.
• Duke medical students may study at Duke Divinity School during their third year through the Medical Humanities track in Theology, Medicine, and Culture.
• Twice monthly, TMC Seminars gather students and faculty from across Duke University and beyond to explore questions at the interface of theology, medicine, and culture.
• TMC faculty members conduct scholarship and research on a wide range of topics, including the impact of religious commitment on medical decision-making; theological approaches to mental health and mental illness; the intersection of theology, medicine, and the arts; the practices of Christian hospitals; the human body in Paul’s letters; and end-of-life care policy.

Duke Center for Reconciliation

The primary goal of the Center for Reconciliation (CFR) at Duke Divinity School is to form and support leaders, communities, and congregations as ambassadors of reconciliation. As an integral part of Duke Divinity School’s mission and rooted in a Christian vision of God’s mission, the center aims to serve not only the academy and the church, but also the world at large. It does this primarily in three ways: promoting a vision of faithful student formation shaped by theologies and practices of reconciliation; convening conversations between scholars, teachers, and practitioners of reconciliation that facilitate scholarship and research on reconciliation; and collaborating with local, national, and international initiatives on reconciliation.

In order to prepare Christian leaders in the field of reconciliation, the CFR draws on theological and ministerial resources to engage real-world conflicts, and social and economic problems. The center’s initiatives also reflect Duke University’s strategic priorities of inquiry across disciplines, commitment to both the local community and global activity, and preparing students to use knowledge in the service of society. Therefore, the CFR aims to equip students, pastors, and organizational and denominational leaders for faithful Christian leadership while engaging critical issues in the church and society and creating opportunities for mutual learning between the Divinity School and other ministries and institutions.

A core program offered by the CFR is the annual Summer Institute for Reconciliation. This weeklong institute provides in-depth teaching and learning for both clergy and laity about the ministry of justice, peace, and reconciliation. Additionally, the center’s African Great Lakes Initiative, which partners with African church leaders and institutions to strengthen their work for reconciliation in Burundi, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Kenya, Rwanda, South Sudan, Tanzania, and Uganda, is an important part of the CFR’s work. A similar initiative in Northeast Asia continues with the involvement of Christian leaders from China, Japan, and North and South Korea.

The center hosts a series of lectures titled “Reconciliation Conversations: Parts of the Whole.” The goal of the series is to explore the idea of reconciliation and what it means in the life of a Christian from a variety of perspectives and to open up important conversations not only among the faculty, staff, and students at Duke Divinity School, but also in the broader Durham, North Carolina, community. Another initiative is the center’s Resources for Reconciliation book series. To date, the center has published seven books that expand themes of reconciliation in diverse settings and with unique voices. The books are cowritten by an author who is primarily a theologian and an author who is primarily a practitioner. For details about the Center for Reconciliation, visit https://divinity.duke.edu/initiatives/cfr or call (919) 660-3578.

Duke Initiatives in Theology and the Arts

Duke Initiatives in Theology and the Arts (DITA) promotes a vibrant engagement of Christian theology and the arts at Duke Divinity School and beyond. This engagement is a two-way activity, aiming to demonstrate both what theology can bring to the arts and what the arts can bring to theology.

Through an integrated program of teaching, research, and artistic engagement, DITA seeks to contribute toward transformative leadership in the church, world, and academy, and especially with respect to the role of the arts in these spheres; engage with pressing issues of faith in culture and society that are articulated through the arts; and strengthen the academy with respect to the arts as media of faith.

The program is committed to fostering and encouraging artistic practice integrally linked to its research and teaching. It organizes, sponsors, and promotes a wide range of events including concerts, exhibitions, and multimedia commissions within the Divinity School, in partnership with other departments of the Duke University, and wider afield through its establishment of the Duke-Cambridge Collaboration. Information on DITA’s past and future events, and its teaching and research activities, can be found at http://www.divinity.duke.edu/initiatives-centers/dita.

Duke Youth Academy for Christian Formation

The Youth Academy for Christian Formation seeks to revive interest in theological formation and education as both profession and passion among the nation’s most promising youth. The academy is a year-long program that begins with a week-long residency on the campus of Duke University that is partially funded by a generous grant from Lilly Endowment Inc. The academy provides the opportunity for talented youth to pursue an intense process of theological learning and study. Through Christian practices of worship, prayer, hospitality, service, study, and solitude, youth form habits and develop tools for theological reflection, ethical and moral decision making, and discernment for Christian living. The Youth Academy is open to youth of all communions who exhibit a love of learning and a desire for God. For details about the Duke Youth Academy, visit https://duyouth.duke.edu.
Friendship House

Friendship House is a residential ministerial formation opportunity in which Duke Divinity School students and persons with intellectual and developmental disabilities (friend residents) live together in community. The Office of Ministerial Formation at the school operates the program in which three students share a four-bedroom apartment with one person with an intellectual or developmental disability. Students gain through lived experience a deeper understanding of the image of God in persons, a broader understanding of belonging, increased empathetic capacity, and an enlarged picture of the kingdom of God. Students quickly learn that persons with disabilities are actually “differently-abled” and have gifts to contribute to any community, especially the church.

The transformational experience Friendship House offers is encouraged through the intentional community commitments of eating together, praying together, and celebrating together. Student resident directors provide resources for student and friend residents, and support the organization of life together.

Friendship House is embedded within a disabilities supportive neighborhood, the North Street Development, in Durham, North Carolina. The program is also deeply connected with Reality Ministries, whose mission is to create opportunities for teens and adults with and without developmental disabilities to experience belonging, kinship, and the life-changing reality of Christ’s love. Friend residents, and students as they are able, participate in this supportive ministry. Experienced altogether, Friendship House offers a unique opportunity to grow into one’s calling authentically, with integrity and deeper faithfulness.

Hispanic House of Studies

The Hispanic House of Studies develops leaders who understand the cultural nuances of ministering to Hispanic and Latino/a populations with widely disparate backgrounds. Through its Caminantes program, the Hispanic House offers spiritual formation from a Hispanic perspective and helps students practice and hone skills for ministry among Latinos. Through the Encuentro program, Methodist students, faculty, staff, and pastors have a learning encounter with Latin America. The Courses of Study in El Salvador, Guatemala, and Perú are initiatives intended to establish a more regular theological education for the Methodist Church in Central America, while giving students, alumni serving pastoral appointments, doctoral students, and faculty the opportunity to teach theology in a unique context.

The Hispanic House of Studies offers financial aid in the form of apprenticeships and field education placements to students who demonstrate talent and passion in this ministry.

The Hispanic House of Studies also partners with the United Methodist conferences in North Carolina to foster innovation and an expanded imagination of how to develop a strong theological, biblical, and practical vision that will resonate with Hispanic and non-Hispanic communities across the state and generate thriving Hispanic/Latino communities. Two such offerings are the Caminantes for Pastors program, designed for Methodist clergy, and the Annual Retreat for Pastors Serving Hispanic/Latino Communities, which provide pastors an opportunity for theological reflection, Sabbath, and networking. The Hispanic House also offers continuing education programs such as workshops and seminars.

The Hispanic House of Studies, Thriving Rural Communities, and the Clergy Health Initiative are programs operated by the Divinity School in collaboration with The Duke Endowment and the North Carolina and Western North Carolina Conferences of the United Methodist Church in an effort to form communities that work with and are enriched by local United Methodist congregations.

For details about the Hispanic House of Studies, visit http://divinity.duke.edu/initiatives-centers/hispanic-house.

Institute of Preaching

The Institute of Preaching is a series of retreats designed to help United Methodist pastors from the Florida Conference and the Western North Carolina Conference improve their preaching over a period of nine months. All full-time elders and local pastors who do not anticipate a change of appointment in the coming year are eligible to apply.
Lectures

The Kenneth Willis Clark Lectures
Established in 1984, the Kenneth Willis Clark Lectureship Fund honors the life and work of the Reverend Kenneth Willis Clark, a Duke Divinity School faculty member for thirty-six years. Each year this fund enables the Divinity School to offer a distinguished program with special emphasis on New Testament studies and textual criticism.

The James A. Gray Lectures
These annual lectures, established in 1950 as part of a bequest made in 1947 by James A. Gray of Winston-Salem, North Carolina, are delivered during the Divinity School Convocation & Pastors’ School.

The Franklin S. Hickman Lectures
This lectureship was established in 1966 as part of a bequest by Mrs. Franklin S. Hickman in memory of her late husband, Dr. Franklin Simpson Hickman, professor of psychology of religion, Duke Divinity School, and dean of Duke Chapel at Duke University. This lectureship enables the Divinity School to bring practicing ministers of extraordinary qualities to lecture and preach, often in conjunction with Convocation & Pastors’ School, and to participate in Divinity School classes, worship, and informal sessions with students and faculty.

The Jameson Jones Lectures
A legacy of the ninth dean of Duke Divinity School, the Jameson Jones Fund provides for an annual lecture in the practice of ministry. Occasional seminars in preaching are offered in conjunction with the named lectures.

The David C. and Virginia R. Steinmetz Lectures
This annual lectureship was established in 2008 by the late David C. Steinmetz, the Amos Ragan Kearns Distinguished Professor Emeritus of the History of Christianity at Duke Divinity School, and his wife, Dr. Virginia R. Steinmetz, director of Graduate Student Career Services at Duke University until retiring in 2011. Dr. David Steinmetz, who came to Duke in 1971, was a specialist in the history of Christianity in late medieval and early modern Europe.

Pastoral Care Additional Opportunity
A one-year certificate or nondegree residency program in clinical pastoral education is available through Duke University Medical Center for persons who hold the master of divinity degree or the equivalent. Such training usually provides three course credits of certified clinical pastoral education credit. These persons may enroll in the Divinity School as special students for a course each semester. Admission to either a single unit or the residency program of clinical pastoral education is distinct from admission to the Divinity School.

Applications for CPE enrollment are available in the Pastoral Services office, Duke University Medical Center. For more information about any of these programs, contact the associate dean for academic programs, Duke Divinity School, and see the bulletin section on the master of theology degree program.

Study Leave for Ministry Professionals
Duke Divinity School offers Christian institutional leaders, pastors, program staff, and laity of all traditions the opportunity to spend a one-week leave in self-directed study, worship, and prayer on the Duke University campus. Participants have full access to the university and divinity libraries and to community worship and lecture opportunities. Class auditing and conversations with Divinity School faculty also are available. Ten sessions of study leave are offered each academic year.

Thriving Rural Communities
The Thriving Rural Communities initiative works to foster thriving rural North Carolina communities by cultivating faithful rural Christian leadership and fruitful rural United Methodist congregations. Thriving Rural Communities seeks to fulfill its mission by: (1) training new leaders through the Rural Ministry Fellowship/Scholarship program and the monthly Rural Ministry Colloquia at Duke Divinity School; (2) resourcing rural church partners through leadership development gatherings and community development grants for nine partner thriving rural congregations; (3) connecting rural clergy and churches through teaching and learning events, workshops, and rural leadership conferences; and (4) inspiring positive change in partner institutions by working in partnership with leaders from Duke Divinity School, The Duke Endowment, and the North Carolina and Western North Carolina Conferences of the United Methodist Church. More information on the Thriving Rural Communities initiative can be found on its website at http://thrivingruralcommunities.org or by calling (919) 660-3447.

Thriving Rural Communities, Hispanic House of Studies, and the Clergy Health Initiative are programs operated by the Divinity School in collaboration with The Duke Endowment and the North Carolina and Western North Carolina Conferences of the United Methodist Church in an effort to form communities that work with and are enriched by local United Methodist congregations.

United Methodist Full Connection Seminar

This seminar is a theological workshop designed to help United Methodists participating in the ordination process prepare for their board interviews and written examinations. Participants listen to recorded lectures in advance of the seminar and use the on-campus time for discussion, worship, and meetings with denominational officials. Participants who concurrently register for Study Leave can receive informal review and critique of their written papers.

WNCC Clergy Retreat

The annual WNCC Clergy Retreat is an opportunity to celebrate the connection of elders in the Western North Carolina Conference of the United Methodist Church. In odd numbered years, this event is a “Day Apart,” featuring a day of worship and lectures. In even numbered years, the event is a multiday, faculty-led retreat centering on a broad theme beneficial to developing the leadership of the conference’s clergy.

Ministry in the Vicinity

Ministers and churches in the vicinity of Duke University are especially welcome to avail themselves of continuing theological education programs, facilities, and other services of the Divinity School and its faculty and students. They are invited to attend public lectures, visit with distinguished lecturers, participate in in-residence seminars and conferences, audit selected courses, and use the resources of the Divinity School Library. Divinity School faculty, staff, and students are generally available for preaching, teaching, and other services in churches of the community and region.

For more information about lifelong learning programs offered by the Divinity School, call (919) 613-5323, e-mail to events@div.duke.edu or visit http://divinity.duke.edu/events.
Degree Programs

The academic work of Duke Divinity School presently embraces seven degree programs: the master of arts in Christian studies (MACS), ordinarily a one-year degree designed to introduce students to theological reflection; the master of arts in Christian practice (MACP), ordinarily a two-year degree designed to introduce students to theological reflection; the master of theological studies (MTS), ordinarily of two academic years; the master of divinity degree (MDiv), ordinarily of three academic years; the master of theology (ThM); a doctor of ministry (DMin), a professional doctorate; and a doctor of theology (ThD), ordinarily a four- or five-year doctoral program. The MACS and MACP are introductory theological degrees; the MDiv, ThM, and DMin are graduate-professional degrees; the MTS is a general academic degree; and the ThD is a doctoral degree focused on the ministries and practices of Christian communities. Admission to candidacy for any of the master’s degrees presupposes the completion of a bachelor’s degree or its equivalent. Admission to the DMin or ThD program presupposes an MDiv, MTS, or comparable master’s degree. The MACP and DMin operate on a hybrid of intensive residencies and online synchronous and asynchronous classrooms.

The MACS and MACP are designed primarily for students with vocations to lay ministry. The MACS introduces students to theological reflection through interdisciplinary study, while also providing some freedom (six of the required eight courses are electives) to explore particular areas of study. The MACP degree offers students the opportunity to explore theological study in a general way or through theological reflection on a specific theme (organized by cohort) for the purpose of enriching their Christian service in both the church and the world.

Students preparing for ordination into the Christian ministry and requiring appropriate graduate-professional education will enroll for the master of divinity degree. Students whose acquired academic standing, under this basic degree program, entitles them to further specialized study may advance their command of selected theological disciplines by applying for an additional year of studies leading to the master of theology degree. Together, these two degree programs constitute a sequence. Although the master of divinity degree fulfills requirements for ordination by prevailing ecclesiastical standards, the ThM program may assist in assuring a larger measure of professional preparation. Application for admission to the ThM program is open to graduates of other schools who have completed the basic theological degree.

The MACP degree is designed to introduce students to disciplined theological reflection as a means for enriching their Christian service in both the church and the world. The degree offers students the opportunity to reflect theologically upon practices of lay professional ministry or other Christian service. The degree is provided primarily for those seeking to enhance lay vocations while remaining in a full-time ministry context or other professional position.

The MTS provides an introduction to the theological disciplines as foundation for a graduate degree (PhD, ThD); preparation for lay religious degrees other than Christian education; grounding for teaching, research, or practice in another field (e.g., history, psychology, music); enhancement of institutional roles; and personal enrichment.

The MACS degree is designed to introduce students to theological reflection through interdisciplinary study. The degree offers students the opportunity to explore theological study in a general way or through theological reflection on a specific theme for the purpose of enriching their Christian service in both the church and the world. This theological study is particularly suited to interdisciplinary discourse within Duke University. The MACS degree is not intended to serve as direct preparation for ordained ministry or doctoral study.

The DMin degree is a professional doctorate that has been a mainstay of theological education for decades, providing the opportunity for post-MDiv education to pastors and other Christian leaders. Generally, the degree serves people who have earned the MDiv degree, are ordained, and are currently serving as associate or senior pastors, or as executives of church-related or other Christian institutions.

The ThD program provides students with academically rigorous training, comparable to the demands of the PhD, focused on the ministries and practices of Christian communities. The program centers upon areas of study often neglected by traditional PhD programs, such as worship, preaching, evangelism, and the arts.

The specific requirements for each of these degrees are found in the succeeding pages. Completed coursework cannot be credited toward more than one degree. Reciprocal transfer of credit for coursework taken under the MDiv or MTS programs requires the permission of the associate dean for academic programs.
Generally, courses in the Bulletin of Duke University: Duke Divinity School (the Divinity School carrying an 800 number or above and belonging to the fields noted above) are applicable to doctoral programs of study; however, ThD students must seek the permission of the director of the ThD program before registering for 700-level courses. Courses at the 900 level are open to qualified MDiv, ThM, or MTS students by permission of the instructor.

Qualified persons who desire to pursue studies leading to the degree of MA or PhD in religion, under the administration of The Graduate School, are advised to apply to the dean of that school. Inquiries concerning fellowships or specific requirements of the program of graduate studies in religion may be addressed to the director, 209 Gray Building.

Administration of the Curriculum

Students are required at the time of each registration period to plan their course of study with the consultation and approval of their assigned faculty advisors. Such programs are subject to the review and approval of the Committee on Academic Policies, the dean, and the associate dean for academic programs. It is the responsibility of each student to see that all requirements for graduation (and for ecclesiastical ordination) are met, and that any special permission granted to deviate from the normal program is properly recorded in the personal files in the registry.

Education Records

Duke University adheres to a policy permitting students access to their education records and certain confidential financial information. Students may request review of any information contained in their education records and may, using appropriate procedures, challenge the content of these records. An explanation of the complete policy on education records may be obtained from the Office of the University Registrar.

No information, except directory information (see below) and notices about academic progress to parents and guardians, contained in any student records is released to unauthorized persons outside the university or to unauthorized persons on the campus, without the written consent of the student. It is the responsibility of the student to provide the Office of the University Registrar and other university offices, as appropriate, with the necessary specific authorization and consent.

Directory information includes name, addresses, e-mail addresses, telephone listing, photograph, major field of study, participation in officially recognized activities and sports, weight and height of members of athletic teams, dates of attendance, degrees and awards received, and most recent previous educational institution attended. This information may be released to appear in public documents and may otherwise be disclosed without student consent unless a written request not to release this information is filed in the Office of the University Registrar.

Grading System

The Divinity School employs the grading scale with the letters A, B, C, D, that have been defined as follows: A, excellent; B, good; C, satisfactory; D, passing; F, failure; W, withdrew, discretion of the dean; I, incomplete; P, passed; NC, noncredit; Z, year course. For the MDiv, and MTS degrees, individuals or classes may in certain instances and at the discretion of the instructor, be graded simply as pass or fail. Such P/F grades shall be limited to no more than 25 percent of a student’s total curriculum at Duke and will not be figured in the grade point average. The Pass/Fail grading basis must be elected before the end of Drop/Add for any enrollment period.

The denotations are defined as follows according to quality points: A, 4; A- 3.7; B+, 3.3; B, 3.0; B-, 2.7; C+, 2.3; C, 2.0; C-, 1.7; D+, 1.3; and D, 1.0.

In the core or foundational courses for the MACS, MDiv, and MTS degrees, the grading is as follows: A, B, C, and F. The grade of D does not exist in core or foundational courses. Students are required to obtain the grade of C- or better in order to pass a core or foundational course. Students earning a grade lower than a C- in a core or foundational course shall be obliged to retake the course for credit and pass the course with a grade of C- or better. (See the relevant pages in the Bulletin of Duke University: Duke Divinity School for specified core or foundational courses.)

Advanced Placement

MDiv and MTS students may, on the basis of undergraduate courses, a religion major, or other substantial preparation, be given advanced placement in one or more of the nine required subjects. Such placement normally presumes at least two college courses in a given area (e.g., Old Testament) with a satisfactory grade average and permits the student to fulfill the requirement by electing an advanced course in the same area (e.g., an advanced Old Testamament course in place of Old Testament 752). Advanced placement must be granted by the division chair and cannot occur until after a student matriculates in a Duke Divinity School degree program. Courses taken for advanced placement cannot simultaneously count as a limited elective.

Limited Program

MDiv and MTS students whose academic work after admission is not satisfactory may be placed on limited program by the Academic Policies Committee and are required to reduce their course load or to make other academic adjustments. The Academic Policies Committee may also place students on limited program due to circumstances stemming from medical conditions or bereavement. MDiv and MTS students who during the first year of Divinity School maintain less than a C (2.0) average, including failures, ordinarily will be required to withdraw from the school or be placed on an involuntary leave of absence, depending on the circumstances.

Incomplete

A student may petition the associate dean for academic programs to receive a grade of incomplete in a course.
This petition must be filed in writing on the prescribed form with the registry on or before the last official day of classes of the semester in question. Such permission may be granted when a student, through some circumstances beyond control, such as illness, has been hindered from meeting the course requirements. Adjudication of the petition will rest with the associate dean and the instructor concerned. The associate dean will communicate in writing to the student regarding the joint decision and any conditions attached thereto. Typically, an incomplete becomes either an F or a permanent incomplete unless it is removed through completion of assigned work by the following dates: for incompletes incurred in fall semester courses, February 1; for incompletes incurred in spring semester courses, September 1; and for incompletes incurred in summer semester courses, October 1. No incomplete may extend beyond one year from the end of the semester in which the incomplete was granted. The grade of permanent incomplete is reserved for instances in which the student’s work in the course was substantial and of passing quality.

Change of Courses or Withdrawal

Students are permitted to change their course registrations, without incurring a penalty, during the prescribed Drop/Add period at the beginning of each semester. The adding of a course during the second week of Drop/Add may require the permission of the instructor of that course. Any refund of tuition related to withdrawals will be according to the published schedule.

No student will be permitted to withdraw from a course after one-half of the semester without incurring failure, except for causes adjudged by the associate dean for academic programs to be beyond the student’s control. Conditions of genuine emergency and not considerations of convenience will be determinative in considering requests, which must be submitted in writing on academic petition forms.

Leave of Absence

A student wishing to take a leave of absence for one or two semesters, and intending to return to a degree program in Duke Divinity School, should so notify the associate dean for academic programs in writing in advance. Students may take a leave of absence for personal or medical reasons. Students who wish to take a medical leave of absence must provide the Office of Academic Formation and Programs with medical documentation. A student who wishes to take a leave of absence beyond one full academic year must petition for an exception from the associate dean for academic programs.

Withdrawals from School

Students deciding to withdraw from Duke Divinity School, for whatever reason, should consult with their faculty advisors and the associate dean for academic programs, and must file a written statement of withdrawal prior to departure. All students who have officially withdrawn or whose leave of absence extends beyond one academic year but who wish later to return to Duke Divinity School will be required to reapply for admission, and provide whatever documentation is required by the director of admissions.
Involuntary Administrative Withdrawal

Students who exhibit harmful, potentially harmful, or disruptive behavior toward themselves or others due to apparent medical or psychological distress, and who do not request a voluntary withdrawal, may be subject to involuntary withdrawal from Duke Divinity School if their behavior renders them unable to effectively function in the Divinity School community. Such behavior includes, but is not limited to, that which:

- poses a significant threat of danger and/or harm to self and/or other members of the Divinity School community; and/or
- interferes with the lawful activities or basic rights of other students, Divinity School employees, or visitors.

Any member of the Divinity School community who has reason to believe that a student may meet the standard for an involuntary administrative withdrawal may contact the associate dean for academic programs or his/her designee. The associate dean for academic programs or designee, in consultation with professionals from Student Health and/or Counseling and Psychological Services, will conduct a preliminary review. When possible, the associate dean for academic programs will meet with the student in question to discuss the information that has been presented and give the student an opportunity to respond. The associate dean for academic programs may mandate that the student be evaluated by a specified health professional within a given time frame, if an evaluation has not already been done. In the instances described above, the associate dean for academic programs or designee will make the final decision about involuntary administrative withdrawal. A written statement citing the reasons will be forwarded to the student. At any point in the process, a student may request a voluntary withdrawal.

Directed Study

Students may, with permission of their faculty advisors and the instructors involved, take one or two units of Directed Study, preferably not in the same semester. These independent study courses under individual faculty supervision are ordinarily in subjects at an advanced level which cover material not available in the regular curriculum. Students wishing to take more than two courses by directed study must have permission from the associate dean for academic programs in consultation with the student's faculty advisor and the instructor who agrees to direct that study.

Cognate Courses

Students may, in consultation with their faculty advisors, take up to two graduate level courses in other departments of Duke University or at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Permission for more than two such cognate courses must be secured from the associate dean for academic programs. Courses in Duke’s Department of Religion do not count within this limit.

Graduation with Distinction

Students who achieve a grade point average of 3.85 for overall academic records in the MACS, MACP, MDiv and MTS programs are granted the degree summa cum laude. Students with a grade point average of 3.65 or above are awarded their degrees, magna cum laude. Such distinction is calculated on the basis of letter grades only, totaling at least three-quarters of all courses taken at Duke, and will be indicated on the student’s diploma.

Part-Time Students

Students taking less than three courses in any given semester are considered part-time students and should consult with the Office of Financial Aid regarding eligibility.

Auditors

Full-time students paying for at least three courses are permitted to audit additional courses at no extra cost, if space permits, with the approval of the instructor of the class. Special students, part-time students, or persons not candidates for degrees in the university are charged an audit fee for each such course.
The Master of Arts in Christian Studies Degree

Grounded in central elements of Christian thought and practice, the MACS degree is designed to introduce students to theological reflection through interdisciplinary study. The degree offers students the opportunity to explore theological study in a general way or through theological reflection on a specific theme for the purpose of enriching their Christian service in both the church and the world. This theological study is particularly suited to interdisciplinary discourse within Duke University. The MACS is a one-year, residential degree encompassing eight courses completed in two semesters. The MACS is not intended to serve as direct preparation for ordained ministry or doctoral study.

Requirements

The requirements for the degree of master of arts in Christian studies are:

- eight courses and no less than two semesters of residency (the MACS degree is not eligible for credit transfer);
- completion of the MACS core course, offered over two semesters (fall and spring);
- completion of a first-year writing assessment;
- compilation of a portfolio to be reviewed by a faculty advisor;
- the maintenance of a cumulative grade point average of 2.0; and
- completion of all requirements for the degree within a three-year period.

Administration

In consultation with their faculty advisor, students will draft a set of program goals and project a course plan. At each registration conference, students and their advisor will reassess program goals and the course plan adopted by the student. Required courses for the MACS are: the MACS year-long core course Christian Studies 705 & 706 (Inhabiting the Christian Drama), two electives in their area of interest, and four open electives. MACS students are not eligible to enroll in core courses associated with the MDiv and MTS degrees. Additionally, MACS students will complete a first-year writing assessment in their first semester, which will provide feedback on their writing abilities and serve as a benchmark to demonstrate growth in the program. As a means to exhibit growth and understanding of theological reflection through interdisciplinary study, every MACS student will compile a student portfolio that a faculty member will review in the student’s final semester. Both the portfolio and the faculty member’s final evaluation are submitted to the associate dean for academic programs.

Continuation Requirements

The progress of all students is reviewed at the end of every semester by the Academic Policies Committee. The following are the continuation requirements for students enrolled in the MACS degree program:

- The student must maintain a cumulative grade point average of 2.0. If a student falls below this level he or she may, at the discretion of the associate dean for academic programs, be dismissed, placed on an involuntary leave of absence, or asked to participate in a limited program. This means that the student may enroll in no more than three courses.
- At the end of the second semester the student on limited program who does not attain a cumulative GPA of 2.0 is dismissed. In exceptional cases a student who shows substantial improvement the second semester but does not quite attain a GPA of 2.0 may be given a third semester to do so.
- The student must demonstrate progress in the program by completing courses. A student who has three or more unresolved incompletes or a pattern of multiple withdrawals may, at the discretion of the associate dean for academic programs, be dismissed, placed on an involuntary leave of absence until the incomplete work is resolved, or asked to participate in a limited program.
The Master of Arts in Christian Practice Degree

Grounded in central elements of Christian thought and practice, the MACP degree is designed to introduce students to disciplined theological reflection as a means for enriching their Christian service in both the church and the world. The degree offers students the opportunity to reflect theologically upon practices of lay professional ministry or other Christian service. The degree is provided primarily for those seeking to enhance lay vocations while remaining in a full-time ministry context or other professional position. The MACP operates on a hybrid pedagogy of intensive residencies and online synchronous and asynchronous classrooms.

Course requirements include a core sequence that will deepen students’ knowledge and appreciation of the Bible and the Christian theological tradition. Courses specific to concentrations of study will build upon that core, engaging practices of ministry in today’s world. A third element is the ongoing seminar in Christian formation that seeks to integrate learning with spiritual practice. A cornerstone and capstone course sequence offered in the first and final terms offers resources to introduce and integrate theology and practice over the two-year program.

Requirements

The requirements for the degree of master of arts in Christian practice are:

- eighteen courses completed in no less than two academic years (the MACP degree is not eligible for credit transfer);
- compilation of a portfolio to be reviewed by a faculty advisor;
- the maintenance of a cumulative grade point average of at least 2.0; and
- completion of all requirements for the degree within a four-year period.

Administration

The MACP offers a hybrid pedagogy of intensive residencies and online synchronous and asynchronous classrooms. All students will have course requirements that include a five-course core sequence designed to deepen students’ knowledge and appreciation of the Bible and the Christian theological tradition. The five core courses are Old Testament 706 (Introduction to Old Testament), New Testament 707 (Introduction to New Testament), Church History 708 (Introduction to Church History), Christian Theology 705 (Introduction to Christian Theology), and Liturgical Studies 709 (Introduction to Christian Worship). The MACP will offer various concentrations for study, which will focus on specific practices of ministry in today’s world. The “Serving Congregations” track is for people serving congregations in various forms of ministry, such as youth and children’s ministers, worship leaders, pastoral caregivers, and mission and outreach directors. The “Engaging the World” track is for people interested in practices of reconciliation, Christian responses to poverty and injustice, and ministry in intercultural contexts. The “Forming Scriptural Imagination” track is for people seeking deeper reflection on Christian practice within the context of their current vocation. In the first term, MACP students will take a cornerstone course, Christian Education 705 (Mission and Ministry) to introduce the theology and practice of ministry. After completing the core sequence in the first year of study, MACP students will complete a series of elective courses in the second year that will build upon the core courses and focus reflection on particular areas of Christian practice in church and in the world. Students will also participate in an ongoing seminar in Christian formation that will serve to integrate academics with spiritual practice. In the final term, students will take a capstone course, Christian Practice 701 (Practicing Ministry), bringing to bear insights and experience from all components in the program. As a means to exhibit growth and understanding of theological reflection, every MACP student will compile a student portfolio that a faculty member will review in the student’s fourth semester. Both the portfolio and the faculty member’s final evaluation are submitted to the associate dean for academic programs.

Continuation Requirements

The progress of all students is reviewed at the end of every semester by the Academic Policies Committee. The following are the continuation requirements for students enrolled in the MACP degree program:

- The student must maintain a cumulative grade point average of 2.0. If a student falls below this level he or she may, at the discretion of the associate dean for academic programs be dismissed or placed on an involuntary leave of absence.
- At the end of the second semester the student on limited program who does not attain a cumulative GPA of 2.0 is dismissed. In exceptional cases a student who shows substantial improvement the second semester but does not quite attain a GPA of 2.0 may be given a third semester to do so.
- The student must demonstrate progress in the program by completing courses. A student who has three or more unresolved incompletes or a pattern of multiple withdrawals may, at the discretion of the associate dean for academic programs, be dismissed, placed on an involuntary leave of absence until the incomplete work is resolved, or asked to participate in a limited program.

The Basic Theological Degree-Master of Divinity

The faculty of Duke Divinity School views the curriculum as dynamic, not static; constantly endeavors to review the curriculum as a whole and to tailor individual courses to meet the needs of a rapidly changing world; and periodically commits itself to overall curricular change. Major curricular revisions were instituted in 1948, 1959, 1967, and 1987. The most recent revision took effect in the 2005 fall semester.

This degree program is structured to elicit a positive response to (1) the challenge to provide an adequate professional education for ministry; (2) the needed variability of ministries in today’s complex world; (3) the norms of university education; and (4) the Christian tradition.

Aims of the Curriculum

The aims of the basic degree program are to instill in students a specific set of skills, which should be strongly advanced during the seminary years:

- the ability to read scripture and the great texts of the Christian tradition with attentiveness, nuanced understanding, humility, and a lively imagination;
- the ability to think theologically, in a way that is both faithful to the tradition and responsive to the challenges of our time;
- the ability to think critically, both about the practices of the church and about the world in which the church finds itself—and to be agents of transformation in both;
- the ability to think ecumenically and globally, with sensitivity to insights that the church in the wider world can share with the church in North America;
- the ability to teach and preach the gospel with clarity, power, and reverence;
• the ability to minister in context—to act with compassion and effectiveness in order to provide leadership for the church’s ministry of worship, service, and transformation in the world; and

• the ability to sustain a commitment to living a life ordered toward holiness, justice, peace, and reconciliation.

Of course, goals of such scope cannot be neatly programmed in any curriculum, and the degree of achievement (in seminary and beyond) will vary with individuals and their own motives and incentives.

The aims of Duke Divinity School may also be narrated in response to the four areas of the MDiv degree program described by the Association of Theological Schools: religious heritage, cultural context, personal and spiritual formation, and capacity for ministerial and public leadership as follows:

• read and exegete scripture and the great texts of the Christian tradition for the purpose of preaching and teaching the gospel with clarity, power, and reverence;

• think theologically about the doctrines and practices of the church and about the world in which the church finds itself, in a way that is both faithful historically to the tradition and responsive to the challenges of our time;

• cultivate habits of spiritual disciplines to sustain a Christian life ordered toward holiness, justice, peace, and reconciliation; and

• act with compassion and effectiveness in leading the church’s ministries of worship and preaching, education and formation, service, and transformation in the world.

The Basic Curriculum General Description

Graduation requirements for the master of divinity degree consist of satisfactory completion of twenty-four courses, with an overall grade point average of C (2.0) or better: nine basic courses or their equivalent; five limited electives; ten electives; two units of approved field education; and three evaluations.

The basic curriculum provides for foundational courses in biblical, historical, theological, and ministerial studies representative of the tradition and regarded as indispensable background for subsequent elective work and individual program information. These required courses total eight of the twenty-four courses necessary for graduation. They are Old Testament 752 and 753, New Testament 754, Church History 750 and 751, American Christianity 756, Chris-

At least one course must be elected from each of five designated lists of offerings (available at registration) in advanced Church Ministry, Black Church Studies, World Christianity, New Testament exegesis, and Practicing Theology in Ministry. The opportunity of advanced standing adds further variability to the academic program, depending on the nature and quality of the student’s undergraduate academic work. Ten courses are available for working out an individualized program of studies leading to specialized preparation in academic depth and to professional ministerial competence.

Required courses may be staffed by one or more professors and are planned to treat subject matter both in scope and depth at the graduate level.

The formulation of the student’s course of studies is guided by certain broad but normative recommendations for area distribution of courses and by the advice and counsel of appointed faculty advisors or authorized directors. Students and advisors are directed to read diligently the paragraphs on elective studies and professional aims and distribution of elective studies in the section on administration of the curriculum.

All academic programs are subject to review and emendation by the dean, the associate dean for academic administration, and the associate dean for academic programs for the fulfillment of the aims of the curriculum. The declared vocational and professional objective of the student is of central importance both to the student and to the faculty advisor in planning the student’s comprehensive study program.

Six semesters of residential study are ordinarily required for the completion of the degree. With permission of the associate dean for academic programs, certified nonresidential study, not exceeding the equivalent of four courses, may be permitted to a candidate for the basic degree.

The normal academic load is four courses per semester. A student with demonstrated competence may, with the consent of the academic advisor and the associate dean for academic programs, enroll for an additional course in the middler and senior years.
General Features of the Basic Curriculum

The following is a brief summary of the basic curriculum:

- Twenty-four courses and six or more semesters of residency are required for graduation. A normal academic load is four courses per semester.
- Each student is required to complete two approved assignments in field education (with or without remuneration) under supervision. Such assignments might include an internship, a summer of full-time work, two semesters of part-time work, or involvement in church or community service. The essential criteria for graduation credits are that the amount and quality of supervision be approved by the Office of Field Education, and that the student be required to evaluate and correlate the experience directly.
- Each student is required to attend and participate in a spiritual formation small group during his/her first year of study.

Admission to candidacy for the master of divinity degree is admission to the regular program of studies. The suggested paradigm defines the normal sequence of the student’s developing program. Students enrolled for less than three courses are considered part-time and are not eligible for institutional financial aid.

Evaluation/Self-Evaluation

The successful completion of the MDiv degree program rests upon four components: (1) grades; (2) spiritual formation; (3) field education; and (4) faculty evaluations of the student portfolio. Grades are assigned for each course credit and are explained in more detail in an earlier section. Evaluation of spiritual formation and field education begin with self evaluations by each student. A self-evaluation prepared by the student is considered by the spiritual formation group leader and field education supervisor/lay committee. An evaluation of the student’s learning is then completed by the spiritual formation group leader and field education supervisor and lay supervision committee. The self-evaluations and evaluations are included in the fourth component of the evaluation process.

The fourth component of the evaluation process, faculty evaluations of the student portfolio, occurs twice during the MDiv degree program. The middler review of the student portfolio follows the first year of study (or completion of eight course credits, spiritual formation, and at least one field education unit). The senior review of the student portfolio occurs during the winter of the third year (or completion of sixteen to twenty course credits, spiritual formation, and two field education units). The faculty evaluations consider the student’s portfolio in light of the curricular aims. The student’s portfolio is compiled over the duration of the degree program and includes self evaluations, sample writing assignments and evaluations from spiritual formation, field education, and coursework.

Sample student portfolios along with other direct and indirect means of discernment are considered annually by the curriculum committee and faculty of Duke Divinity School for the purpose of assessing and revising degree programs. For further information and guidelines related to the plans for assessment of degree programs, see the website http://divinity.duke.edu/academics under Academics.

Information from the portfolio is protected by the statutes concerning privacy and confidentiality. It will not be shared by the Divinity School with any extra-university party except upon written release of the student, and then only in summary fashion. The evaluation is a graduation requirement that must be satisfied as any other requirement. Students who require significant additional work as judged by the evaluator will have to complete that work prior to graduation.

Student Pastors and Others with Heavy Outside Employment

Students in candidacy for the master of divinity degree who serve as full-time pastors or who have a comparable workload outside the Divinity School are advised that their degree programs will usually require a fourth academic year.

For student pastors, modification of a four-year schedule requires the approval of the associate dean for academic programs on recommendation of the director of field education.

- Students with pastoral charges or comparable extracurricular responsibilities ordinarily will enroll for no more than three courses.
- Students who accept pastoral charges in their middler or senior year are required to have the prior approval of the director of field education. Such students will be required to restrict their coursework in accordance with the regulation above.
- Modifications of these regulations will be scrupulously administered. Academic achievement, normally a B average, must be demonstrated before any modification of these requirements is allowed. Because adequate indication of the student’s academic proficiency is not available before the completion of the first academic year, no modification of the first regulation above is possible for junior students.

- Students who secure minor employment outside the channels of the Office of Field Education are required to inform the director of field education. Students carrying outside employment will be advised to limit their academic load.

- Ordinarily a student may not commute more than fifty miles (one way). Students living farther away than this will be required to stay in Durham, North Carolina, during the academic week.

- Student assistant pastors (not pastors-in-charge) may enroll for a full academic load if they are not on limited program, if their work is under the supervision of the director of field education, and if their field duties involve no more than fifteen hours per week.

Continuation Requirements

The progress of all students is reviewed at the end of every semester by the Academic Policies Committee. The following are the continuation requirements for students enrolled in the MDiv degree program:

- The student must maintain a cumulative grade point average of 2.0. If a student falls below this level he or she may, at the discretion of the academic dean for academic formation and programs, be dismissed, placed on an involuntary leave of absence, or asked to participate in a limited program. This means that the student may enroll in no more than three courses.

- At the end of the second semester the student on limited program who does not attain a cumulative GPA of 2.0 is dismissed. In exceptional cases a student who shows substantial improvement the second semester but does not quite attain a GPA of 2.0 may be given a third semester to do so.

- The student must demonstrate progress in the program by completing courses. A student who has three or more unresolved incompletes or a pattern of multiple withdrawals may, at the discretion of the associate dean for academic programs, be dismissed, placed on an involuntary leave of absence until the incomplete work is resolved, or asked to participate in a limited program.

The MDiv degree must be completed within six years (twelve semesters). The minimum time in which a degree can be completed is three years (six semesters).

To be classified as full time, a student must be enrolled in three or more courses in a semester.

Study Abroad

Study abroad, with transferable credit toward graduation, may be allowed for a candidate for the master of divinity degree by approval of the associate dean for academic programs. A strong academic record is a prerequisite. Ordinarily, permission for such study may be granted to students who have completed the work of the middler year. Both the institution abroad and a specific course of study proposed must have the prior approval of the associate dean for academic programs. Required courses and the two field education units must usually be completed at Duke.

Transfer Credits

Transfer of credit to Duke Divinity School, leading to candidacy for the degree of master of divinity, will normally be limited to four courses. For the MTS program, two courses may be considered for transfer. Courses in which the student received a grade lower than B- will not be considered for transfer credit. Grades from credit transfer courses do not transfer to the Divinity School, only course credits. Courses taken online or mostly online will also not be accepted. Duke Divinity will accept only courses completed at an ATS-accredited school or APCE- accredited CPE program, unless an exception is granted by the associate dean for academic programs. Courses completed more than five years prior to the intended date of enrollment will not be considered for transfer credit. Credits cannot be transferred until after a student matriculates in the degree program at the Divinity School.

Study leave for up to one year (eight course credits) may be granted to students desiring to enroll at an accredited theological institution within their denominational tradition (e.g., Lutheran, Anglican/Episcopal, Presbyterian). Such leave is normally granted by the associate dean for academic programs for students to complete ordination requirements. Study leave for up to year may also be granted to recognized student exchanges, such as the Duke Divinity School/University of Erlangen Exchange Program.
Ordination Requirements

Students preparing for ordination are strongly advised to ascertain early in their seminary program the precise ordination requirements of their denomination.

United Methodist students must fulfill educational requirements in the discipline by completing the year-long course on Methodist doctrine, history, and polity (Care of Parish 777 and 778), plus one course in evangelism and/or mission. Most annual conferences also require one or more courses in preaching and worship and/or clinical pastoral education.

Students from other denominations should consult with their appropriate church bodies for specific requirements, which may include biblical languages. Polity courses for certain other denominations may be offered from time to time by faculty members or local clergy on prior request.

Suggested Curricular Paradigms

Although tailored to meet the needs and requirements of MDiv students with different trajectories (e.g., Methodists and student pastors), the following paradigms all share the same core requirements (listed in bold): Old Testament 752, Old Testament 753, New Testament 754, Church History 750, Church History 751, American Christianity 756, Christian Theology 755, Christian Ethics 757, and Preaching 758; and the same limited electives (listed in italics): one church ministry course, one black church studies course, one New Testament exegesis course, one world Christianity course, and one practicing theology in ministry course (courses offered under the rubric of this elective will focus on the practice of theology in today’s contemporary setting: i.e., on the reflective application or embodiment of theology in shaping communities of faith).

Although it is not required, students are encouraged to take the Greek and Hebrew language sequences (New Testament 760, 761; Old Testament 760, 761) and a Greek or Hebrew exegesis course.

All MDiv students are also required to complete Church Ministry 700 and Church Ministry 701 (noncredit spiritual formation groups) in their first year, as well as two units of approved field education either during the academic year or in the summer. (For student pastors this requirement is satisfied in student pastorates.)

The Master of Divinity and Master of Social Work Dual Degree Program

The program can be completed in four continuous years of full-time study (instead of five years) and leads to a master of divinity degree conferred by Duke University and master of social work degree conferred by the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. A customized course of study allows students to start the program at either school, with slightly different paradigms governing the course of study in each case. The core curriculum of each degree must be completed at each institution. Students will be expected to be full-time during this program. Students may not transfer credits from other seminaries toward the master of divinity portion of this program. Students who are enrolled in either program may apply to the dual degree program after they have started at either school.

However, interested students should be aware that the annual application deadline for the MSW at UNC-Chapel Hill is January 1. MDiv students interested in pursuing the MDiv/MSW dual degree after matriculating into the MDiv program must make application, receive acceptance, and declare their participation in the MDiv/MSW dual degree program by April 1 of their first year.

The program is designed to prepare individuals for positions of leadership and service in the social agencies of the church and the community at large. The program equips graduates for various forms of ministry and service in which clinical and administrative skills in social work and theology are critical.

Two integrative seminars co-led by a member of the University of North Carolina Social Work faculty and a member of the faculty of Duke Divinity School are taken in the first and final year of study. These seminars enable the student to integrate theological, biblical, theoretical, ethical, pastoral, social justice, empirical, and practical dimensions of social work.

The Robertson Scholars’ bus, offering free transportation between both schools, is available to all students enrolled in the dual degree program.

Requirements for the MDiv

In the dual degree program, four courses (twelve credit hours) are shared between the two degrees, reducing the number of courses required for the master of divinity degree from twenty-four to twenty (sixty credit hours). Because of these reduced required hours and the addition of two integrative electives unique to the dual degree, the dual degree allows for only five true MDiv electives (and only one for Methodists, who have at least four judicatory requirements). Students who are seeking ordination must receive permission from their respective judicatories to enroll in the dual degree program.

The core requirements for the MDiv portion of the dual degree are the same as those for the regular MDiv degree, with the following exceptions: students may take either American Christianity 756 or a world Christianity limited elective (instead of both), and the MDiv/MSW integrative capstone elective serves as the required practicing theology in ministry limited elective. Also, one of the two required field education placements must be in a congregational setting.

Requirements for the MSW

Because twelve of the sixty-two credit hours are shared with the master of divinity degree program, only fifty credit hours are required, split between foundation and concentration credits (see the paradigm outlined below). Students select one of two concentrations: direct practice or management and community practice. Within each concentration, students may select one of three fields of practice: services to the aging, health and mental health services, or services to families and children.

The School of Social Work requires four semester-long courses of approved field education. The first two courses occur during Year 3 and consist of 480 hours over two semesters. This placement typically amounts to two full days a week for a total of sixty days. The third and fourth courses occur during the final year at the School of Social Work and consist of 720 hours over two semesters. This placement typically amounts to three full days a week for a total of ninety days. The Concentration Year field placement at the School of Social Work will be an integrated field placement fulfilling requirements for the semester-long Social Work 523 and Social Work 524. The School of Social Work field office and the faculty advisors will work together to coordinate these placements.
Part-Time MSW

Students will take their integrative field placement (Social Work 523 and Social Work 524) in year five when they enter their full-time year at the School of Social Work. Part-time MSW students will apply to the dual degree program at the time of application to the School of Social Work. They will enter the dual degree program full-time at the beginning of their third year. This third year will begin at Duke Divinity School. Students will complete two years of coursework at Duke and then return to UNC-Chapel Hill to complete the final concentration year of their MSW. Additionally, they must take the 1st Integrative Field Seminar during the spring semester of their second year.

Advanced-Standing MSW

Students must begin the dual degree program at Duke Divinity School and then enter the School of Social Work during the summer following their last semester at the Divinity School. Advanced standing students will not be able to reduce any of their required coursework when they enter the School of Social Work. The concentration field placement will be their third placement. The advance standing student will be required to take both of Duke’s field education placements.

Faculty Advisors

A dual degree student is assigned a faculty advisor in each school who also serves as a program advisor for academic/administrative needs of the program.

MDiv/MSW Curricular Paradigm

Efficiency of the dual degree requires strict adherence to course sequence and the curriculum as designed. The program cannot be shortened significantly by taking courses in summer session at either school. If students wish to pursue a biblical language as part of their MDiv degree, they must take the language in the summer.

MDiv with a Concentration in Christian Education

The Divinity School offers a concentration in Christian education within the master of divinity curriculum. This concentration benefits persons seeking to practice as church educators, teachers, college chaplains, youth workers, or health care workers. Since educational ministry is rightly understood as organic to the church’s ministries of outreach, worship, mission, and nurture, persons called to parish ministry will find the concentration equally beneficial in preparing them for congregational leadership. In addition, the master of divinity degree with a concentration in Christian education will satisfy ordination requirements for deacons and elders in the United Methodist Church and qualify them for “certification” in areas of Christian education.

Students wishing a master of divinity degree with a concentration in Christian education will complete the stated requirements of the MDiv curriculum. In addition, they must complete one field education unit in a Christian education setting and take the following courses:

- Christian Education 760 (Introduction to the Education of Christians);
- Christian Education 767 (Persons in Communities);
- Christian Education 766 (Liturgy and Christian Formation);
- Christian Education 800 (Bible Study Programs for the Local Church); and
- An additional elective in Christian Education.

It is recommended that the four required courses in education be taken in sequence.

Notes:
- Christian Education 760 counts as a church ministry limited elective.
- Christian Education 767 will satisfy denominational requirements for a worship course in special circumstances (and replace the need for Liturgical Studies 760).
- Christian Education 800 (Bible Study Programs for the Local Church) counts as a practicing theology in ministry limited elective.

The Master of Theological Studies Degree

This two-year (four semesters) general academic degree is designed to provide an introduction to the theological disciplines as: (1) foundation for a graduate research degree (PhD); (2) preparation for lay religious careers; (3) grounding for teaching, research, or practice in another field (e.g., history, psychology, music); (4) enhancement of institutional leadership roles; or (5) personal enrichment.

Requirements

The requirements for the degree of master of theological studies are:
- sixteen courses and four or more semesters of residency (transfer credit is limited to two courses), with no more than two courses outside of the Divinity School;
- a normal load of four courses per semester;
• Old Testament 752 and 753, New Testament 754, Church History 750 and 751, Christian Theology 755, Christian Ethics 757;

• the maintenance of a cumulative grade point average of 2.5;

• submission of a well-researched, clearly written final paper. This paper may build upon and elaborate work done in a previous paper in the program; it may be written in the context of a course, or as an independent study, or as an additional paper outside current course work. The writing is normally done in the final semester. A final draft of the thesis will be due to the thesis advisor no later than noon on the first day of reading week in the semester which the student will graduate;

• submission of a portfolio for review by a faculty member; and

• completion of all requirements for the degree within a four-year (eight-semester) period.

Administration
In consultation with the MTS director, students will draft a set of program goals and project a four-semester course plan (or an appropriate alternative plan on a part-time basis). At each registration conference, students and the director will reassess program goals and the course plan adopted by the student. Required courses for the MTS are: Old Testament 752 and 753, New Testament 754, Church History 750 and 751, Christian Theology 755, Christian Ethics 757, and nine open electives. In consultation with the MTS director and relevant division chairs, students may be considered for an alternative configuration of coursework, to include a minimum of two courses in biblical studies, two courses in theological studies, and two courses in historical studies, leaving ten open electives.

At the end of the first year of coursework, the director will assess the progress and academic performance of the student. By either October 15 or February 15 of the second year (depending on whether the student intends to submit the final paper at the close of the fall or spring semester, respectively), the student must submit a paper proposal to the Office of Academic Formation and Programs. Proposal forms can be found on the academic portion of the Divinity School website; before submission, the forms must be signed by the faculty advisor and a second reader (if the student chooses to use one). The proposal must also include a tentative title and a brief description of the topic. The paper itself is due upon the date the student sets in agreement with the faculty advisor, but no later than noon on the Monday of the final reading period of the semester in which it is submitted.

Before graduation, there will be a final evaluation of the student’s portfolio. Both the portfolio and the faculty member’s final evaluation are submitted to the associate dean for academic programs.

| MTS Portfolio Review |
Continuation Requirements

The progress of all students is reviewed at the end of every semester by the Academic Policies Committee. The following are the continuation requirements for students enrolled in the MTS degree program:

- The student must maintain a cumulative grade point average of 2.5. If a student falls below this level he or she may, at the discretion of the associate dean for academic programs, be dismissed, placed on an involuntary leave of absence, or asked to participate in a limited program. This means that the student may enroll in no more than three courses.
- At the end of the second semester the student on limited program who does not attain a cumulative GPA of 2.5 is dismissed. In exceptional cases a student who shows substantial improvement the second semester but does not quite attain a GPA of 2.5 may be given a third semester to do so.
- The student must demonstrate progress in the program by completing courses. A student who has 3 or more unresolved incompletes or a pattern of multiple withdrawals may, at the discretion of the associate dean for academic programs, be dismissed, placed on an involuntary leave of absence until the incomplete work is resolved, or asked to participate in a limited program.

The Master of Theological Studies and Law Dual Degree Program

Duke Divinity School and Duke Law School have established a combined four-year program in law and theological studies. Acceptance into this program requires applying separately for admission to each school. The students in the MTS/JD program may enroll the first year in either Duke Divinity School or Duke Law School. If the student begins in the former, the first-year curriculum is the same as that of other Divinity School students; if the student begins in the latter, the first-year curriculum is the same as that of other law students. The student’s second year consists of the full first-year program of the other school. In the third and fourth years of the program, the student takes courses in both schools. Approximately two-thirds of these courses are taken in Duke Law School.

The Master of Theology Degree

The course of study leading to the degree of master of theology is designed for graduates of accredited theological schools who desire to continue or resume their theological education for enhancement of professional competence in selected areas of study. Enrollment in the ThM degree program is open to a limited number of students who have received the MDiv (or the equivalent) with superior academic records.

Inquiries on admission may be addressed to the director of admissions.

General Requirements

The general requirements for the degree of master of theology are:

- Eight course units of graduate-level studies, with an average grade of B (3.0 average on a 4.0 scale). A minimum of four course credits must be at the 800 or 900 level. Normally, no more than two of the students’ courses will be directed studies, including the directed study in which the thesis is written. Students seeking to take an additional directed study must seek the permission of the ThM director and associate dean for academic programs.
- A thesis that is well researched, clearly written, represents a significant act of intellectual engagement, and normally is 12,000 to 20,000 words (fifty to seventy-five pages), although some projects will necessitate greater length. Artistic projects may be proposed in place of a traditional research paper. However, an artistic project must still include a written description of the theoretical basis for the creative work the student does in another medium. This written description will normally take the same form as the traditional ThM thesis and be at least 10,000 words (forty pages) in length.
- As an alternative to the thesis, the student may elect to take a comprehensive exam covering the student’s area of study. In this case, the student must demonstrate superior performance (at least a B-) in the comprehensive examination. The exam consists of four questions formulated by the student’s exam supervisor, in consultation with the ThM director and, if the student desires, with another faculty member with whom the student has done coursework. The questions are designed to require of the student a summary of the issues raised in the student’s coursework. Students may take this exam in an in-class setting or as a take-home exam. The answers to each question are normally 3,000 to 4,000 words, for a total of 12,000 to 16,000 words. The examination will be given at the close of the course of study for the degree, ordinarily in November or April.

- Students must submit to the Office of Academic Formation and Programs a one-page thesis proposal (a form is available on the Divinity School website) that includes the thesis title, a brief description of the topic, and a brief preliminary bibliography. This proposal must be submitted no later than October 15 (for a thesis to be completed in the fall) or February 15 (for a thesis to be completed in the spring) and must be signed by the thesis supervisor and the ThM director.

- The ThM thesis must be written as a continuation of a directed study. Normally, the thesis is written in the student’s final semester of enrollment. The director of the directed study will ordinarily serve as the thesis supervisor and will grade the thesis. A second reader is required and should be acquired by the beginning of the student’s final semester of enrollment. A final draft of the thesis will be due to the thesis supervisor and second reader no later than noon on the first day of reading week in the semester which the student will graduate.

- Residence for one academic year or the equivalent. (Equivalency to be determined by the associate dean for academic programs).

- There are no general language requirements. However, classical or modern languages may be required for certain programs (for example, in biblical studies, Hebrew or Greek may be required).

The Program of Study

At least four of the required eight courses must be taken in one of the basic theological disciplines (biblical, historical, theological, or ministerial) that will be designated as the candidate’s major. The directed study may count toward fulfilling the major requirement. Students enrolled in the ThM may take the elementary biblical languages; however, these courses may not count as fulfilling the major requirement for biblical studies.

The candidate majoring in pastoral care may elect a concentration in a) pastoral theology, b) pastoral care with CPE residency, or c) pastoral supervision with supervisory CPE. A maximum of three course credits may be granted for CPE residency or supervisory CPE. Clinical Pastoral Education 700 (or its equivalent) is considered a prerequisite for the concentrations in pastoral care with CPE residency and pastoral supervision with supervisory CPE, and does not count toward the degree for these concentrations. For students concentrating in pastoral theology, Clinical Pastoral Education 700 completed during the ThM degree may count as two credits toward the degree. Concentrations in pastoral care with CPE residency or pastoral supervision with supervisory CPE generally require eighteen months to two years to complete course and clinical work.

Continuation Requirements

The progress of all students is reviewed at the end of every semester by the Academic Policies Committee. The following are the continuation requirements for the ThM degree program:

- The student must maintain a cumulative grade point average of 3.0. A student who falls below this level is terminated.
- The student must demonstrate progress in the program by completing courses. A student who has two or more unresolved incompletes or a pattern of multiple withdrawals may, at the discretion of the associate dean for academic programs, be dismissed, placed on an involuntary leave of absence until the incomplete work is resolved, or asked to participate in a limited program.
- The minimum time in which the degree can be completed is one academic year (two semesters); a student may take a full calendar year and use the summer to complete degree requirements. However, these requirements must be completed by September 1 in order for the student to be considered a September graduate and avoid having to register for course continuation. Students needing more than twelve months to complete the degree must seek the permission of the ThM director and the associate dean for academic programs. ThM students majoring in pastoral care with a concentration in pastoral care through coursework and CPE residency and those majoring in pastoral supervision through coursework and a supervisory CPE program must complete the ThM degree within three years (six semesters). All other ThM students must complete the degree within two years (four semesters). To be classified as full time, a student must be enrolled in three or more courses in a semester. To be classified as part-time, a student must be enrolled in two courses in a semester.
- ThM students who have registered for the eight required courses and have completed all coursework except the exam or the thesis must register for course continuation (Continuation-Divinity 1) each fall and spring semester until they complete all the requirements for the program.
The Doctor of Ministry Degree

The DMin offers theological education on scripture, engagement with the living Christian tradition, and attention to and reflection on contemporary contexts in order to provide formation for leaders of faithful Christian ministries. Because the degree is designed to promote rigorous and imaginative reflection on the practice of ministry and to enhance the critical skills of persons engaged in the leadership of congregations or church-related institutions, a central feature of the degree is its integration of practical ministerial experience with structured theological reflection.

Requirements:

The requirements for the degree of doctor of ministry are:

- fifteen courses completed in no less than two academic years (the DMin degree is not eligible for credit transfer);
- the completion and committee approval of a substantial written thesis;
- compilation of a portfolio to be reviewed by a faculty advisor;
- the maintenance of a cumulative grade point average of at least 3.0; and
- completion of all requirements for the degree within a four-year period.

Administration

The DMin degree is structured on a cohort model that organizes learning around short-term (generally one-week) intensive residential seminars in conjunction with ongoing group interaction facilitated by online tools. Each residential seminar will be followed by a period utilizing structured synchronous and asynchronous classrooms during which students will engage one another and faculty on a weekly basis. The structured character of the synchronous and asynchronous classrooms includes assignments that require students both to integrate course material with the ecclesial practices that are part of their daily work, and to do so in conversation with the community of peers formed during the residential intensives and sustained through online communication. The five terms of coursework span approximately two academic years. DMin study concludes with a period of independent research and writing, one to two years in length, culminating in the production of a substantial written thesis. As a means to exhibit growth and understanding of theological reflection, every DMin student will compile a student portfolio that a faculty member will review in the student’s fourth semester. Both the portfolio and the faculty member's final evaluation are submitted to the associate dean for academic programs.

- Except for extenuating circumstances, students who have completed the course requirements but have failed to complete the thesis by the end of the fourth year will be terminated from the doctoral program and awarded a ThM degree.

The Doctor of Theology Degree

Description

The doctor of theology (ThD) program provides students with academically rigorous doctoral training for theological engagement with the faith and practices of Christian communities. The program was initiated, in part, to extend doctoral training at Duke to areas of study outside of the scope of most PhD programs. The ThD also allows concentration in any of the theological disciplines, as they attend to the faith and practices of Christian communities. Creative interdisciplinary study with this focus is particularly encouraged.

Concentrations

The ThD program is designed to enable interdisciplinary and integrative study. Students work with their principal advisor to craft a primary concentration (of at least six courses) and a secondary concentration (of at least three courses) that embody their research interests and provide coherence to their study. These areas of concentration, which are expected to draw upon core areas of the theological curriculum, will be shaped to enable critical and constructive reflection on particular practices of Christian life and community.

Program Requirements

The program requirements for the degree of doctor of theology are:

- ordinarily, at least two academic years of full-time (three courses per semester) residency. Continuous registration in a “continuation” status from completion of coursework to completion of dissertation;
- twelve courses: ordinarily, at least six courses related to a primary concentration and at least three courses related to a secondary concentration;
- a core seminar that may count as one of the primary or secondary concentration courses;
- the student must maintain a cumulative grade point average of 3.0. A student who falls below this level may be dismissed from the program;
- demonstrated competence in two modern research languages other than English; additional proficiencies may be required in light of the student’s particular research interests. Students whose work focuses on scripture will also be required to demonstrate proficiency in Hebrew and Greek;
- written preliminary examinations (including at least one in the primary area, one in the secondary area, and a dissertation exam);
- an oral preliminary examination in which members of the student’s preliminary examination committee will ask the student to discuss the issues treated in the written examinations;
- completion and defense of an academic dissertation that demonstrates the student’s ability to contribute to scholarly discourse and to bring that discourse to bear on the ministries and practices of Christian communities.
Certificate Programs

Certificate in Anglican Studies

The Certificate in Anglican Studies is designed to serve the academic and formational requirements of students preparing for Anglican/Episcopal ministry, lay and especially ordained. Students in the MDiv and MTS programs interested in the Certificate in Anglican Studies should declare that interest to the director of the Anglican Episcopal House of Studies at Duke Divinity School and the Office of Academic Formation and Programs so they may be assigned an Anglican/Episcopal faculty advisor.

The requirements for the certificate are: (1) completing at least three courses in Anglican Studies; (2) participating fully in the program of Anglican Spiritual Formation (ASF), normally throughout one’s course of study at Duke Divinity School; (3) completing at least one field education placement in an Episcopal or other Anglican setting; and (4) fulfilling either the middler or the senior review of the student portfolio with an Anglican/Episcopal faculty advisor.

Certificate in Baptist Studies

Students in the MDiv program interested in a Certificate in Baptist Studies should declare that interest, on matriculation, to the director of Baptist studies and/or the associate dean for academic programs. They will be assigned a Baptist faculty advisor. The requirements for the certificate are: (1) completion of two courses in Baptist studies—Christian Theology 760 (The Free Church) and Christian Theology 761 (Free Church Theology)—and a third component which may include a third course (either a special topic course in free church studies or another elective approved by the director of the Baptist House) or participation in a second or third year spiritual formation group on topics of Baptist identity and formation; and (2) middler review of the student portfolio by a Baptist faculty member. It is also preferable that at least one field education placement be in a Baptist setting.

Certificate in Gender, Sexuality, Theology, and Ministry

The goal of the Certificate in Gender, Sexuality, Theology, and Ministry program is to equip students to address the way gender has shaped agency within the church; the function of gender in the (normative) theological thinking of the church; and contemporary issues of ministry (authorization of women’s ministry, ordination, domestic violence, gender and language/liturgy/symbolism, gender, and the globalized church/state/economy).

The certificate program is administered in conjunction with the Divinity School Women’s Center. The faculty advisor to the women’s center serves as the primary contact person for the certificate program. To receive the Certificate in Gender, Sexuality, Theology, and Ministry, students must meet the following requirements:

• MDiv students must declare their intent to participate in the certificate program no later than the spring semester of their middler year. MTS students must declare intent no later than the spring semester of their first year. Both the Women’s Center advisor and the student’s faculty advisor should receive the declaration of intent.

• Students must complete three courses in gender studies: Women’s Studies 601S (Debates in Women’s Studies) in Duke University’s Women’s Studies department, or its equivalent; and two courses within the Divinity School or religion department with a clear focus on gender studies.

• Students must complete a service learning or research project in the area of gender, sexuality, theology, and ministry. The project may be conducted in one of four ways: (1) within a course (but not within any of the three courses that fulfill the previous requirement), (2) within a directed study, (3) as an independent community service project, or (4) within the context of a field education placement (the Office of Field Education is not responsible for facilitating or evaluating this project in any way). Ideally the project will take place during the senior year or during the summer prior to the senior year.

• During the spring semester of the senior year, students will participate in a monthly colloquy to discuss their service learning projects and/or to share the results of their research. Affiliated faculty members will be responsible for directing the colloquy.
Certificate in Prison Studies

The Certificate in Prison Studies provides students with the opportunity to engage specifically with people in prison and the system that imprisons them in the context of theological education and formation for the ministry (see Matthew 25:36). This certificate can normally be earned within the MDiv, MTS, and ThD degree programs. Students interested in the Certificate in Prison Studies should declare intent to the program director as well as to the Office of Academic Formation and Programs. Normally, the five requirements for the certificate are:

• Parish 809 (Restorative Justice, Prison Ministry, and the Church);
• participation in a Divinity School course taught on site in a local prison in partnership with Project TURN;
• completion of one further course addressing relevant questions of justice, atonement, race, gender, conflict, ministry (etc.), and approved by the director. For example, the following courses apply: Black Church Studies 763 (The Life and Thought of MLK); Christian Theology 804 (Theology, Justice and the Intellectual Life); Christian Theology 812 (Doctrine of Creation and Theological Anthropology); Christian Theology 952 (Slavery and Obedience); Christian Ethics 804 (Theological Dimensions of American Law and Politics); Christian Ethics 806 (Masculinity and Ministry); Church Ministry 762 (The Love of God and Neighbor); Care of Parish 780 (The Missional Church and Evangelism); Pastoral Care 806 (Naming the Powers); and Preaching 802 (Preaching the Powers). An appropriate Directed Study approved by the certificate director may be substituted for this requirement;
• completion of a suitable field education placement; and
• participation in a designated prison-oriented spiritual formation group, or, on petition, completion of an approved research project (similar to the project currently required by the gender certificate).

Certificate in Theology, Medicine, and Culture

The Certificate in Theology, Medicine, and Culture will prepare Divinity School students for robust theological and practical engagement with contemporary practices in medicine and health care. The certificate can be pursued by students in the MDiv, MTS, ThM, MACS, or ThD degree programs.

It will be of special interest to students who will be working in parish-based settings and who wish to develop further competence and confidence engaging questions of suffering, illness, and the role of medicine; who are interested in serving as chaplains in a health care setting; who are trained or are pursuing training in the clinical disciplines (e.g., medicine, psychology, nursing, and social work); and/or who intend further study in bioethics or in pastoral theology.

There are three requirements for the certificate:
• completion of at least three courses that explore the intersections of theology, medicine, and culture;
• participation in a program, elective, or professional service that offers practical ministry-related experience in a health care setting; and
• completion of a research paper that directly engages the intersection of theology, medicine, and culture. This paper may be done as part of a class and will ordinarily be presented publicly near the conclusion of the student’s degree program.

For students specifically interested in chaplaincy, the directors of the certificate will work with students on an individual basis to craft an approach to study and practical experience aimed at enhancing their preparation for chaplaincy.

Duke Summer Session

Duke Divinity School offers a limited summer program, including intensive biblical language courses (Greek/Hebrew), individual directed study, and one or more electives. Summer courses of graduate level may also be taken in other departments as cognate credits (maximum of two; see provisions under administration of the curriculum). Permission for such credits must be secured in advance from the instructor and from the associate dean for academic programs and may involve university rather than Divinity School tuition.

Special Programs

Duke Divinity School is a participant in the National Capital Semester for Seminarians conducted by Wesley Theological Seminary in Washington, DC. Students may, with the approval of the associate dean for academic programs, enroll in this one-semester program focused on political issues and social ethics and receive up to four transfer credits. Applicants must have completed at least two and not more than four semesters at Duke to be eligible.
International Study Programs

For several years, Duke Divinity School has been developing programs of international study and exchange involving faculty and students. The main areas in which the development is centered at this time are the following.

Robert E. Cushman Exchange Program

Each year faculty and staff nominate students to represent Duke Divinity School in the Robert E. Cushman Exchange Program. The partner schools in this program are The Reutlingen School of Theology/Tübingen University (Germany); St. John’s College, Durham University (England); The Free University of Amsterdam (The Netherlands); and Chung Chi College Seminary, The University of Hong Kong (China). Through the yearlong program at these universities, students become thoroughly acquainted with another culture and different church life. Full participation in classes is required. Language preparation is necessary.

The Hispanic Summer Program

The goal of the Hispanic Summer Program is to supplement and enrich divinity education with academic courses and other activities directly addressing Hispanic history, ministry, and theology. Students engage in an immersive three-credit graduate course (half the courses taught in Spanish, half in English), remain in a small-class setting, and participate in a variety of community-building activities. The program takes place for two weeks every summer and rotates between sponsoring institutions. Course credit is awarded by the hosting institution, transferrable to Duke Divinity School.

The program also includes a wing for non-Hispanic faculty and administrators, called “Through Hispanic Eyes.” For four days during the regular program term, up to twelve non-Hispanic faculty and administrators of sponsoring institutions gather for dialogue, workshops, and exchanges with the faculty and student body of that summer’s program.
Courses of Instruction

Course Enrollment

The foundational courses typically carry three digit numbers (e.g., Old Testament 752, Old Testament 753, New Testament 754, Church History 750, American Christianity 756, Christian Theology 755, and Christian Ethics 757). For other prerequisites the student should consult the roster of courses of instruction in this bulletin and should also refer to published registration advice at the time of registration for each semester.

Courses jointly approved by Duke Divinity School and The Graduate School are published in the Bulletin of Duke University: Duke Divinity School. Courses offered in the Department of Religion of Duke University, or as cognate courses in other departments, must be of graduate level (numbered 200 or above) in order to fulfill requirements for degrees in Duke Divinity School.

I. Biblical Studies

Old Testament (OLDTEST)

701. Hebrew Reading. A noncredit course for “reading maintenance” in Hebrew texts and to improve language skills. Prerequisite: Old Testament 752, 753, 760 and 761. No credit.

702. Hebrew Reading. A noncredit course for “reading maintenance” in Hebrew texts and to improve language skills. Prerequisite: Old Testament 752, 753, 760 and 761. No credit.

752. Introduction to Old Testament Interpretation. The first half of a two-semester course that serves as an introduction to the literature, history, and religion of ancient Israel with emphasis on exegetical methodology. One course.

753. Introduction to Old Testament Interpretation. The second half of a two-semester course that serves as an introduction to the literature, history, and religion of ancient Israel with emphasis on exegetical methodology. One course.

761. Introduction to Biblical Hebrew. Continuation of Old Testament 760. (Two semesters: no credit will be given for 760 without completion of 761.) One course.

762. To Work and Watch: Toward a Biblical Ecology/Theology of Land. The aims of this course are to: 1. Explore ancient Israel’s theological understandings of land tenure and use, and further, to explore how land is a crucial element in the relations between humanity and the other creatures, on the one hand, humanity and God, on the other. 2. To engage in a serious rereading of the Biblical text in light of the contemporary ecological crisis. 3. To identify ideologies of land tenure and usage that are operative in contemporary societies, including our own, and to examine them critically in light of the biblical text and the present crisis. Prerequisite: Old Testament 752 and 753. One course.

763. Necessary Women: Biblical Representations of Women in Judges and Ruth. We will look at representations of women (especially the multiple representations in Judges and Ruth) from different interpretative perspectives: history of religions, sociology, feminism, ancient and medieval Christian and Jewish thought, literary theory, systematic theology, contemporary spirituality, and religious art. We will consider what these books indicate about ancient Israelite religion and religious imagination, and also how they may inform our own religious imaginations. Prerequisite: Old Testament 752 and 753. One course.

764. Israel and the Nations. This course explores the working hypothesis that a critical first step for reflection on the relationship between Christianity and other world religions is to locate the right balance between election and responsibility within the overarching Old Testament drama involving God, Israel, and the nations, if any of these questions are to be answered faithfully for the future. Prerequisite: Old Testament 752 and 753, and New Testament 754. One course.

765. Old Testament Law and Community. This course aims to investigate the various legal codes of the Old Testament, primarily those within the Pentateuch, in order to: 1. Articulate their similarities and differences, and thereby gain a sense of the legal tradition of the Old Testament as a whole; 2. Situate the codes within the context of historical Israel’s communal life, posing the sociological question of the relationship between corporate identity and communal discipline; 3. Frame the theological issue of contemporary Christian use and application of Old Testament legal texts. Prerequisite: Old Testament 752 and 753. One course.

766. Biblical Prayer. An examination of biblical prayer in its ancient context, with attention to the function of prayer in religious traditions and modern theologians’ uneasiness over “petition.” One course.

767. From Text to Sermon. Preaching from biblical sources. Emphases on the goal and methodology of exegesis, the hermeneutic problem, and verbal communication in the present. Prerequisite: Preaching 758. One course. C-L: Preaching 765

768. Old Testament Wisdom and Christian Spirituality. A study of the “wisdom literature” of the Old Testament—primarily the books of Proverbs, Job, and Ecclesiastes—as a guide to Christian spirituality and the work of ministry. For Origen and the rabbis, wisdom was a key to Torah: the course will examine their hermeneutics alongside other ways of reading wisdom within early Judaism and early Christianity. The course will also trace uses of Old Testament wisdom in Christian practice in the Middle Ages, and consider different answers to the question of how wisdom fits into biblical theology. One course.

770. Exegesis of the English Old Testament. Register for course by designated suffix, A-L. One course each. Prerequisite: Old Testament 752 or equivalent. Variable credit.

770D. Deuteronomy. One course.

770G. Genesis. One course.

770H. Historical Books. One course.

770I. Isaiah. Explores the rich tradition attributed to the prophet Isaiah and searches for a unifying theme for a variety of understandings of God’s continuing activity among humans. One course.

770L. Daniel and Apocalyptic. One course.

770O. Jonah and English Literature. Engages the book of Jonah in conversation with works of English literature that either interpret Jonah and/or explore themes that are at the heart of this biblical book, for example, the nature of God as just, gracious, predictable, or capricious; the prophet’s call and response; the prophet’s anger toward (and joy in) God. One course.

770W. Wisdom Literature in the Old Testament. An analysis of selected biblical texts (Proverbs, Job, Ecclesiastes, Sirach, Wisdom of Solomon) and similar ancient Near Eastern literature. One course.

790. Topics in the Old Testament. Topics vary. May be repeated for credit. One course.

800. Preaching Isaiah. Prerequisite: Old Testament 752 and 753, Preaching 758, and Christian Theology 755. One course. C-L: Preaching 800

801. Old Testament Theology. A study of important religious themes in ancient Israel such as the presence and absence of God, divine justice and mercy, evil and suffering. Prerequisite: Old Testament 752 and 753 or equivalent. One course.

802. Interpreting Exodus through Jewish and Christian Traditions. This seminar will look at the importance of the book of Exodus for theology and the formation of religious identity among both Jews and Christians. Further, we will look at how its central significance is evidenced in the homiletical traditions of both communities from antiquity to the present. Prerequisite: Old Testament 752 and 753. One course.

803. A Garden Locked: Approaches to the Song of Songs. This seminar will explore traditional readings of the Song, both Christian and Jewish, as well as a variety of contemporary interpretations. The aim will be to deepen our understanding of biblical hermeneutics, the nature of biblical language, and ways in which the Bible may properly be used for theological reflection. Prerequisite: Old Testament 752. One course.

804. Biblical Perspectives on Prophecy and the Church’s Ministry. Most of our work in the course will be to consider a wide range of biblical representations of prophecy, from both Testaments, in social, historical, and canonical contexts. However, two questions about the contemporary church will steadily inform our consideration of the biblical texts: 1. How are biblical representations of prophecy used and misunderstood in the church? 2. What genuine meaning might the well-worn phrase “prophetic ministry” have in our various ecclesial and social contexts, and how might such ministries be nurtured in faithfulness to the biblical witness? One course.

805. Suffering in the Old Testament. The course examines various responses to suffering in the Old Testament, both human and divine, and attempts to assess these understandings in light of modern conceptions. Focus on Job and Hosea, which discuss human and divine suffering respectively, and on related texts from the Bible and the ancient Near East which illuminate the fundamental problems resulting from divine and human conduct. Prerequisite: Old Testament 752 and 753. One course.

806. Biblical Bodies. Embodied life is at the heart of the Hebrew scriptures and biblical imagination. Examining and reclaiming the centrality of embodiment and of bodies within biblical traditions offers a way past false dichotomies of mind and body, spirit and matter, and belief and praxis. In a similar vein, it paves the way for an approach to biblical interpretation that does not oppose historical and theological approaches but views them as interconnected and indeed inseparable. This course will survey bodies within the biblical tradition and in the wider ancient Near Eastern world within which the biblical traditions took shape. One course.

807. Reading(s) for Our Lives: Contemporary African Biblical Interpretations. The aim of the course is to create an active theological and interpretive conversation between North American Christians and East African Christians, both of whom engage scripture seriously in their own contexts, often with keen interest in its contemporary significance. One course.

808. The Bible & Domestic Violence. This course will combine scriptural exegesis with the study of literature on pastoral care relating to domestic violence (DV). It will also include guest lectures by experts in DV and third party training in responding to DV. Throughout, students will seek to weave together the study of scripture with the study of contemporary contexts in order to cultivate a response to DV that is not only informed by scripture but energized by the biblical witness and adept at marshalling a host of scriptural resources. One course. C-L: New Testament 814

809. Approaches to Biblical Violence. This course will confront one of the most pressing issues in Christianity and Judaism today: how to deal with the problem of biblical violence. This problem is especially urgent in a world where religious violence seems to be constantly in the media spotlight. The course will identify the texts at the center of the discussion of biblical violence, and will survey the many approaches by scholars and theologians that acknowledge the problematic nature of these texts yet attempt to find value in them for modern Christians and Jews. One course.

862. The Kingdom of God. This course explores politics in relation to the Old Testament. One primary set of questions will be historical in nature: How did the idea of God’s rule arise in ancient Israel? What did it mean? How did that idea develop over time? Were there debates and disagreements about it? Does a single view of God’s rule now predominate among the various Old Testament traditions? Or are there multiple and conflicting accounts of God’s rule on offer in the Old Testament? The other main set of questions will be theological and constructive in orientation, dealing especially with contemporary appeals to the Old Testament within the emerging discussion known as “political theology.” Prerequisite: Old Testament 752 and 753. One course.

870G. Genesis. One course.

870H. Historical Books. One course.

870I. Isaiah. One course.

870J. Judges. One course.

870O. Minor Prophets. One course.

870P. Major Prophets. One course.

870W. Writings. One course.
871. Dead Sea Scrolls. The course will provide students with a broad overview of the literature contained in the Dead Sea Scrolls, the archaeology of the site at Qumran and possible identity and self-understanding of those who lived there, and the state of the field in studies of the Dead Sea Scrolls. Students would also work closely with several of the key text from Qumran. One course.

872. Narrative Characters: The Hebrew Bible, The New Testament, and The Qur’an. This course focuses on narrative characters shared among Jewish, Christian, and Islamic traditions in their scriptural variations and post-scriptural “afterlives.” The class will explore their narrative development in these several traditions through both exegetical and theological in their relation to postexilic Judaism. One course.

873. Isaiah and the Church Year. Hebrew exegesis of Isaiah texts used in the Christian lectionary during the church year, engaging the broader historical and theological questions raised by Christian interpretation of the Old Testament’s prophetic books, and exploring the foundational but perennially challenging task of Old Testament preaching. One course.

890. Topics in the Old Testament. Topics vary. May be repeated for credit. One course.

901. Old Testament and Leadership. This exegetically-focused course seeks to explore various biblical “profiles of leadership,” with a view to articulating a biblically grounded theology of Christian leadership. We shall consider the ways and extent to which scriptural representations of those exercising leadership (formally and informally) among the people of Israel may provide models for contemporary leaders in the church, the limits to such application, and also the ways in which the biblical writers deliberately portray the weaknesses and failures even of those leaders whom they uphold as admirable or exemplary. One course.

950. Studies in the Apocrypha and Pseudepigrapha. Selected documents of the Apocrypha and Pseudepigrapha examined exegetically and theologically in their relation to postexilic Judaism. One course.

951. Creation, Cosmology, and World Order. One of the most exciting initiatives in current Old Testament scholarship involves a thorough reappraisal of the theme of creation. This course will investigate shifts within the field and their implications. At stake are the relation between cosmology and anthropology in ancient Israel, the shape of Old Testament theology, the relationship between the Old Testament and the New, and the Bible’s abiding relevance for contemporary ecological issues. One course.

952. The Deuteronomistic History. One of the most influential proposals in twentieth-century biblical scholarship was Martin Noth’s characterization of the Former Prophets as a “Deuteronomistic History,” which had as its goal the narration and interpretation of Israel’s past from its origins in Canaan to the eventual destruction of both the Northern and Southern Kingdoms. Noth’s theory still finds widespread scholarly acceptance, but criticisms and counter-proposals have recently multiplied. This course will investigate the current state of the question and explore more broadly the nature of historiography in ancient Israel, including a comparison with ancient Greek historiography. One course.

953. History of Ancient Israel. This course is intended primarily for PhD students and has two main goals: to explore current debates about the history of ancient Israel and to acquaint students with classic works in the history of critical biblical scholarship. One course.

954. Barth’s Old Testament Interpretation. This course will explore various examples of Barth’s Old Testament exegesis in order to gain a clearer understanding of his approach. Is it an ad hoc tour de force, as has been claimed? Or are there lines of continuity connecting his individual treatments? By investigating such questions, students will have an opportunity to explore larger issues involving the task of preaching, the contemporary resurgence of interest in theological biblical interpretation, the longstanding problem of a Christian interpretation of the Old Testament, and the challenge of moving from biblical text to doctrine within the context of Christian theology. One course.

956. Hebrew Narrative Art. Analysis of the literary craft of selected biblical narratives, and critique of various approaches to studying the art of Hebrew narrative. Prerequisite: knowledge of Hebrew and consent of instructor. One course.

957. Seminar in Old Testament. Research and discussion on selected problems in the Old Testament and related fields. One course.

958. Seminar on Text Criticism. Emphasis on transmission, versions, apparatus, and method. Prerequisite: New Testament 760, 761 and Old Testament 752, 753, and 760, 761 or equivalents. One course.

959. Modern Historical Study of the Prophets. Within the history of scholarship on biblical prophecy, the late twentieth-century “turn to the book” entailed the reevaluation of a consensus established one hundred years earlier. By tracing the trajectory of modern critical study of the Bible’s prophetic literature, contemporary interpretive debates and theories are contextualized and illuminated. One course.

960. Place and Space—In, Around, and After the Hebrew Bible. The class will be conducted as a small seminar, designed primarily for doctoral students in OT/Hebrew Bible, but open to NT doctoral students and advanced master’s level students who can read Hebrew well (i.e., beyond the intermediate level). One course.

961. Scripture and Tradition: Theory and Practice of Reception History. The deposit of historic scriptural interpretation in commentaries, sermons, art, music, and liturgy increasingly finds a welcome among contemporary Christians as a rich resource for biblical exegesis, but a clear sense of exactly why the work of ancient interpreters has a claim on us today is often lacking. This course will give students an opportunity to think through the rationale and purpose of reception history from its philosophical foundations upwards, surveying a range of different answers to those questions, and will also equip students with the practical methodological tools and competence to undertake their own reception history projects. One course.

962. The Theological Interpretation of Scripture. The goals of this course are: to promote reflection about how theologians, pastors, and churches can read scripture theologically within the contemporary intellectual and cultural context; to read closely several recent influential works on this topic in order to gain a sense of the current theoretical discussion; to work toward a keener awareness of the divide between modern historical-critical analysis of the Bible and its use within Christian tradition and practice; to probe for ways to bridge this divide methodologically so that historical questions can be addressed with integrity within the church at the same time that theological readings continue to be creatively pursued. One course. C-L: Christian Theology 969

971. Dead Sea Scrolls: Doctoral Seminar. One course.

990. Topics in the Old Testament. Topics vary. May be repeated for credit. One course.

New Testament (NEWTEST)

700. New Testament Colloquies. Each colloquy will have a faculty member or visiting scholar leading a discussion on a selected topic. The course is a noncredit course. Please refer to the Courses of Instruction for details about each colloquy. No credit.

705. The Art of Biblical Interpretation. This course is a basic introduction to methods of Biblical interpretation, with attention to the prior assumptions and purposes of different interpretive methods. One course. C-L: Christian Education 710

707. Introduction to the New Testament. This course is in introduction to the content and interpretation of the New Testament, with attention to its historical context, its literary genres, and its central theological issues and claims. Lectures during the week-long intensive portion of the course will introduce students to the Hellenistic world in which the New Testament was written, key issues in interpretation of the New Testament, different approaches to reading texts as scripture for the church, and the interplay between history and theology at work in any Biblical interpretation. During the online portion of the course, lectures will cover the historical setting and distinctive theological claims of the New Testament texts. One course.

760. Hellenistic Greek. Designed for beginners to enable them to read the Greek New Testament. (Two semesters: students with at least one full year of college Greek may be permitted to enroll in 761.) One course.

761. Hellenistic Greek. Continuation of New Testament 760. (Two semesters: students with at least one full year of college Greek may be permitted to enroll in 761.) One course.

770C. I Corinthians. One course.

770G. Galatians. One course.
770H. Hebrews. One course.
770K. Mark. One course.
770M. Matthew. One course.
770PP. Philippians/Philemon. One course.
770R. Romans. One course.
770T. Selected Later Epistles. One course.
770TT. Thessalonians. One course.
770V. Revelation. One course.
770Z. Colossians. One course.

771. New Testament Bodies. This course examines treatments of the body in the NT with an eye towards their exegetical, theological, and ministerial import. In doing so, the class will focus on a select number of passages drawn mainly from the Gospels and Paul and exegete these passages in conversation with ancient constructions of the body and recent body theory. We will discuss bodies that are disabled, enslaved, gendered, and ethnically “othered,” as well as perceptions of bodily adornment in the Pauline tradition and depictions of the fantastical bodies in the book of Revelation. We will also examine corporeal representations of both Jesus and Paul. One course.

772. The Scandal of the Cross. When interpreting Jesus’ crucifixion and resurrection in the Gospel accounts, scholars and laity alike often overlook or downplay the “scandal” of Jesus’ death on a cross. This course will first explore this typical interpretative move through exegetical attention to the passion and resurrection accounts in the Gospels. This course will then explore how the potential scandal of Jesus’ death intersects with issues such as gender, disability, violence, and power. One course.

773. Sex, Gender, and the Body: New Testament Conceptions. Conceptions of sex, gender, and the body are inextricably intertwined with discourse, both ancient and modern, and thus help shape the theological witness of the New Testament. To better understand the New Testament’s witness, this course will survey conceptions of sex, gender, and the body in the New Testament and the wider Greco-Roman world by focusing on selected passages drawn mainly from the Gospels and Paul. Topics to be covered range from Jesus’ masculinity to Paul’s understanding of marriage and singleness. Class itself will comprise both lecture and discussion. One course.

774. Proclaiming the Parables. Approaches to the interpretation and proclamation of the parables of Jesus. Readings in nonbiblical narrative and parable. In-class storytelling and preaching. Prerequisite: Preaching 758. One course. C-L: Preaching 762

775. Tour of Turkey: Revelation & Councils. A study class and tour of Turkey designed to familiarize students with the locations, geography, remains, and monuments of the cities of the Book of Revelation and the Church Councils while introducing students to some aspects of the Muslim character of Modern Turkey that affect the tourist industry as well as preservation/archeological work related to ancient Christian sites. One course. C-L: Church History 766

776. War in the Land of Shalom: Jewish Revolt and Crusades. A study class and tour of Israel designed to familiarize students with the locations, geography, remains, and monuments of the cities of Israel related to the Jewish Revolt as recorded by Josephus and the Crusades while introducing students to some aspects of the Jewish character of Modern Israel that affect the tourist industry as well as modern geopolitics. One course. C-L: Church History 767

790. Topics in New Testament. Topics vary. May be repeated for credit. One course.

800. Bible Study Programs for the Local Church. This course designed as a practicum in Bible study programs for the local church. Its purpose is to equip students to put their seminary biblical education to use in service to churches, through adult Bible studies. There are two foci to the course: the development of evaluative tools for assessing the theological, methodological, and pedagogical presuppositions of Bible study curricula, and practice in developing and implementing Bible studies appropriate to diverse and specific settings. One course. C-L: Christian Education 800

803. The Passion Narratives. A consideration of the origins, transmissions, and literary fixation of the passion narratives in the Gospels. One course.

805. New Testament Ethics. This course examines the distinctive patterns of ethical teaching in the various New Testament writings and considers various ways in which the New Testament might inform contemporary ethical reflection. The course will examine representative uses of the New Testament in theological ethics (for example, Niebuhr, Barth, Yoder, Hauerwas, Schüssler Fiorenza, and Gutierrez). Finally, selected topics will be addressed: for example, violence, divorce, anti-Judaism, abortion, wealth, and poverty. One course.

806. Explorations in Pauline Anthropology. This course explores the relationship between anthropology and theology in Paul’s letters, through investigating constructions of Pauline anthropology from that of Bultmann to the work of contemporary scholars. The goal of the course is to provide an opportunity to reflect on questions of identity formation, person in community and the interrelationship between divine and human action in sustained conversation with Paul, his interpreters, and each other. Prerequisite: New Testament 754. One course. C-L: Christian Education 801

807. Paul’s “Mother Tongue”: Interpreting and Approaching Paul’s Parental Metaphors. This course aims at recovering Paul’s “mother tongue” through a close reading of his parental metaphors, with particular attention to his use of maternal imagery. We will attend to the background of that imagery of prophetic and apocalyptic literature, as well as appropriations in the early church. The course will include readings in metaphor theory, exegesis of selected texts, and reflection on ways both destructive and constructive, such parental metaphors function in the church today. Prerequisite: Old Testament 752, 753, New Testament 754, 760, and 761 are strongly recommended. One course. C-L: Christian Education 802

809. Imitation and Transformation in the Letters of Paul. This course will investigate Paul’s imitation language in relationship to the formation of Christian character. The course will include exegesis of specific texts and critical evaluation of contemporary interpretations. We will attend to both ancient and modern notions of imitation. Prerequisite: Old Testament 752, 753, New Testament 754, and Christian Ethics 757. One course. C-L: Christian Education 803

811. Race and Gender in Paul. There are many “problem texts” in Paul, especially concerning slavery and gender. In fact, a lot of time is spent trying to get around them. But can they be interpreted constructively and with integrity? On the other hand, there is dynamic theological material in Paul, provided that he is correctly understood. Where is this material found? And is it in fact as dynamic and useful as hoped? The perception that these two different discourses are operative in Paul will structure much of the lecturing and discussion. The course will explore each discourse in turn, and then consider their interrelationship. One course.

812. The Historical Jesus. An introduction to historical method as it has been and may be applied to the life of Jesus of Nazareth. One course.

813. Paul & the Person. This course will bring selected Pauline texts into conversation with selected texts in philosophical psychology and neuroscience, exploring Paul’s notion of the person, of how people are constituted as selves in relation and how people change. The course will look at some practical implications of Paul’s anthropology for the ways people conceptualize those on the margins of society: people with forms of dementia, people on the autistic spectrum, and people with self-destructive behaviors and addictions. One course.

814. The Bible & Domestic Violence. This course will combine scriptural exegesis with the study of literature on pastoral care relating to domestic violence (DV). It will also include guest lectures by experts in DV and third party training in responding to DV. Throughout, students will seek to weave together the study of scripture with the study of contemporary contexts in order to cultivate a response to DV that is not only informed by scripture but energized by the biblical witness and adept at marshalling a host of scriptural resources. One course. C-L: Old Testament 808

870C. I Corinthians. One course.
870D. 1 Peter. An investigation of the scriptural formation of the missional congregation as exemplified in 1 Peter. Working with exegetical and theological methods, the course will examine the contextualization of the Gospel in the first century Asia Minor, asking how this letter shapes the community for witness. At the same time, exploring the implications of this investigation for an understanding of biblical authority and interpretation, for ecclesiology, and for exegetical discipline. One course.
870E. Ephesians. Prerequisite: New Testament 754, 760, 761, or equivalent. Consent of instructor required. One course.
870G. Galatians. One course.
870K. Mark. One course.
870M. Matthew. One course.
870P. Epistles of Peter and James. One course.
870PP. Philippians and Philemon. One course.
870R. Romans. One course.
870S. The Resurrection Narratives. One course.
870T. The Pastoral Epistles. One course.
870TT. Thessalonians. One course.
870Z. Colossians. One course.
901. The New Testament and Christian Leadership. This course will examine several key points at which the study of the New Testament intersects with, informs or critiques contemporary understandings of leadership. The primary focus will be on the figures of Jesus and Paul: therefore, central to the course will be a careful exegesis of selected passages in the Gospel of Mark and in Paul’s Corinthian correspondence. Secondary readings will encourage students to reflect more deeply on these New Testament texts as resources for understanding Christian leadership. One course.
950. The New Testament and Ancient Graeco-Roman Philosophy. This course will aim to understand the basic philosophical/theological issues that are embedded in the interaction between ancient philosophy and early Christianity and how these issues can be thought about today. We focus primarily on the Stoics because (a) they are the best representatives of the philosophical mainstream during the time surrounding the composition and early reception of the New Testament; (b) there is a long history of discussion about the relation between Stoicism and Christianity that time and again shows this question to be a particularly fruitful way of thinking about what Christianity actually is; and (c) Stoicism remains very much alive in the modern world. One course.
952. The Old Testament in the New: New Testament Writers as Interpreters of Scripture. This doctoral seminar will seek to examine the ways in which New Testament authors read and interpreted scripture. Special attention will be given to Paul, the Gospels, and Hebrews. Prerequisite: New Testament 754, 760, and 761, or equivalents. One course.
953. Questions in the Study of Ancient Judaism. The course will examine the current state of research on some of the most significant and controversial topics in contemporary study of Second Temple Judaism and the Judaism of the early rabbinic period. One course.
955. The Theology of Paul: Structure and Coherence. Review of recent critical discussion of Pauline theology, with particular emphasis on the problem of the structure and coherence of Paul’s thought. Reading knowledge of German, as well as some previous work in Greek exegesis of the Pauline corpus is required. Consent of instructor required. One course.
956. The Gospels and Historiography. A doctoral-level seminar investigating the approach of the Gospels towards history by comparing them with the approach to history of other ancient texts. One course.
957. Judaism & Christianity: The Parting of the Ways. The purpose of this course is to engage some of the most important Christian documents from the first four Christian centuries that shed light on the relations between Christians and Jews (or other Jews), and between Christianity and Judaism. Special attention will be paid to the questions of the persistence of Jewish Christianity, the “parting of the ways” (when, where, how, and why?), and whether or not anti-Jewish polemic reflects the presence of Jews in the environment or is merely a tool for Christian self-definition.
One course.
958. Pauline Biography. This course addresses the complex matter of Paul’s biography concentrating in particular on the generation of a framework for his life that all future historical critical research can then be based on. This reconstruction will be undertaken in as rigorous a fashion as is possible, in a self-consciously methodologically transparent mode, that is, avoiding wherever possible vicious circularity and other common problems in Pauline reconstruction. It will therefore focus on questions of integrity/partition, authorship/authenticity, relative sequence, absolute sequence, and dating, as well as aim to resolve the notoriously difficult matter of Paul’s chronology. One course.
959. Advanced Greek Grammar and Reading. Grammatical and syntactical analysis and reading of more difficult religious and philosophical texts from the Classical and Hellenistic periods. Enrollment is open to PhD/ThD students; master’s students may enroll with permission of the instructor. One course.
970. Seminar in the New Testament. Research and discussion on a selected problem in the biblical field. One course.
990. Topics in the New Testament. Topics vary, may be repeated for credit. One course.

II. Historical Studies

Church History (CHURHST)
701. Latin Reading. Focus on reading Latin texts with some consideration of grammar, syntax, and prose style of various classical texts. No credit.
708. Introduction to Church History. This course will introduce students to the church’s major historical “turning points,” significant moments that marked an event that has had a lasting impact on the history of Christianity. These events will include the Council of Nicaea, the Council of Chalcedon, the rise of monasticism, the rise of the Holy Roman Empire, the Great Schism, the Reformation, the Counter Reformation, Pietism, the missionary movement, and the rise of World Christianity. This class will be centered on a theme in examining such a wide swath of history, a theme perhaps better described as a tension. The tension is between the “pilgrim principle” and the “indigenization principle.” One course.
750. Early and Medieval Christianity. A survey of the history of Christianity from its beginnings through the fifteenth century. One course.
751. Modern European Christianity. A survey of the history of Christianity from the Reformation to the present.
One course.
760. Introduction to Ecclesiastical Latin. The class is an introduction to basic Latin grammar and the vocabulary, classical and theological, necessary for the reading of Patristic and Medieval Latin texts and non-Christian Latin sources of influence upon Christian thought. One course.
761. Introduction to Ecclesiastical Latin. Continuation of Church History 760. One course.
762. The English Reformation. The religious history of England from the accession of Henry VIII to the death of Elizabeth I. Extensive readings in the English reformers from Tyndale to Hooker. One course.
763. History of the Crusades. This course will thoroughly examine the historical record of the Crusades and grapple with their legacy for Western Christians today. One course.
764. Becoming Divine: A History of Eastern Orthodoxy. This course is designed to provide students with a historical framework within which to understand the theology, doctrine, and praxis of the Eastern Orthodox Church, from the patristic era to the end of the Byzantine empire. One course.
765. Greek Patristic Texts. In this course we will study the Greek syntax and style of key patristic texts, e.g., Martyrdom of Polycarp, Letters of Ignatius of Antioch, Acts of Paul and Thecia, Origen’s Preface to On First Principles, Nyssen’s Life of Marina, and Nazianzen’s Third Theological Oration. Class will include a review of Attic grammar not common in Koine Greek. One course.
766. Tour of Turkey: Revelation & Councils. A study class and tour of Turkey designed to familiarize students with the locations, geography, remains, and monuments of the cities of the Book of Revelation and the Church Councils while introducing students to some aspects of the Muslim character of Modern Turkey that affect the tourist industry as well as preservation/archeological work related to ancient Christian sites. One course. C-L: New Testament 775
767. War in the Land of Shalom: Jewish Revolt and Crusades. A study class and tour of Israel designed to familiarize students with the locations, geography, remains, and monuments of the cities of Israel related to the Jewish Revolt as recorded by Josephus and the Crusades while introducing students to some aspects of the Jewish character of Modern Israel that affect the tourist industry as well as modern geopolitics. One course. C-L: New Testament 776

790. Topics in Church History. Topics vary. May be repeated for credit. One course.

800. The Christian Mystical Tradition in the Medieval Centuries. Reading and discussion of the writings of medieval Christian mystics (in translation). Each year offers a special focus, such as: Women at Prayer; Fourteenth-Century Mystics; and Spanish Mystics. Less well-known writers (Hadewijch, Birgitta of Sweden, and Catherine of Genoa) as well as giants (Eckhart, Ruusbroec, Tauler, Suso, Teresa of Avila, Julian of Norwich, Catherine of Siena, and Bernard of Clairvaux) are included. Also offered as Medieval and Renaissance Studies 672 and Religion 742. One course.

803. The History of Biblical Interpretation: From Medieval to Modern Times. This course aims to give an account of some of the key shifts in the history of biblical interpretation by tracing the collapse of the medieval fourfold sense and the changing understandings of the “literal sense” analyzing the “Protestant Reformers” contribution to biblical exegesis, tracing the deconstruction of scripture and its authority, and suggesting some ways of reconstructing authority of scripture and the practices of reading scripture for Christian readers today. One course.

804. Prophecy and Reformation: Prophecy in the Early Modern Era. Prophecy is a very powerful theme and tool in the Early Modern era that informs the ways many of the key leaders of the Protestant Reformations were viewed by their contemporaries, strongly shapes the new vision of the Protestant pastor and his duties, and guides and informs the ways in which the church and church leaders can and should interact with and possibly challenge the state and state leaders. This course examines this theme of Prophecy and the Reformation from several different angles. One course.

805. The Protestant Reformers and the Jews. This course studies the late medieval and Renaissance backdrop to Christian perceptions of Jews and Judaism and Jewish responses to these perceptions and focuses on the views of Jews and Judaism in the writings of Martin Luther, John Calvin, Martin Bucker, and a few Catholic contemporaries such as Erasmus, Reuchlin, Eck, and Pfefforkorn. One course.

806. Readings in Latin Ecclesiastical Literature. This class will introduce students to the reading of ecclesiastical Latin, using John F. Collins’ A Primer of Ecclesiastical Latin. No prior knowledge of Latin is required. Throughout most of the semester, the primary focus will be on grammatical exercises and learning vocabulary, but students will be introduced to simple passages from the Latin Bible and other ecclesiastical texts, and by the end of the semester will be reading more lengthy selections from the Bible, besides the text of the Latin Mass. One course.

807. Women in the Medieval Church. The history of the Medieval Church told from its women figures. Attention to the life and writings of saints, heretics, abbesses, queens, mystics, recluses, virgins, bishops’ wives, and reformers. Topic varies. One course.

808. Women and the Protestant Reformation. This course involves the study of 1) the changing views of the roles of women in the home and workplace; and 2) the changing views of marriage, divorce, and parenthood during the time of the Protestant Reformation. One course.

809. Life and Times of the Wesleys. A seminar on John and Charles Wesley and their colleagues in relation to English culture and religion in the eighteenth century. One course.

810. Death, Grief, and Consolation, Ancient and Modern. This class will examine the theology of hope and the church’s rhetoric of consolation expressed in treatises and funeral orations in early Christianity. The course is designed to function as a PTM Limited Elective that challenges students to consider how the church articulates a message of consolation to those who are grieving that is grounded in a distinctive Christian anthropology and Christology. In practical terms, how does Jesus’ passion and resurrection make any difference in the way of ministering to people who are in the midst of suffering or have lost a loved one. One course.

811. Topics in Early Medieval Church. Topics vary. One course.

812. Out of Africa: Christianity in North Africa before Islam. In this seminar we will look at selected writings of Tertullian, Cyprian, and Augustine, as well as lesser known African Fathers. We will look at the African rite of Baptism, African Creeds, and African Church councils. Focusing on major theological, liturgical, and pastoral problems in the African church, we hope to gain an appreciation of the crucial role of the African church in the development of the church in the West. One course.
813. Pastoral Care from the Sixth to Eighth Centuries. Explores the role of pastors and the Christian formation of the people of Western Europe, ca. A.D. 500-800, using historical documents such as Gregory the Great’s Pastoral Rule, Caesarius of Arle’s Sermons, St. Boniface’s Missionary Letters, the Irish Book of Penance, civil law codes, and hagiography (the lives of saints). Prerequisite: Church History 750 or equivalent. One course.

814. Baptism in the First Eight Centuries of the Church. This seminar, using entirely primary source material, will look at: 1) liturgical texts (sacramentaries, missals); 2) commentaries (explanations and interpretations of the mass); 3) archaeological and iconographic evidence; and 4) ecclesiastical legislation on the Eucharist (ecumenical and local councils, capitularies, and canon law collections). Students will write a final research paper on any aspect of the influence or role of Eucharist belief and Eucharistic celebration on the life of the church. Prerequisite: Church History 750 or equivalent. One course.

815. Baptism in the Patristic and Early Medieval Period. A study of the celebration and interpretation of baptism in the church orders and texts of the early church writers. One course.

817. The Celebration and Interpretation of the Eucharist in the First Eight Centuries of the Church. This seminar, using entirely primary source material, will look at: 1) liturgical texts (sacramentaries, missals); 2) commentaries (explanations and interpretations of the mass); 3) archaeological and iconographic evidence; and 4) ecclesiastical legislation on the Eucharist (ecumenical and local councils, capitularies, canon law collections). Students will write a final research paper on any aspect of the influence or role of Eucharist belief and Eucharistic celebration on the life of the church. Prerequisite: Church History 750 or equivalent. One course.

818. Byzantium and Islam: Eastern Perspectives. Current and geopolitical tensions between Christendom and Islam are not new. These interactions have a long and sometimes violent history, saturated with ideological communities on both sides. A survey of original sources will be conducted, with particular attention to the ecclesial and historiographical texts. One course.

819. The Body in Early Christian Thought and Practice. The field of Early Christianity is frequently treated as the study of spiritual things. Yet early Christians, no less so than contemporary Americans, were convinced that their bodies mattered, and spent a great deal of time and text on them. Bodies were the locus for sin and salvation, required special treatment and training, and could become the signifiers of holiness as well as depravity. This course will explore the ways in which Christians from the second through sixth century C.E. thought about and treated their bodies: their own, those of saints and martyrs, and even that of Christ. Prerequisite: Church History 750 or equivalent. One course.

820. Byzantium and the Bible. Extraordinarily little has even been attempted in the area of Byzantine exegesis or homiletics. Surprisingly, the Byzantine treatment of Christian scripture is a topic that neither historical theologians nor Byzantinists have systematically addressed, despite the influence and importance of this thousand-year-old Christian empire of the Middle East. This course is intended to be an exploration into previously uncharted territory, a first foray toward thinking the thoughts of Eastern Christians who lived centuries before us, and identifying the historical significance of their neglected contribution. This class will focus on post-patristic to early medieval evidence. One course.

821. Worship History for Worship Renewal. Using in-depth case studies of selected historical churches, this course explores different practices in and understandings of Christian worship over the past two millennia. The course is designed to come to grips with basic issues in worship as represented by different traditions and with options for approaching worship renewal today, with an eye to using Trinitarian theology as the evaluative key. How might we borrow with integrity from our Christian past to renew worship today? Doctoral students taking the course will focus, in addition, on developing facility with researching historic, liturgical primary material. One course. C-L: Liturgical Studies 801

822. Heresies and Heretics. In this course, we will trace the church’s attempts to enforce orthodoxy from the days of Constantine to the modern church’s lingering conflicts. We will investigate how heresy is defined by historical context, specifically the ecumenical church councils, and how this definition has been refined and challenged throughout Christian history. One course.

823. Theological Assessment of Worship Song Lyrics. One of the most fundamental, recurring tasks of pastoral activity is the vetting of congregational worship songs, including considering their theological content. To better equip future ministers for this task, this course seeks to increase the capacity of students to assess theologically various lyrical expressions of the Christian faith, ancient and modern. By weekly review of small bodies of worship songs, assessed by both the student’s theology as well as the assumed perspective of a historical theologian, students will gain facility to address the potential and limitations of poetic articulations of theology. One course. C-L: Liturgical Studies 807
824. Biblical Interpretation in Early Christianity. This course will examine Christian discourse surrounding scripture and the ways in which it spoke and could be made to speak to the church throughout the period from, roughly, the second through the sixth centuries C.E. We will address, inter alia, questions of what texts came to be regarded as scripture and by what processes this occurred; the formation and “closing” of the canon; the development of different schools and strategies for biblical interpretation; Christians’ interactions with other interpretive communities, including particularly their Jewish neighbors, whose readings shaped Christian understandings of scripture; as well as regional, individual, and genre-specific differences. One course.

890. Topics in Church History. Topics vary. May be repeated for credit. One course.

903. Ecclesial Leadership: An Historical Perspective. This class is the history component of the DMin curriculum. As the title suggests, the course is designed to give an historical perspective on the work of ecclesial leaders. Although the category of leader or dux is ancient, “leadership” is a relative recent label for the study of the work of deacons, pastors, and bishops. One course.

950. Readings in Latin Ecclesiastical Literature: Four Carolingian Debates. Readings in Latin of pastoral, theological, and church-disciplinary literature from the late patristic and medieval period. Prerequisite: Church History 806 or equivalent, plus a fair reading knowledge of Latin. One course.

951. The Radical Reformation. Protestant movements of dissent in the sixteenth century. Special attention will be devoted to Muntzer, Carlstadt, Hubmaier, Schwenckfeld, Denck, Marpeck, Socinus, and Menno Simons. One course.

952. Jewish/Christian Encounter with Late Antiquity. Over the course of the past few decades, scholars of Early Christianity have widely recognized and affirmed not only Jesus’ own Jewish identity but the New Testament’s witness to the new religion’s Jewish origins. Such recognition nevertheless raises further questions for students of Christianity’s historical development: how, when, and for what reasons did the movements separate? What accounts for the virulent anti-Jewish tenor of many ancient Christian writings? What alternative models, if any, presented themselves as adherents of both traditions? This seminar will seek to explore these and related questions on the basis of primary source material. One course.

953. Asceticism and Monasticism in Early Christianity. The impulse towards asceticism—towards distinguishing oneself as a “spiritual athlete”—has been part of Christianity’s DNA since its very beginnings. Both the gospels and the Pauline epistles emphasize the benefits of self-denial, and the heavenly treasures that such self-denial would lay up for believers. By the fourth century, these ascetic beginnings flowered into a widespread, locally, and regionally diverse set of monastic and ascetic practices, varying in kind as well as in degree, but all designed to draw Christians closer to God and, on occasion, to draw down the heavenly Jerusalem to the temporal plane. One course.

954. Death and Dying in Late Antiquity. Death, in antiquity as in the present era, sat at the intersection of a wide range of discourses. Medical doctors, for example, sought to avert it, jurists to mitigate its impact upon family relations and the flow of capital, philosophers and theologians to prescribe approaches to it, and bishops and other religious professionals to create rituals by which to assist the departed’s transition into the afterlife and to channel the grief of surviving loved ones. This seminar aims to locate death at the intersection of material and literary culture, liturgical practice, and economic impact upon ancient Christian communities. One course.

990. Topics in Church History. Topics vary. May be repeated for credit. One course.

Divinity (DIVINITY)

175. Introduction to Catholic Thought. This course provides an introduction to the style and substance of the Catholic intellectual tradition. Students will be expected to read some of the classics of the tradition closely, to become familiar with the tradition’s technical vocabulary, to gain a preliminary understanding of the main topics of interest to it, and to engage some of its main conclusions critically. No credit.

180. Pastoral Care and Women. A course that explores the cultural and ecclesial context for the pastoral care of women, with a focus on the theme of embodiment and relationality. Special topics include vocation, spirituality, aging, abuse, and depression. One course.

Historical Theology (HISTTHEO)

790. Topics in Historical Theology. Topics vary. May be repeated for credit. One course.

800. The Theology of the Alexandrian School. This course will focus on the writings of four of Alexandria’s most influential thinkers: Philo, Clement, Athanasius, and Cyril. Prerequisite: Church History 750. One course.

801. Augustine. The religion of the Bishop of Hippo in the setting of late antiquity. One course.

802. Readings in Medieval Theology. This course examines the high medieval achievement in theology, both scholastic and spiritual, through close study of selections from many of the most important theologians from the 12th through the early 14th centuries. Prerequisite: Church History 750. One course.

803. Luther and the Reformation in Germany. The theology of Martin Luther in the context of competing visions of reform. One course.

804. Problems in Historical Theology. One course.

805. From Papyri to PCS: Art and the Media in the Christian Tradition. A study of the various ways by which the Gospel has been communicated and transmitted through the centuries, including architecture, music, manuscripts, painting, calligraphy, drama, sculpture, preaching, movies, stained glass, television, and printing. One course.

806. Virtue and Theology in Early Christian Ethics. In this course, we will examine the classical concept of virtue (Homer, Plato, and Aristotle) and the way that Christian theology (Christology, anthropology, eschatology, and hamartiology) causes early Christian theologians to modify the classical concept of virtue. After a survey of key Christian views of theology and discipleship (Clement, Nyssen, Ambrose, and Augustine) we will examine key ethical issues. Prerequisite: Church History 750. One course.

807. History and Theology of Byzantine Iconography. As important cultural products, icons and their Christian iconography are worthy of study for their theological authority as well as their historical significance in the development of Eastern Orthodox thought and praxis. This course aims to expose students to the sensory world of Byzantine worship through deep study of its iconography and history. One course.

808. Patristic Readings of Romans 5-8. Romans 5-8 is one of the most important sets of chapters in the history of the church’s understanding of Paul’s anthropology, Christology, salvation history, and Pneumatology. This seminar will examine the exegesis and dogmatic deployment of these chapters by Origen, Ambrose, Ambrosiaster, Pelagius, Augustine, and John Cassian. One course.

809. Eros and Epektasy: From Plato to Ps-Dionysius. One of the major subjects of debate among theologians, ancient and modern, has been how to think about the nature of Christian love. In his famous Agape and Eros, Anders Nygren argued that the incorporation of a Classical and Hellenistic notion of eros into Christian theology marked a corruption of the Biblical concept of agape. The purpose of this class is not to rebut Nygren’s analysis “that has been done by other scholars” rather it is to examine how theologians appropriated the Classical eros tradition. The class will also pay close attention to the question of how the theological commitments of these Christian theologians caused them to change the Classical ideal of eros. One course.

810. Christology before Nicaea. Beginning with an overview of the New Testament and Jewish Christian texts among the so-called Apostolic writings, the class will trace the ways in which Jesus is discussed in the first formative centuries of the church. The term “Christology” is used broadly to include, not only ways the fathers narrated the relationships of Jesus’ humanity and divinity, but also Jesus’ relationship with the Father and Spirit in his salvific works. This is the first of two classes to be taught (in order) on patristic Christology. One course.

890. Topics in Historical Theology. Topics vary. May be repeated for credit. One course.

950. Theology of John Wesley. One course.

951. Roger William’s Life and Thought. The historic importance of Roger Williams cannot be limited to that of a sectarian firebrand who challenged Puritan authorities, befriended Indian neighbors, founded the colony of Rhode Island, and established the First Baptist Church in America. Roger Williams may well deserve the title “America’s Theologian” because he was the trailblazer for the liberty of conscience, the freedom of religion, and the separation of church and state which became established as a distinctively American ideal in history, culture, and law. This course will examine the life and thought of Roger Williams through a careful reading of his writings with attention to both their historical context and contemporary relevance. One course. C-L: Christian Theology 951

953. Topics in Patristic Theology. A study of selected topics from the Greek Fathers. One course.

954. Greco-Roman Intellectual Traditions of Patristic Thought. The course examines various intellectual traditions (philosophical schools, schools of rhetoric, and literature) that provided the high cultural background for early Christian authors, from the writers of the New Testament to Patristic theologians such as Justin, Clement, Origen, Gregory of Nyssa, and Augustine. One course.

955. The Theology and Ethics of Ambrose of Milan. This class on Ambrose will consider the following: Political and Philosophical Context of Fourth Century Christendom; Ambrose’s Exegesis; Ambrose’s Dogmatic Theology; and Ambrose’s Moral Theology. It is designed to be of value to both historians of late antiquity and ancient Christianity and students of theology and ethics. One course.

956. The Theology of the Cappadocians. Prerequisite: Christian Ethics 757, Christian Theology 755, Church History 750, and Church History 751. One course.
II. Historical Studies

957. Theology and Reform in the Later Middle Ages. Examination of selected issues in the life and thought of the medieval church from the twelfth century through the fifteenth century. Readings in popular and academic theologians from Pierre Abelard to Gabriel Biel. One course.

958. Theology of St. Thomas Aquinas. Seminar on themes and problems in the thought of Thomas Aquinas. Consent of instructor required. Also taught as Religion 748S. One course.

960. Topics in Historical Theology. Topics vary. May be repeated for credit. One course.

American Christianity (AMXTIAN)

756. American Christianity. A consideration of the nature of Christianity in America and the history of its development. One course.

760. North Carolina Christianity. This course examines the history of North Carolina from colonialism to the present day. In particular, we explore the impact of war, economic depression, and immigration and discuss the consequences of the Civil War, the civil rights movement and the prosperity gospel. One course.

790. Topics in American Christianity. Topics vary. May be repeated for credit. One course.

800. Studies in American Methodism. Research seminar devoted to selected topics in the Wesleyan and Methodist traditions in America. One course.

801. Faithful Fortune: The Prosperity Gospel in America. This course introduces students to the major figures and features of the twentieth-century American prosperity gospel. It traces its late 19th century metaphysical roots through black and white Pentecostalism to post-war revivals where it took shape. We consider its effect on megachurches, televangelism, and uplift traditions as it spread across racial and economic divides. New Thought, New Age, self-help, Pentecostalism, and pop religion will be considered throughout. One course.

802. The Image of the Clergy in American Popular Culture. This course will examine prevalent images of the American popular culture from the early colonial period to the present, with emphasis on the post-World War II era. One course.

803. American Religious Thought. Exploration of major writings from the Puritans to the present. “Religious thought” will be broadly construed to include formal theological treatises, spiritual autobiographies, folk theology, and the like. One course.

804. Worship in the Wesleyan Tradition. A study of the historical, theological, liturgical, and sociological influences which have shaped the worship patterns of the Episcopal Church and the major American denominations that claim a Wesleyan heritage. Historical and contemporary liturgies will be examined, and concerns related to the leadership of contemporary liturgies will be discussed. Prerequisite: Care of the Parish 777 and 778, Liturgical Studies 760. One course. C-L: Liturgical Studies 805

805. American Evangelicalism and Fundamentalism. A reading seminar covering major themes in the development of transdenominational evangelicalism and fundamentalism in America from the eighteenth century to the present. One course.

807. The Social Organization of American Religion. Focuses on social and institutional aspects of American religion. Topics include trends in American religion, social sources of religious variation, sociological knowledge about congregations and clergy, and religion’s place in American society. One course. C-L: Sociology 776

808. Religions in the American South. A study of the interrelationships of southern religion and southern culture. One course.

810. Jonathan Edwards and the Puritan Tradition. This course’s primary goal is to examine the interaction between Jonathan Edwards and his age. Though we will pay attention both to the man and to the age, the focus will fall on the interaction between them—how Edwards drew on the intellectual and cultural resources of the times and how the times made his work possible. A closely related secondary goal is to sharpen our ability to read primary and secondary texts, both appreciatively and critically. What did the authors intend to convey? What did they leave out? What did their audiences hear—then, over the years, and now? What difference does any or all of this make? One course.

811. Pentecostalism. This course will study the history, theology, and practices of Pentecostalism—the fastest growing Christian movement in the world, encompassing perhaps one in every four Christians—from its origins.
among poor whites and recently freed African Americans to its phenomenal expansion in places like South America, Asia, and Africa. The course will explore Pentecostalism’s theological and historical relationship to the Methodist, Holiness, Apostolic, and Charismatic movements, as well as Pentecostal belief in phenomena like speaking in tongues, healing, miracles, and prophecy. Finally, the course will use race, class, and gender analysis to evaluate the cultural influences of Pentecostalism. One course.

812. Status Update: Women and Power in American Popular Ministry. This course examines the history of ordaining women for Christian ministry in the United States. The class explores a wide range of Christian responses to the changing social, cultural, economic, and political expectations for women in religious leadership. We will examine the ideas and experiences of a wide variety of women in ministry. We will grapple with questions of race and sexual orientation for women in the pulpit. We will draw examples from seasoned denominations like the Methodists and the Episcopalians to nondenominational churches, outsider traditions like the Seventh Day Adventists to modern televangelism. One course.

890. Selected Topics in American Christianity. Topics vary. May be repeated for credit. One course.

951. Interpretations of American Religion. An opportunity for advanced students in North American religious studies to deepen their understanding of some of the major questions in the field. Examination of how religious history is actually written—with special attention to the imaginative and moral motivations that enter into that process. Consent of instructor required. One course.

990. Topics in American Christianity. Topics vary. May be repeated for credit. One course.

History of Religion (HISTREL)

760. Engaging with Islam and Muslims as Faithful Christians. This course will be an introductory level examination of the major theologies, geographies, demography, and cultures of Muslim peoples. It will analyze the historical development of Islam as a religion and the civilizational achievements of Muslim societies. Participants will gain basic knowledge of Islamic theology and doctrines, various religious practices, Islamic history, and the many ways in which Islam is practiced as a living faith in different parts of the world, including the U.S. Divinity School students will find this course helpful in developing skills to engage in meaningful Christian-Muslim relations conversations. One course.

761. Jesus and Mary in Islam. The course will introduce students to the Prophet Isa (Jesus) and his mother Maryam (Virgin Mary) within the foundational texts (Qur'an and Hadith) texts of Islam and as well as the theme’s manifestation in major Muslim traditions, namely Sunni, Shiite, and/or Sufi traditions from 7th century to present time. Special attention will be given to the theological underpinnings of various Muslim views on Jesus and Mary, revealing both comparison and contrast with the orthodox Christian traditions. One course.

762. Introduction to Judaism: Calendar as Catechism. An integrated view of Judaism through a survey of the holy days of the Jewish calendar. The holy days are the focal points of well integrated and constantly elaborated teachings, rituals, liturgies, and folkways—all uniquely attached to a timely (historical) moment (for example, Passover), or to a timeless gesture (for example, Day of Atonement). Each event is a prism through which the light of Jewish civilization is refracted to reveal its various aspects and eras. One course.

763. An Introduction to Jewish Prayer. A project to examine the forms, vocabulary, and uses of Jewish liturgy from ancient times through the present. One course.

764. Introduction to Midrash: The Rabbinic Art of Interpreting Scripture. How does the single voice of scripture contain the chorus of rabbinic interpretations? What is the nature of the dialogue between text and interpreter? What is the authority of exegesis? These are some of the questions that we will explore through selected Midrash texts. The texts themselves will represent a variety of literary forms, styles, and topics. One course.

765. The Wisdom of Ancient Rabbinic Stories. This course is a project to study many short stories of the Talmud and Midrash in order to build a description of the “personality” of rabbinic Judaism in the early centuries of the common era. One course.

766. Elijah the Prophet in Jewish Consciousness. Survey of aspects of Jewish continuity, custom, and ritual through the lens of traditions relating to Elijah the Prophet. One course.

767. Introduction to Judaism: Investigations into the Jewish Life Cycle: A Time to be Born; A Time to Die. This course will give particular attention to the liturgical and ritual responses to life and death. The studies of rite and liturgy will lead to investigations of the underlying Jewish theological and philosophical claims, as well as the
III. Christian Theology

Christian Theology (XTIANTHE)

700. Theology Colloquies. Every other week a faculty member or visiting scholar leads a discussion on a selected topic. The course is a noncredit course open to all master's students. No credit.

705. Introduction to Christian Theology. This course will introduce students to the church's major beliefs and practices, including lessons on topics such as God, Israel, Jesus, the Holy Spirit, the church, worship and prayer, scripture, and eschatology. The course will also provide an introduction to the nature and purpose of theology and to the role of critical thinking in the Christian intellectual life. The class will also serve as a general introduction to the curriculum students will encounter in subsequent courses. One course.

725. Christian Vocation. This course is designed as an introduction to Christian vocation. Students will be guided through an examination of scripture and wide range of texts in the Christian tradition to consider the nature and purpose of God's call for all people. Though the course considers God's call for all Christians, it will attend to a call to ordained ministry. One course.

755. Christian Theology. The course aims at furthering the active appropriation of the Christian faith in the context of the contemporary church and in engagement with the world of today. It treats principally the themes of the classic creeds or the traditional topics of dogmatics. It also introduces students to the epistemological issues of revelation, faith, authority, interpretation, and social location. One course.

757. Philosophical Theology I. Selected readings from Plato and Aristotle which helped to shape philosophical theology from Origen through Augustine and Aquinas. One course.

760. The Free Church. This course is designed to introduce students to the theological ethos of the Free Church tradition from the origins in Europe and Great Britain, through its spread to North America, to contemporary expressions in the post-colonial two-thirds world. The approach to the subject will be historical and theological, providing a narrative that traces the development and growth of the Free Church movement as well as a typological description of the character of the Free Church. One course.

761. Free Church Theology. Extending Schleiermacher's observation that theology in the West is either Catholic or Protestant, this course explores a third type: Free Church theology. It will prepare students to think theologically about the convictions and practices that are distinctive to the standpoint of the Free Church tradition in conversation with Catholic and Protestant theologies. Prerequisite: Christian Theology 755. One course.

762. Reformed Theologies. This course is designed to acquaint the student with the theological ethos of the Reformed tradition, in both its early Continental and its contemporary expressions. One course.

763. Faith and Freedom. This course is designed to help students answer from a Christian standpoint what it means to be free. Conceptions of freedom from the broader cultural horizon will be engaged in conversation, but the primary sources for reflection will be from Christian scripture and tradition. The life stories of St. Augustine, John Bunyan, and Jarena Lee (and her “Sisters in the Spirit”) will serve as models to display the convictions and practices of Christian freedom. One course.

764. The Pastor's Vocation. This course proposes to revisit the notion of the pastor's life, drawing on classical as well as contemporary texts, theological analysis as well as memoir and fiction, and men and women from diverse Christian communities. The course will explore key themes of the pastor's vocation: calling, the pastoral office, spiritual life and care, preacher, and the pastor as leader of the communities of faith and resistance. Writing assignments will ask students to reflect on their understanding of the pastoral vocation in conversation with the readings. One course.

765. Women, Theology, and the Church. An introductory course about gender and the church that considers issues of authority in the mainline churches and theological traditions, surveys the range of feminist theologies from biblical and evangelical to radical, and allows the student to work on practical issues of gender and ministry. One course.

766. Theology and Interpreting Scripture. We will pay special attention to how understanding of God and corporate life are connected to different judgments about the nature of the Bible as scripture, its use, and what counts as faithful practices. One course.

767. The Lord's Prayer. By studying historic and contemporary expositions of the Lord's Prayer, the course provide an introduction not only to the doctrines of God, humanity, prayer, and the kingdom, but also to the variety of the Christian spiritual tradition in time and space. One course.

768. Conflicts in Faith: Christianity and Feminism. Prerequisite: Christian Ethics 757, Christian Theology 755. One course.

769. The Nature and Existence of God. The purpose of this course is to elucidate what it is to think about God according to the fundamental grammar of Christian thought, which is to say, first, how to think about the distinction between God and creatures; and then, second, how to think about God as triune. Fulfilling that purpose will require provision of careful conceptual distinctions, which will in turn mean offering something approaching a primer in (what Catholics sometimes problematically call) fundamental theology, or (as an alternative and equally obscure label) philosophical theology, or (worse yet) philosophy of religion. One course.

770. Introduction to Christian Philosophy. Students in this course will begin by inquiring into the nature of philosophy. In light of this beginning point, the students will then go on to investigate several ideas in philosophy: 1) the possibility of philosophic knowledge, 2) natural law, 3) moral absolutes, 4) the relationships between our notions of God and demonstrations of God’s existence, 5) Christian aesthetics, 6) philosophical responses to revelation mysticism, and 7) philosophical contemplation as an ongoing and meaningful part of Christian life. One course.

771. Learning Theology with C.S. Lewis. In this course the students will encounter a broad and representative range of C.S. Lewis’ works. By the way of close reading, reflection, and discussion, the students will begin to think through central topics of Christian theology and ethics. The goal of this course is to offer students the opportunity to being to think theologically. The hope is that thereby students will be enabled to encounter, reflect upon, and respond to various situations in their ministry beginning already with their field education placement. One course.

772. English Language and Literature...
810. Augustine’s The City of God. This course asks what it means to interpret history theologically. In pursuing this question, the course enters with Augustine into the labyrinthine argument of The City of God, seeking first to understand what may be taken to be contemporary concerns. Prerequisite: Christian Theology 755, Church History 750. One course.

811. Social Significance of the Lord’s Supper. Prerequisite: Christian Theology 755 and Christian Ethics 757. One course.

812. The Doctrine of Creation and Theological Anthropology. This course explores the Christian doctrine of creation. We will examine the thought of several theologians, paying special attention to their understandings of creation and their theological anthropology. Understanding the human as “a creature” and the world as “created” plays a crucial role in addressing issues of personal identity and our life in the world. The hope of this course is to develop a paradigm for personhood that speaks to issues such as (1) ecological and technological perspectives on human existence, (2) gender construction and sexual identity, (3) social and familial order, (4) and the formation of people groups and structures of belonging. One course.

813. Leadership and Discipleship. One course. C-L: Care of Parish 804

814. Eschatology. A study of issues in individual, communal, and universal eschatology against the background of twentieth-century scholarly work in the kingdom of God. One course.

815. Theology and Music. A course exploring the interaction of theology and music. It aims to help students gain a working knowledge of what it is to think theologically about music and think musically about theology. One course.

816. The Doctrine of the Trinity. Beginning from the biblical bases, the trajectory of trinitarian doctrine is traced through the patristic and medieval periods and into the rediscovery of the Trinity in the 20th century. Current projects in trinitarian theology are examined for their faithfulness to scripture and tradition and for their fruitfulness in ecclesiology, liturgy, missiology, and ethics. Prerequisite: Church History 750 and New Testament 754. One course.

817. Spirit, Worship, and Mission. A course exploring the doctrine of the Holy Spirit through the church’s twin practices of worship and mission. It involves extensive engagement with the arts as media of theological discovery and articulation. One course.

819. Readings in Lesslie Newbigin’s Theology. This course studies works of theology produced in deep and sustained engagement with ecclesial practice in the contexts of both India and the modern west. Newbigin is viewed as pastor, ecumenist, missiologist, social thinker, and Christian apologist. The principal writings are The Household of God, The Open Secret, and The Gospel in a Pluralist Society. One course.

820. Theology & Ethics of Dietrich Bonhoeffer. This course engages Dietrich Bonhoeffer’s theology and theological ethics and their significance for the 21st century. In pursuing this, Bonhoeffer is situated within a global, trans-Atlantic frame. One course.

822. Theology of Las Casas. This course will introduce students to the thought of Bartolome de las Casas, the sixteenth century Dominican missionary and theologian who dedicated his life to the defense of the indigenous peoples of the Americas. One course.

823. Mary Through the Eyes of Faith: Scripture, Doctrine, Theology. This course will have a twofold goal for the students: First, to encounter and think through the emerging grammar of faith as it pertains to Mary, the mother of Jesus, the incarnate Logos, and thereby to become more competent theological interpreters of a set of beliefs and devotions of great importance to a vast segment of global Christianity; and second, by way of encountering Mary through the eyes of faith, to become more competent theological practitioners of spiritual exegesis, the interpretation of theological doctrine, and ecumenical dialogue. One course.

824. John Wesley in Controversial and Ecumenical Theology. A study of John Wesley and his theology both in his engagements with other confessional traditions, and in his views on such matters as church, ministry, sacraments, and authority. Prolongation into present-day relations between Methodism and other Christian communions. One course.

825. Icon Theology. A study of theological controversies surrounding the use of images in Christian worship, followed by an attempt to perceive the symbolic conventions and doctrinal content of some Eastern, Western, and contemporary icons. One course.

826. Eschatology: The End of Life and the Ends of God. With this course we intend to offer a fresh look at possibly the most central aspect of the Christian faith: eschatology. Prerequisite: Christian Theology 755. One course.

Decades of dialogue have produced notable theological convergence among the Christian confessions on a variety of topics, but questions remain about the degree of agreement needed for unity, about its reception into the official doctrine of the churches, and about its enactment in their life and conduct. Prerequisite: Christian Theology 755. One course.

828. Readings in Eastern Orthodox Theology. This course is designed to familiarize the students with the classics of 20th century Orthodox theology including their antecedents, their diverse reformulations, and the context in which they were developed. One course.

829. The Significance of Memory: Theological and Ecclesial Perspectives. Through examining the church as a community of memory, this course narrates how Christians remember the past and the importance of liturgical memory for understating the present and future. The significance of collective memory is explored by analyzing how a people’s remembrance of its past, particularly its own history of suffering unjustly, is formative of its identity. The course highlights how Christians and social groups can remember truthfully in life-affirming rather than life-denying ways. One course.

830. Theology in Ecological Context. This course will develop several Christian teachings as they relate to the nature of God and creation, Christology, soteriology, pneumatology, theological anthropology, and ecclesiology in light of an ecological consciousness. One course.

831. Hans Urs von Balthasar. A course considering the thought of 20th century Swiss-German and Roman Catholic theologian Hans Urs von Balthasar. The course considers his theological vision and how it organizes his outlook on literature and culture, philosophy, and religion, and Christian thought broadly conceived. Prerequisite: Christian Theology 755 and either one other Theology or Church History/Historical Theology course. Reading knowledge of German preferred. One course.

832. The Theology of Joseph Ratzinger. The class will work with English translations of Joseph Ratzinger’s writings. One course.

833. Theology in the Twentieth Century. This course tells the wide ranging story of the course of Christian theology as embedded in the events of the twentieth century. This course assists students in understanding what has been pastorally at stake as a matter of Christian discipleship in how Christian theology has unfolded in the twentieth century. One course. One course.

834. The Thought of Augustine of Hippo. This course’s primary purpose is to introduce students to the topics of major intellectual concern to Augustine of Hippo (A.D. 354-430), and to help them to see how these topics are related in his thought. It will do so through close study of a representative selection of Augustine’s works in English translation, with an option for a weekly meeting to read Augustine in Latin for those capable of and interested in doing so. One course.

835. Issues in Contemporary Systematic Theology in America and England. The goal of this seminar is to offer exemplary readings in contemporary systematic theology in America and England. However, instead of attempting a comprehensive overview by covering all voices that make up contemporary theology, this seminar follows a distinct path in the contemporary discussion: Trinitarian theology between scripture, philosophy, and culture. Prerequisite: Christian Theology 755. Three courses. C-L: Religion 921

836. Atonement: The Life and Death of Jesus Christ. In this class, we will consider and rethink the doctrine of the atoning work of Jesus Christ in light of contemporary social formations (i.e., education, family, nationalism, and racial, gendered, and sexual identity), formations that work precisely in terms of love and death, indeed, through frameworks of atonement or through frameworks of Christian love and death. One course.

837. Christianity and Democracy: A Theological Exploration. The course examines the theological issues and questions democracy poses as a form of political order. The course focuses on the formative period of the conceptualization of the relationship between Christianity and democracy that took place between the mid-19th century and mid to late 20th century and which ran between the European and North American contexts. One course.

838. Church, Mission & Society. The module aims to identify and develop critical frameworks for reflecting upon the nature of the church, its mission and ways in which these interact with and are shaped by broader social and political relationships. Consideration of key historical figures such as Augustine, Aquinas, Calvin, and Barth leads up to the examination of debates in contemporary ecclesiology, missiology, and theological ethics to do with inter-faith and ecumenical relations, cross-cultural mission and faithful political witness in a multi-faith society. One course.

839. Salvation and Damnation: Explorations of Frantz Fanon. This course explores the writings of Frantz Fanon and their significance for Christian theology. Key doctrinal themes to be considered in relationship to his thought are salvation and political theology along with anthropology and atonement. One course.

840. Religion and the Public Life. This interdisciplinary graduate seminar examines the paradoxes in the public life sphere when faith, citizenship, and poverty intersect with the myriad process of globalization. One course.
841. Political Theology. The course is about the contemporary tasks and understandings of political theology—that is, the fusion of God and politics, and the ongoing work of the theological in the secular. It takes up this subject at the crossroads of theological ideas (like sovereignty and salvation), questions of money and value, and formations of identity and the body. One course.

842. Womanist Theological Ethics. This course is an interdisciplinary survey of the faithful Christian witness of African American women, and the significant contributions of black womanist theological and ethical thought to the church. The four tenets of womanist inquiry as outlined in Alice Walker’s definition of “womanist”—radical subjectivity, traditional communalism, redemptive self-love, and critical engagement—will guide students in the work of uncovering the quadrilateral intersections of race, gender, class, and sexual oppressions in the everyday lives of black women who comprise 90 percent of black church membership. One course.

843. Theologies of Liberation in the US. This course will introduce students to various US theologies of liberation—black, feminist, womanist, mujerista, Latino/a, Asian indigenous, Asian, Asian feminist, and queer theologies—that have developed over the course of the late 20th and early 21st centuries as theoretical and practical responses to the problem of human suffering. The course will explore key aspects of how liberation theologians have grounded their advocacy of sociopolitical transformation in their respective understandings of God’s identity and God’s plan for humankind and the world. Distinctive features of liberationist theological approaches to doctrine and dominant theological themes will be explored. One course.

849. Theological Topics. A seminar on contemporary theological issues, content to be designated by the Theological Division. May be repeated for credit. One course.

904. Theology of Christian Leadership. This course identifies aspects of the Christian tradition to shape richly textured theologically imagined practices of leadership and witness for the contemporary church. The goal is not only to equip students to think theologically about leadership but also to act as theologically informed leaders. Readings will focus on texts from the modern period with complementary materials from biblical and ancient sources that name and explore key components of faithful witness. One course.

950. Th.D. Seminar: Explorations in Practical Theology. The seminar explores the complex relationship of theology and practice. In addition to a review of major theories of practice/praxis (e.g., Aristotle, Marx, Alasdair MacIntyre, and Pierre Bourdieu) and models of practical theology, the course looks critically and constructively at a variety of practices that characterize Christian life. This is a required seminar for ThD students but is open also to senior MDiv students, with permission of the instructors. One course.

951. Roger William’s Life and Thought. The historic importance of Roger Williams cannot be limited to that of a sectarian firebrand who challenged Puritan authorities, befriended Indian neighbors, founded the colony of Rhode Island, and established the First Baptist Church in America. Roger Williams may well deserve the title “America’s Theologian” because he was the trailblazer for the liberty of conscience, the freedom of religion, and the separation of church and state which became established as a distinctively American ideal in history, culture, and law. This course will examine the life and thought of Roger Williams through a careful reading of his writings with attention to both their historical context and contemporary relevance. One course. C-L: Historical Theology 951

952. Slavery and Obedience. This course examines the theological architecture of Christian obedience. It will examine obedience in relation to its historic social couplet—slavery. Slavery, especially in its modernist reformation from the 14th century forward, framed the problems of Christian obedience with great urgency. The goal of this course will be to formulate a theology of obedience that is attuned to questions of identity, history, and the ongoing realities of global slavery and its social and economic echoes. Such a theology would articulate more deeply what it means to be an obedient church. One course.

953. John Henry Newman: Life & Thought. John Henry Newman was born in 1801 and died in 1890. He was the central figure in the so-called Oxford Movement of the 1830s and 1840s, and among the most effective and widely-read theological controversialists writing in English in the nineteenth century. This course will explore his life and thought. One course.

954. Theological Anthropology: Critical Modernists. This seminar will look at theological anthropology in the work of 20th century theologians who develop the tradition of Schleiermacher, a group known as critical revisionists (or revisionist modernists). After recognizing Schleiermacher’s contribution, the course will treat theological anthropology in selected contemporary figures such as Paul Tillich, David Tracy, Gordon Kaufman, and Edward Farley. Prerequisite: Christian Theology 755 or consent of instructor. One course.

955. God, Freedom, and the Problem of Evil. Study of phenomenon of evil by approaching through works of 956. Nature and Grace. By attending to the use of the correlative pair of terms, “nature and grace” and “nature and the supernatural,” the systematic difference between both pairs, and their emergence at different periods of theological reflection this seminar course intends to examine a central aspect of the “genetic code” of Christian theology, pertaining to the first pair, arguably from Irenaeus on, but indisputably from Augustine on, and pertaining to the second pair arguably from Thomas Aquinas on. One course.

958. Philosophical Theology II. Main problems of philosophical theology in the modern period. One course.

959. Readings in Theology and Language. Sample treatments of religious language in linguistic analysis, hermeneutical theory, literary criticism, liturgical practice, and fundamental theology. One course.

960. System in Theology. An investigation into the sources, criteria, and purposes entailed in the construction of coherent and consistent accounts of the Christian faith. Classic and contemporary examples are examined as to their methods and results. Prerequisite: Christian Theology 755 and one other class in theology. One course.

955. Faith and Reason. Seminar will take up the impulse given by the encyclical Fides et Ratio and explore the relationship of faith and reason, of theology and philosophy, on the threshold of a new century. Variable credit. C-L: Religion 752S

962. Theology of St. Thomas Aquinas. Seminar on themes and problems in the thought of Thomas Aquinas. Consent of instructor required. Also taught as Religion 749S. One course.

963. The Theology of Radical Orthodoxy. This course considers the late twentieth and early twenty-first century theological movement known as Radical Orthodoxy, with special emphasis on the thought of its two chief architects, John Milbank and Catherine Pickstock. The course seeks to help students understand the contemporary structure of world theological space, understand their formation in space, and grasp what it means to prepare intellectually for the task of being teachers in local churches given the structure of contemporary theology. One course.

965. Christian Theology and Western Metaphysics. This course offers and exploration of the delicate, albeit crucial, function of metaphysics in relationship to theology. The course considers the alleged postmodern “overcoming” of metaphysics; the difficult history of the relationship between theology and metaphysics; and the ongoing importance of metaphysics for theology. One course.

966. The Thought of Henri de Lubac. This course intends to introduce Protestant as well as Roman Catholic students to the thought of one of the greatest Roman Catholic theologians of the 20th century. Prerequisite: Christian Theology 755. One course.

967. Ecclesiology and Ethnography. The course aims to help students grasp conceptually and undertake methodologically the ethnographic study of practice and an interdisciplinary approach to theological research in order to generate a richer and thicker theological framework. One course.

968. The Theological Aesthetics of the Image. This course will explore primary and critical writings related to the contested role of images in philosophical theology and aesthetics, and also in some nineteenth century literature. Rather than approaching the image from the perspective of art history, our objective is to trace how, beginning in late antiquity, images have functioned and how their role has been conceptualized, first in religious practice and philosophical theology, and more recently in literature, philosophy, aesthetic theory, and phenomenology. One course.

969. The Theological Interpretation of Scripture. The goals of this course are: to promote reflection about how theologians, pastors, and churches can read scripture theologically within the contemporary intellectual and cultural context; to read closely several recent influential works on this topic in order to gain a sense of the current theoretical discussion; to work toward a keener awareness of the divide between modern historical-critical analysis of the Bible and its use within Christian tradition and practice; to probe for ways to bridge this divide methodologically so that historical questions can be addressed with integrity within the church at the same time that theological readings continue to be creatively pursued. One course. C-L: Old Testament 962

990. Topics in Theology. Topics vary. May be repeated for credit. One course.

Christian Ethics (XTIANETH)

757. Christian Ethics. The course tackles theological and conceptual issues to do with the ways in which Christian moral discourse is generated in the life of the church, in order that students may gain a sense of basic methodological alternatives in Christian traditions. It introduces students to such matters as the church’s relationship to the world, casuistry of various kinds, character formation, a moral psychology necessary for the development of Christian virtue, the place and function of scripture, and how Christians understand social responsibility. One course.

760. Sexuality: Bible, Church, and Controversy. The course will explore theological approaches to homosexuality and faithful ways of dealing with controversy in the church, thus equipping students to address such questions pastorally and theologically with humility and confidence. One course.

761. Healing Arts: Illness, Suffering and the Witness of the Church. This course aims to nurture a conversation between theology and medicine, to think theologically about the practices of the church and the practices of medicine in response to these experiences, and to set medicine in the context of robust theological commitments. One course.

762. Sin in Contemporary North American Literature. Two working assumptions form this course. First, sin is a theological concept with which even beginning divinity students have ample experience. Second, narrative is helpful for engaging the original ways sin shapes individual human lives and particular communities. This course will consider sin, exploring error, evil, and suffering alongside truth, hope, and healing in six different stories. Authors have narrated sin as social and as personal in mainstream, North American storytelling—as a matter of lies writ large and as a result of individual choice. One course.

763. Medicine, Ethics, and Theology: An Introduction. This course examines the purposes and meaning of medicine in the context of particular religious traditions and practices, focusing particularly on Christianity, but also Judaism and Islam. Through examining the history, theology, and practices of these traditions, participants will grapple with the purpose of medicine and the relationship between theology, ethics, and medicine in our day. One course. C-L: Religion 759

790. Topics in Ethics. Topics vary. May be repeated for credit. One course.

800. War in the Christian Tradition. An analysis of how Christians have understood and evaluated war. Particular attention to the question of whether war should not be regarded as a positive moral good. Works by Augustine, Aquinas, Bainton, Ramsey, Childress, Niebuhr, and Johnsson will be considered. One course.

801. Christian Ethics and Scripture. Examination of major themes and moral teachings, principally in the Decalogue, the Gospels, and the Epistles, with application to some contemporary issues. Prerequisite: Christian Theology 755 and Christian Ethics 757. One course.

804. Theological Dimensions of American Law and Politics. A legal system inevitably overlaps with systems of belief and value, usually but not always termed religious, which claim to provide an ultimate valid construction of reality and a finally determinative set of values. Historically, most cultures have recognized this overlap by enlisting the law. It is arguable that the United States has attempted to do neither. This course will examine Western religious and theological reflections on the nature and legitimacy of law and politics and on the appropriate relationships between law and religion. One course.

805. Sex, Gender, and Discipleship. Prerequisite: Christian Ethics 757. One course.

806. Masculinity and Ministry. The assumption of the course is that questions of masculinity, power, and faith are present in the questions students ask about their calling as ordained or lay pastors. While anticipating that the course will be more highly subscribed by men, the course will also be helpful to women who will be working with men in contexts of lay and ordained ministry. One course.

807. Introduction to Medical Ethics. Critical examination of philosophical and theological bases of medical practice, and analysis of selected aspects of biomedical technologies, with particular attention to informing ethical assumptions. Prerequisite: Christian Theology 755 and Christian Ethics 757. One course.

808. The Christian Ethics of H. R. Niebuhr. An examination of the works of H. R. Niebuhr, with attention to his legacy within American moral theology. One course.

809. Discipleship and Disability. We will consider the possibility that Christian excellence is vitally displayed by L’Arche and through other Christian communities that receive graced vulnerability and that practice the gratuity of seemingly “non-productive” labor. The readings will draw from Jean Vanier and other systematic, theological treatments of disability and Christian faith. One course.

811. Happiness, the Life of Virtue, and Friendship. An investigation of the interrelation of these themes in selected authors. An examination of whether the loss of the interrelation of these themes accounts for some of the problems of modern philosophical and theological ethics. One course.
812. Debt, Usury, & Citizenship: A Comparative Political Theology. This course will examine the intersections and divergences of Judaism, Christianity and Islam in relation to debt and usury and put their comparative theologies on this issue in dialogue with contemporary economic thinking and policy on regulation. The overview of the differing treatments of debt and usury will serve as a prelude to consideration of the relationship between debt and citizenship and how in the contemporary context campaigns for responsible lending are a primary context for forms of interfaith activism to limit the power of money in determining our common life while at the same time giving rise to distinctly different ways of promoting alternative forms of credit provision. One course.

813. Listen, Organize, Act. The course integrates practical, political, and systematic theology with practices drawn from community organizing, community development, and repertoires of direct action in order to help participants work with congregations and communities to develop strategies for faithful and transformative change. The course also serves as an introduction to Christian approaches to social, political, and economic witness. Basic categories churches use to frame social and political engagement will be explored; for example, “neighbor love” and “prophecy”; as well as some concepts and dynamics that are present but not used, such as “power,” “self-interest,” and “politics.” One course.

814. Christianity and Capitalism: A Theological Exploration. This course aims to understand capitalism and its operations as a theological and spiritual phenomenon. It will do so by, in the first part of the course, examining the intersection of our talk of God and our talk of economics, identifying how each circulates in the other. Key terms and semantic fields through which conceptions of economic life and divine-human relations intersect will be analyzed through drawing on scriptural, doctrinal, historical, and social-scientific material. Then, key theological responses that emerged at a particular point of intersection between a form of capitalism and a particular instantiation of “world Christianity” within a specific context will be examined. One course.

890. Ethical Topics. A seminar on contemporary ethical issues, the specific content in any given semester to be designated by the Theological Division. May be repeated for credit. One course.

950. Philosophy and Theology after Wittgenstein. One course.

952. Eccentric Existence: David Kelsey’s Theological Anthropology. David Kelsey’s Eccentric Existence (WJK, 2009) is a rich theological text concerning theological anthropology that deserves and rewards a careful reading. This seminar will involve a close reading of the book. Among the topics to be discussed are Kelsey’s account of theology as second-order reflection on Christian practices, his account of the authority of Christian canonical Holy Scripture for theology, his readings of scripture, notably the creation theology of the Wisdom Literature and the Sermon on the Mount, and, of course, his account of being human in relation to the Triune God. Students will be expected to work on their own account of these matters in conversation with Kelsey. One course.

953. Love in Christian Tradition. One course.

954. Kierkegaardian Ethics. One course.

955. Kierkegaard’s Influence on Continental Philosophy and Theology. In this doctoral and upper-level divinity seminar, we will read through several key figures who took up and used Kierkegaard’s concepts in their own work. We will read mainly selections from Heidegger, Barth, Derrida, and Deleuze, with reference to the work of John Caputo and John Milbank. We will trace Kierkegaard’s influence through philosophy and theology, toward an understanding of the current use of Kierkegaard within deconstructive and radically orthodox theology. One course.

957. The Love Commandment and Christian Ethics. Prerequisite: Christian Theology 755 and Christian Ethics 757 plus one exegetical course. One course.

990. Topics in Christian Ethics. Topics vary. May be repeated for credit. One course.

Black Church Studies (BCS)

760. Theology in the Black Church Traditions. A course introducing black theology from its inception to the salient features of its most recent configurations by second-and third-generation exponents. Thus, the course considers “classical” expressions of black theology as well as certain innovations in black theology like womanism and African American pragmatic theology. One course.

761. The Black Church in America. A consideration of the historical and theological development of the separate black Christian denominations in America with attention to some of the major leaders, black worship, and black preaching. One course.

762. Christian Identity and the Formation of the Racial World. This course seeks to establish a theological paradigm that addresses issues of racial identity and racism. This will be done centrally by examining the formation of growth of the modern racial world. Central to this examination will be the formation of black Christian existence.

763. The Life and Thought of Martin Luther King, Jr. An examination of the life of Martin Luther King, Jr., his theology, and his continuing influence on the church’s ministry. One course.

764. Contemporary Black Culture and Consciousness. A theological investigation of prevailing cultural, political, social, and economic motifs in black cultural life and their relation to theology and the life of the church. Prerequisite: Black Church Studies 761, Christian Theology 755, or consent of instructor. One course.

766. Deep River: Howard Thurman, Spirituality, and the Prophetic Life. This seminar course will examine the writings, sermons, meditations, and prayers of Howard Thurman as means to exploring the nature and content of the spiritual life in his thought. In particular, this seminar will probe how the spiritual life, as presented in Thurman’s writings, funds the prophetic life to reveal the integration of the contemplative and active life. Salient themes to be explored include: the inner life, outer life, prayer, silence, community, struggle, suffering, love, and Jesus. One course.

767. Christianity, Race, and the American Nation. Religion is diffused throughout American life and culture; it is lived and practiced in complex and sometimes contradictory ways across the nation’s many miles and demographics. Race as a concept is a constantly shifting chimera which nevertheless bestows or denies historic, economic, and social benefits to those it defines. Christianity, Race, and the American Nation will explore the major themes of African American religious history as people of African descent battled slavery, survived Jim Crow segregation, pushed for equality in the Civil Rights Movement, and eventually came to see a man of African descent living in the White House. One course.

768. Religion, Race, & Relationship in Film. This course will explore themes of religion, race, gender, and relationship to the religious or racial “other” in films from the silent era to the present and serve as an introduction to the interpretation of film, and to critical race studies for emerging ministers, scholars, and consumers of popular culture. It will consider film as a medium and engage students in analysis and discussion of cinematic images, themes, and tropes, with the goal of developing hermeneutic lenses through which these can be interpreted. The films selected all deal with issues of race, religion, gender, and/or relationship, and ask the ultimate question, “How should we treat one another?” One course.

790. Selected Topics in Black Church History. Topics vary. May be repeated for credit. One course.

800. Black Women, Womanist Thought and the Church. One course.

801. Theology and the Black Activist Tradition. At the methodological center of the tradition of black radicalism is a certain understanding of the (black) intellectual and his or her task. This course examines this center from the vantage of religion and theology. It will do so by considering this tradition’s formation, on the one hand, and the meaning of the intellectual, who is a central figure in it, on the other. In this sense, the course seeks religiously and theologically to intervene into the question of the so-called crisis of the black intellectual with a view to showing it to be, in many respects, a “crisis of intellectuality” (academic, ministerial, and otherwise) as such. Central to our inquiry will be the religious meaning of the figure of W. E. B. Du Bois. One course.

802. Race, Modernity, and Theology. Investigates how modern ways of life and thought compete with Christian life and thought, paying close attention to the fundamental role of each in sustaining modernity. The course outlines a Christian theology of Israel as part of a response to the problem of race and modernity. Prerequisite: Christian Theology 755. One course.

803. Suffering, Evil and Redemption in Black Theology. Explores the black Christian tradition with respect to the problem of suffering and evil in black life. Against the backdrop of the problem of evil in church history, the course provides a historic overview of perspectives on suffering and redemption articulated by African-American Christians such as Maria Stewart and Martin Luther King, Jr. One course.

804. Black Intellectuals and Religion. This course explores the work that “religion” as a category does for black intellectuals; it considers why this category has assumed such importance for this group (and for others who often take cues from black intellectuals). The course also considers what it might mean to think beyond the category of religion as the inner architecture of black intellectual life. Engaging a range of theoretical stances and thinker, the course emphasized the significance of these matters for the formation of pastor-intellectuals. One course.

805. African Americans and the Bible. In this course, we will look at the ways African American scholars, clergy, laity, men, women, the free, and the enslaved, have read, interpreted, preached, and taught scripture. In examining these hermeneutics, we will also seek to sketch out a broader theology, history, and sociology of black people as they used the tool at hand, the Bible, to argue for their own humanity, create their own cultures, and establish their own societies. We will also undertake the interpretive enterprise, seeking to find common ground for understanding the meaning of the biblical text in our own, and others’ communities. One course.

806. The Most Segregated Hour: Churches, Race, Class, & Caste. The Christian church remains the most segregated institution in America. It has been nearly sixty years since the historic 1954 Supreme Court decision in Brown vs. the Board of Education that began public school integration. And it has been almost fifty years since Martin Luther King’s I Have a Dream speech in 1963. Yet, most Protestant congregations still reflect the racial makeup of their pre-Civil Rights era counterparts. This course explores why this is so and asks how we can move forward toward a religious life that better reflects the diversity of the nation. One course. C-L: Religion 768.

World Christianity (WXTIAN)

760. World Christianity in America. Once a missionary outpost, the United States transformed into a strong exporter of the Christian gospel. Yet the explosion of World Christianity has challenged American Christians to respond to immigration, diversity, and pluralism once more. This course examines the global parameters of the American gospel from its colonial beginnings, its formation of an American identity, and its contemporary struggle to engage its diverse expressions. One course.

761. Christianity in Asia. Prerequisite: Christian Theology 755 and Church History 751. One course.

762. The Ecumenical Movement. Its contemporary development, structures, activities, and problems, against the background of church unity and disunity. One course.

764. God’s Ministry of Reconciliation: Explorations in Missiology and Ecclesiology. At the heart of the gospel is the offer of the gift of reconciliation. Unfortunately, the biblical vision of the church as a reconciled community and ambassador of peace has not always been prominent in the church’s history, a history too often marred by sin, division, and hostility. In this course students will explore biblical, theological, and ecclesial resources leading to a renewed commitment to the church as both a sign and foretaste of God’s eschatological vision of the new humanity in Christ. One course.

765. World Christianity, Contemporary Politics, and Responses to Poverty. The course aims to identify and develop critical frameworks for assessing the theology and practice of church affiliated NGOs such as Christian charities, social welfare services (whether local, national, or global in reach) and Christian political initiatives and social movements within the context of a globalized and post-secular world. One course.

766. Being the Church. Using an Eastern Church perspective, this course will develop an ontology of ecclesial being, examine the four characteristics essential to the being and the growth of the church (oneness, goodness, beauty, integrity), and consider the ways in which growth into these four areas can and cannot be measured. One course.

790. Topics in World Christianity. Topics vary. May be repeated for credit. One course.

800. The Faces of Jesus in Africa. The course will seek to explore and highlight the assumptions underlying the various constructions of “the Faces of Jesus” within African theology. In particular, the social, historical and theological factors surrounding African Inculturation, Liberation and Feminist Christologies respectively will be examined. The goal of the course will be to lead students to a better appreciation of the complexity of African culture in general, of the challenges facing African Christians today in particular. Prerequisite: Christian Theology 755. One course.

802. Popular Revivals in 21st Century World Christianity. The course explores the rise of contemporary mass Christian movements around the world and their attempts to create new social, political, and economic realities. Using as a template missiologist Andrew Wall’s five marks of global mission—proclamation, instruction, service, transformation, and sustainability—the course investigate some of the “hot spots” of modern Christian revival in Latin America, Africa, Asia, as well as the United States, to see how churches are engaging their changing surroundings. One course.

803. Beyond Borders: Latin American, Latino, and Hispanic Theologies. This course will theorize Crossing Borders and the shared space of Latin American, Latino/a, and Hispanic religious voices. The course will have a historical component, beginning with a look at the encounter between European religious traditions and the indigenous religious map of the Americas. We will then study the emergence of Latin American liberation theology and trace the development of this theological flow through to the present day. The last part of the course will concentrate on Latino/a and Hispanic religious voices in the United States and interpret their specific discourse within the larger shared space mapped in the first part of the course. One course.
804. Healing in the Developing World and Care of the Underserved: Medical and Theological Considerations. The course pays particular attention to issues of religion, especially the ways in which an appreciation of religious and theological issues can be helpful in developing a noncolonial perspective when providing care in a developing country or with the underserved in the USA. The development of health ministries cross-culturally will be a theme throughout the course. One course.

805. The Catholic Church in Global Context. This course is designed as an introduction, broadly speaking, to Roman Catholicism and, more specifically, to the shape of this church and its traditions take in an increasingly globalized world. We are particularly interested in issues such as the relationship between local cultures and the Catholic faith, new understandings of mission, the relationship between the Catholic Church and peoples of other faiths, the Christian confrontation with global structures and systems that are judged unjust. One course.

806. Contextualization of the Gospel: An Orthodox Perspective. This course will develop Eastern Orthodox perspectives on the idea of the Gospel-as-Person, the possibilities of its contextualization within the tradition of the church, its relationship to the Holy Sacraments, and its use in the field of cyberspace. One course.

807. The Nation State and Theology in Africa. This course will focus on the problematic status of the nation state in Africa in relation to church, economic development, and violence. Prerequisite: Christian Theology 755. One course.

808. Postcolonial Identities and Theologies in Africa. This course will provide an overview of the current trends in African theological philosophical thought, especially those relating to or built around the notion of (post)-colonial identity. Prerequisite: Christian Theology 755. One course.

809. The Rwanda Genocide and the Challenge for the Church. The course explores the events and “reasons” surrounding the 1994 genocide in Rwanda, from both a historical and theological perspective. The current “explanations” for the genocide are critically analyzed and discussed with a view of raising wider issues relating to African history, memory, and violence on the one hand, the church’s social role in Africa on the other. Prerequisite: Christian Theology 755. One course.

810. The Changing Face of Christianity in Africa. This course seeks to provide a broad overview of Christianity in Africa so as to arrive at a deeper understanding of the “new home of the Christian faith.” Prerequisite: Christian Theology 755. One course.

811. Schools of Perfection: Explorations in Christian Vocation. The fundamental Christian vocation is the call to holiness. This call has been heeded in the most diverse social locations, even in contexts that are hostile to human well-being. Students in this course will consider how this most basic of baptismal vocations can be nurtured through the formations of schools of perfection: intentional communities dedicated to the pursuit of holiness. One course.

812. The Christian Movement in China. This course examines the history of Christianity in China from the beginning through the twentieth century. It explores both the missionary origins of the Chinese church and the subsequent historical developments that turned Christianity into a vibrant Chinese faith. The following questions are at the center of our historical inquiry: What role did Western missionaries play in the spread of Christianity in China? What helps explain the Chinese response to the Gospel? How did Christianity take root in Chinese soil and become indigenized? What distinct features and temperament has Chinese Christianity developed? What are the implications for the future of world Christianity? One course. C-L: Religion 780

813. Protestantism and the Making of Modern China. The evangelistic, educational, medical, and social work of Protestant missions and Christian churches since the nineteenth century has been central to the emergence of modern China. This course is a search for historical understanding of the varied and vital contributions of Protestantism to Chinese modernity. The stories explored in this course will shed light on the transformative power of (primarily American) Protestant work overseas and on the various ways in which fundamental changes in modern China—from education reform to the intro of Western medicine and journalism to women’s rights and the general search for civil society—were connected to the development of Protestant Christianity. One course. C-L: Religion 781

814. The Next Christendom: The Rise of Christianity Outside the West. In 1900, 80 percent of the world’s Christians were in Europe and North America. One hundred years later, 60 percent of them live in the global south and east. This course will not survey the institutional growth of Christianity throughout the non-Western world. It focuses instead on some of the central themes and patterns in the rise of global Christianity, including its tendency toward charismatic exuberance, its appeal as a modernizing force, and its capacity to inspire political reform and to mobilize the masses for social change. One course. C-L: Religion 782

815. Christianity’s Encounter with Other Religions and Cultures: The Case of East Asia. The modern encounter between Christianity and other religions and cultures occurred primarily in the context of a vigorous and sustained missionary movement launched in the West. The results of that encounter have been far more complex—more inspiring for some and less satisfying for others—than the simple reproduction of Christian bodies in the denominational image of Western churches. This course is a search for historical answers to those questions within the limits of modern East Asia but also with basic concerns that go beyond those boundaries, concerns that would be shared by those who contemplate the future of a globalized Christianity. One course. C-L: Religion 783

817. The Missions Theology of the Orthodox Church. This course will briefly review the ancient and contemporary insights of the Eastern Church in order to re-articulate a theological rationale and foundation for the ongoing mission of the church. One course.

IV. Ministerial Studies

Church Ministry (CHURMIN)

700. Spiritual Formation Groups. 1: fall; 2: spring. No credit.
701. Spiritual Formation Groups. 1: fall; 2: spring. No credit.
704. Anglican Spiritual Formation. A program offered through the Anglican Episcopal House of Studies. It represents a commitment (more than a course), for those working to bring together the different aspects of life under God in a context of mutual accountability; personal and professional, academic and practical, devotional and ecclesial. The aim is to help one another establish habits and develop character to underpin a lifetime of service (ordained or lay) within an Anglican/Episcopal setting. This is an ongoing core program for those pursuing the Certificate in Anglican Studies. Some meetings will be open to welcome those not formally registered in the program. No credit.
705. Advanced Spiritual Formation. Advanced spiritual formation groups. Optional opportunity for 2nd and 3rd year students to participate in spiritual formation groups. No credit.
760. Introduction to the Ministry of Preaching. This course is open to student pastors only and fulfills their required limited elective in Church Ministry. One course.
762. The Love of God and Neighbor. This course will survey a sample of primary sources, beginning with the biblical canon, within the Christian tradition demonstrating the relationship of personal and evangelical piety with activities of justice and service to neighbors. Students will reflect critically on historical and theological sources, integrating these reflections with their vocational journeys. One course.
763. The Holy Spirit and Ministry. Christian ministry is utterly dependent on the Holy Spirit. This course explores the work of the Spirit in the practice of ministry. One course.
800. Shaping Christian Institutions: Vocation, Community, and Innovation. This course will explore the broad landscape of Christian institutions and the geography of their mutual relationships. Drawing on multiple disciplinary lenses, it will explore: what institutions are; their importance for Christian life and the wider society; ways they shape our lives for both good and ill; conditions under which they are most likely to thrive and achieve their purposes; and how they can be created, sustained, and appropriately re-shaped through innovation (particularly in contexts of significant social and cultural change). One course.

Care of Parish (PARISH)

707. Wesleyan Foundations for Mission, Practice, Belief: MACP. A study of early Methodist life and witness, including the transition to North America, with particular attention to the theological convictions of John and Charles Wesley that undergirded the movement. MACP Program. One course.
708. United Methodist: Mission, Practice, and Belief: MACP. A study of developments in the United Methodist Church and its predecessor traditions, from the mid-nineteenth century to the present, highlighting the interconnection of belief, practice, and mission; with particular attention to present UMC polity as reflected in the Book of Discipline. MACP Course. One course.
709. The Missional Church and Evangelism: MACP. One course.
750A. The Anglican Tradition. One course.
750C. The Christian Church (Disciples of Christ). One course.
750N. Unitarian Studies. One course.
750P. The Presbyterian Churches. One course.
750U. The United Church of Christ. One course.

760. Food, Eating, and the Life of Faith. This course will be an examination of food systems and eating practices in the light of Christian teaching. Our aim will be to develop a theological framework and set of practices for faithful eating that honors God and contributes to a peaceable creation and a just society. One course.

761. Health and the Life of Faith: Worship, Leadership, and Mission. This course, taught in conjunction with the Clergy Health Initiative, explores the ways in which a distinctive Christian understanding of "health" is implied in our life of faith and the ways in which we live our central beliefs such as Creation, the Incarnation, the Resurrection, Sabbath, and the Eucharist. One course.

762. Christianity and Contemporary Literature. This course will interpret recent literature (both fictive and nonfictive) from a theological perspective, employing a variety of interpretive lenses. One course.

763. Toward a Theology of the Other: Interfaith Perspectives on God and Salvation. This course will explore relevant questions for faith-inspired people looking to maintain a commitment to their own faith perspectives while also engaging the religious diversity around them. What are the limits to dialogue? Does a commitment to dialogue necessarily entail a commitment to relativism? How should Christians interpret the great commission to go and convert the world? Questions such as these will be considered throughout the course and students should gain from a personal understanding of how and why they might approach interfaith dialogue and engagement in their own lives. One course.

764. The Poetic Imagination. This course will examine poetry written out of the Western Christian tradition. Although the readings will provide something of a historical overview, the emphasis will be on twentieth-century works. By concentrating on literary art of a non-narrative nature, we should be able to focus more keenly on the power of language and the relation between art and theology, truth, and beauty. How do the particular qualities of verse lend themselves to spiritual, theological, and philosophical exploration. Does telling the truth by telling it slant (to paraphrase Emily Dickinson) gain us different truths than those found through prose? One course.

765. Writing as a Christian Practice. This course will teach the skills of journalism writing for future ministers and theologians. The task of writing is central to these vocations: ministers need to write sermons, newsletters, pastoral admonitions, and even thank you cards. Theologians often feel called to write for an audience beyond their fellow trained academicians. We will foster the skills necessary to communicate to fellow ministers in Christian media or to an occasionally interested, occasionally hostile, outside world. One course.

766. The Practice of Writing and the Spiritual Life. The history of Christian spiritual practice is intimately bound up with the history of Christian writing. This course is about both understanding and practicing writing as a spiritual discipline. Prerequisite: Christian Theology 755 and Christian Ethics 757. One course.

767. Marriage in Literature. At the heart of the course is the assertion that, although America has privatized marriage, in a Christian grammar marriage is a very definitely a matter of corporate and communal concern. Topics include: the marriage plot, cultural constructions of "good marriages," and the relationship between marriage and domestic economy. One course.

768. Philanthropy and the Church. The course examines the relationship of philanthropy and the church with the intent of discovering how each can be critical of the other. It will introduce the history of philanthropy and look at contemporary philanthropic practices. Students will gain insight into the workings of philanthropy and look at how churches can create philanthropic partnerships. One course.

769. The Pastoral Responsibility for Leadership and Administration. The major responsibilities of the pastor in the leadership and effective administration of the local church are explored within the context of vision, missions, history, culture, team, and integrity. This course seeks to build a bridge between the seminary and the local church: rural, suburban, or urban and is intentional in focus on parish ministry. One course.

770. Forming Disciples in Wesleyan Tradition. This course explores the ministry of making disciples of Jesus Christ from the perspective of the Wesleyan tradition and its holistic spirituality, combining works of piety and works of mercy. By examining the way in which the early Methodists discovered, learned, and practiced the Christian faith and how the Methodists Societies functioned as disciple-making communities, students will learn and apply these principles of accountable discipleship to their own ministry and the church’s mission today. With an emphasis on both evangelism and faith formation, this course fulfills the Church’s Ministry Limited Elective, and may also fulfill the United Methodist requirement for evangelism. One course.

771. Leading the Small Membership, Rural Church. The small church, the circuit church, circuit administration, larger parish and group ministry, and the town and country movement. One course.

772. Stewardship and Church Finance. An introduction to basic biblical and theological principles of stewardship and church finance. The course seeks to enable pastors to discover practical methods for developing a church budget, leading a finance campaign, and challenging laity to respond to a congregational missional outreach. One course.

773. Denominational Studies. Register for course by designated suffix, B-U. One course.

774. Local Polity, Global Vision: The Episcopal Church and the Anglican Communion. The Anglican studies course addresses the structure and system of the Episcopal Church USA within the story and scope of the worldwide Anglican Communion. The course combines an analysis of American Polity with a comparative consideration of other member churches from the Global South, with the aim of deepening our understanding and practice of “communion.” The course is open to all, not just Anglicans and Episcopalians. One course.

775. The Canterbury Course. An international summer graduate course on Anglican identity and spirituality, foundational theological issues in Anglicanism, and the Communion’s ecumenical promise. Held at Canterbury Cathedral, the course features the life, history, and personalities of Canterbury and its centuries of spiritual hospitality. The course is open to Divinity School students, persons matriculated at other ATS accredited seminaries and holders of the MDiv. One course.

776. The Local Church in Ministry to God’s World. Prerequisite: Christian Theology 755. One course.

777. Wesleyan Foundations for Mission, Practice, and Belief. A study of early Methodist life and witness, including the transition to North America, with particular attention to the theological convictions of John and Charles Wesley that undergirded the movement. One course.

778. United Methodism: Mission, Practice, Belief. A study of developments in the United Methodist Church and its predecessor traditions, from the mid-nineteenth century to the present, highlighting the interconnection of belief, practice, and mission; with particular attention to present UMC polity as reflected in the Book of Discipline. One course.

779. Women and Evangelism. An exploration of women’s leadership and participation in evangelistic ministries focusing particularly on the previous three centuries. Based on this historical study, the course will also provide opportunity for critical reflection upon contemporary practices and theologies of evangelism. Prerequisite: Church History 751 and American Christianity 756. One course.

780. The Missional Church and Evangelism. The church as both missional and missionary in its essence is foundational to explicating evangelism, and this course explores both of these dimensions, with special emphasis on how local congregations are at the heart of this ecclesial identity. This course meets the UMC ordination requirement for either evangelism or missions. One course.

781. Leadership in the Ancient and Contemporary Church. “Leadership” is a topic much in discussion in today’s church. This course aims to explore this topic theologically, with vantages from the ancient and contemporary churches as well as secular sources. The goal is to help future ministers conceive of their vocations with all their various facets (preaching, presiding, pastoral care, administration, and scholarly research) as all aspects of leadership in the church. We will also ask critical questions to test the concept for its utility on theological grounds, especially feminist ones. Students should also emerge with theological skills that will allow them to critique the coldly corporate and consumerist literature that often sells under the banner “leadership.” One course.

782. Popular Religion in Parish Life. This course will consider how pastors and lay leaders in the church may fruitfully engage (rather than ignore, or sneeringly dismiss, or blithely endorse) popular books that form the faith of millions of American Christians. One course.

783. Theology of Pentecostalism. An exploration of this tradition with examination of its distinctive emphases and interpretations of Christian faith. One course.

784. 1979 Book of Common Prayer and the Principles of Anglican Worship. This course means to present and review the worship practices of the 1979 Book of Common Prayer in the context of established and developing principles of Anglican worship. The student will be asked to develop familiarity with the historical antecedents of present rites, their pastoral application, and their context within the family of worldwide Anglicanism. Care will be taken to balance historical survey with contemporary practice and the ministry of the local parish. One course.

785. Anglican Spiritual Thought. This course will offer students both a broad overview of Anglican spirituality, and an immersion in the works of several key figures, and in several key spiritual practices. The class will be especially interested in certain characteristics of Anglican spirituality, including the trope of participation in divine life and practical piety. Throughout the course, students will also consider how the tradition of Anglican spirituality can be made manifest in parish life. One course.

786. Organized Compassion: History and Ethics of Humanitarianism. This course will introduce students to this institutional organization of compassion, while at the same time exploring the “revolution of moral sentiments” that brought these institutions into being and continues to sustain them. On this latter note, the course will explore the theological terrain of humanitarianism. One course.
787. Power, Inequality, and Reconciliation. This course introduces students to the theology, psychology, and practices of reconciliation. By examining the nonconscious forces (both individual and social/structural) that perpetuate inequality between cultural groups, this course addresses the ways in which power discrepancies impede reconciliation. This course equips students to assess their own passive and active contributions to discord, evaluate the individual and social/structural factors that impede reconciliation in their own ministry context, and develop a theological and practical strategy to begin to dismantle these factors. One course.

788. Ethics and Native America: American Indian Literature and Liturgy. This course serves as an introduction to American Indian literature, with three aims: (1) to explore the history and legacy of the nineteenth and twentieth-century devastation of Indian cultures, especially in the Western United States, in the face of “manifest destiny”; (2) to frame this history and legacy in liturgical terms, that is, in the terms of the loss and/or survival of the “rituals of ultimate concern” or “thick practices” that are constitutive of cultural identity; and (3) to use this liturgical lens as a way of confronting the ethical stakes, both past and present, of the relationship between the United States of America and Native America. One course.

790. Topics in Care of the Parish. Topics vary. May be repeated for credit. One course.

800. The Life of Faith: Seminar on Religious Autobiography and Ministry. This seminar explores the themes of faith, community, and pastoral vocation by means of religious autobiographies and pastoral memoirs ranging from Augustine to Merton to the present. The autobiographical genre will be supplemented by works of fiction critically interpreted by reflection on theology and ministry. One course.

801. Evangelism and Leadership. The course identifies aspects of Wesleyan tradition to shape richly textured practices of evangelism and leadership for the contemporary church. Prerequisite: Parish 777 and Parish 778. One course.

802. Prophetic Ministry: Shaping Communities of Justice. This course focuses on the Biblical, theological, and sociological vision of the church’s prophetic ministry in calling forth and shaping communities that embody God’s compassion and justice. Students will explore the biblical foundations and theological understandings of justice and the reign of God and the implications for contemporary ecclesiological, sociological, economic, and political realities. One course.

803. What’s “Christian” about Christian Leadership. The primary goal of the course is to help students think in practical terms about how to be creative, innovative, and collaborative in the face of the challenges that will define their work in ministries of Christian communities. One course.

804. Leadership and Discipleship. One course. C-L: Christian Theology 813

805. Allegory and the Pastoral Life. This course will examine ancient Christian practices of discerning Christ in the Old Testament, modern rejection of such readings, and contemporary arguments that such readings should be reintroduced. Students will be asked to show how allegorical readings of scripture can be made to serve the needs of God’s people in the parish and beyond. The course is a sort of wager. Since the test of any biblical hermeneutic is the growth of faithfulness and love among God’s people, in addition to its faithful attention to the words and stories on the page, scholars’ arguments for the need for reacquaintance of the church with ancient ways of reading will be put to the test. One course.

806. Caring for Creation. This course will consider the various ways churches can address the leading environmental crisis of our time: global warming, species and biodiversity loss, food and water, habitat loss, pollution, etc. Various models of care (stewardship, priesthood, and virtue) and church practice (education, liturgy, and mission) will be considered and developed. One course.

807. The Theology and Spirituality of Place. This course will develop the significance of “place” for theological reflection and Christian living. It will show how spiritual life is deepened and made more practical when spatial, ecological, architectural, and aesthetic dimensions of everyday, embodied life together are given more attention. One course.

808. Agrarian Theology for an Urban World. An examination of the agrarian context in which scripture was written and the significance of agrarian traditions for today’s theological reflection and the church’s ministries. One course.

809. Restorative Justice, Prison Ministry, and the Church. The course describes and critiques realities and issues in the American criminal justice system and the underlying ideology of retribution in light of the theology of restorative justice and the church’s mission as an agent of reconciliation. Models of restorative justice, prison ministry, and the pastoral role in forming such ministries are considered. One course.

810. The Psalms: Praise and Protest, Prayer and Poetry. This course will look at how Hebrew poetry works, and thus how to appreciate the genre of the Psalms, explore how the recent scholarly tradition and the church has handled theological models students will learn how imagined theological ends shape ministry means and how varied contexts impact the self and group, this course explores theological and psychological pathways to conflict resolution. Drawing from the field of reconciliation studies, this course equips students to assess and develop a theological and practical model for conflict resolution. One course.

813. Introduction to Islam and Christian-Muslim Relations. This course offers students both an introduction to Islam and also the opportunity to reflect on the relationship between the core beliefs and practices of Islam and Christianity and on issues in the practice of Christian-Muslim relations. One course.

814. Modern Voices from the Anglican Tradition. This course offers an introduction to a selection of significant Anglican writers from the first half of the twentieth century through to the present. Although most of the writers are from the Church of England, Anglicans from elsewhere in the Communion will also be included. A range of types of writing and of theological traditions will be included. One course.

815. Women in Ministry. In this course, we will pursue a theologically informed and theoretically imaginative investigation of the challenges and opportunities that women in ministry encounter. The course centrally investigates women working in ordained ministry in a congregational setting, but readings and discussion will be capacious enough to include inter alia, chaplaincy, lay ministry, and so forth. One course.

816. The Qur'an: An Introduction in the Context of Christian-Muslim Encounter. This course offers an introduction to the scripture at the heart of Islam. As well as considering the Qur'an in its original context, the course will also pay attention to Islamic approaches to Qur'anic interpretation, classical and contemporary, and the Qur'an in the encounter between Muslims and Christians. One course.

817. Theology and Social Science. Drawing on both the history and the contemporary state of the social or human sciences, this course puts theology in conversation with these disciplines (e.g., sociology, cultural anthropology, psychology, political science, and public policy) by considering both the sources of methodological conflicts and possibilities for methodological collaboration. One course.

818. Ministry with Millennials. The “Millenials” (those born after 1980 or so) are often described in faith communities as the “missing demographic.” This is likely true if we are looking for them in the pews at 11:00 a.m. on Sunday morning. They are not, however, missing from places of substance and engagement, often the very places where communities of faith take a stand for truth and justice. It is incumbent on faith communities both to reach into the places where millennials are “living, moving, and having being,” and to reclaim our rich heritage of standing with the lost and forgotten of this world. One course.

819. Disunity in Christ: Difference, Conflict, and Resolution in the Church. From aesthetic conflict over the color of the sanctuary carpet to deeper theological conflicts, this course introduces students to the theology, psychology, and practices of conflict resolution in church-based settings. By examining the ways in which individual and cultural differences impact both the self and group, this course explores theological and psychological pathways to conflict resolution. Drawing from the field of reconciliation studies, this course equips students to assess the impact of difference on interpersonal and intergroup conflict, understand the theories and practices of conflict resolution, and develop a theological and practical model for conflict resolution. One course.

Christian Education (XTIANEDU)

705. Mission: The Mission of the Congregation. This course will make two major moves. First, it will (re-) introduce students to the phenomenon of adolescence. It will utilize sociology and ethnography as a means to teach students to read the contexts and situations in which youth are embedded at present, and, equally important, to learn to interpret these situations in theological terms. Second, it will introduce students to at least three different theories of youth ministry: practice-based; contemplative; and justice seeking. Through comparison and contrast of these theoretical models students will learn how imagined theological ends shape ministry means and how varied contexts influence ministry approaches. One course.

706. The Youth Minister as Leader. This course will introduce students to fundamentals of Christian leadership, with a specific focus on those unique components related to providing leadership in ministries for and with the next generation. Drawing on family-systems theory, this course will invite students into a distinctively systems-based approach to ministry, an approach that can free youth workers, youth ministries, and churches from the limiting constraints that come with using a staff-based or program-based approach. One course.

707. Youth Minister as Evangelist. All Christians are commissioned in baptism to proclaim the gospel in our words and lives. This course will center on Christian outreach, both by youth ministers themselves and by the youth and adult volunteers with whom they work to claim our baptismal commissions and facilitate an understanding and practice of missional evangelism. Students will develop a broad and thoughtful understanding of Christian mission generally and of evangelism specifically, grounded both in scripture and in church tradition and practiced by individuals and congregations. One course.

710. The Art of Biblical Interpretation. This course is a basic introduction to methods of Biblical interpretation, with attention to the prior assumptions and purposes of different interpretive methods. One course. C-L: New Testament 705

712. The Youth Minister as Pastor. This course will provide students with core instruction in pastoral care, focusing on the particular needs of adolescents. It will include study of human development and psychology, with particular attention to the period from late childhood to early adulthood. It will encourage students to formulate a careful understanding of their role as advisors or counselors of youth, including the limitations of that role. It will also consider the theology and practice of pastoral ministry, the development of pastoral identity, and the role of youth minister as spiritual guide and example. One course.

713. Formation: Christian Formation in the Congregation. This course explores various models, methods, theories and practices of communicating the Gospel to youth that aim to form, renew, and transform them and to promote their flourishing in light of the Gospel. Its twin foci will be teaching and proclamation, but it will also consider other communications media. Together we will investigate: definitions of and purposes for teaching, proclamation, education, and faith formation, obstacles to effective Gospel communication, a variety of approaches to Christian faith formation along with the contextual, theological, and educational assumptions that guide them, questions of epistemology, and more. One course.

760. Introduction to the Education of Christians. This course, designed as a foundational one for future educators and pastors, considers the theological implications of such traditional educational concepts as curriculum, pedagogy, epistemology, teaching, and learning. In addition, it explores the overlapping relationship between Christian education and the formation of personal and corporate Christian character. Various approaches to Christian education are explored, from models oriented to liberatory justice to others informed by more classical practices of the imitation of Christ. The importance of and means to exemplary teaching in faith communities are also stressed. One course.

761. Adolescent Selves, Adolescent Contexts, and the Formation of Christian Adolescent Identity. This course will examine various myths and realities of the cultural isolation of teenaged Christians. Weekly class sessions, interviews with adolescents, plus a project will encourage participants to find ways to integrate adolescents into relationships and patterns within their worshipping communities. Also, we will focus on developing ways to guide adolescents in making meaning and to engage them in distinctively Christian ways of living. One course.

763. Curriculum and Pedagogy in the Church. This course will center on these two questions: first, who decides what theory of Christian religious education is used in the church? Central to this question is the theory of curriculum that dictates what and why Christian religious education is going on in the church. The second question concerns which teaching paradigm is going to be used in the church. This question focuses on pedagogical theory, otherwise known as the how, when, and where of Christian religious education. Not only will students discover whose curriculum goals and which pedagogical approach should be used in the church, the course will also broaden the students’ concept of teaching and learning in the context of local congregations and parishes. One course.

765. Education and Social Issues. This course will attend to such themes as the relationship between tradition and prophetic imagination, church life as ecological in the broadest sense, and theologies of creation, incarnation, redemption, Spirit sustenance, and eschatology. Several outdoor-oriented field trips are planned in order for students to encounter first hand a variety of ecological issues and pedagogies. One course.

766. Liturgy and Christian Formation. Theological tradition suggests that human life is expressed and claimed most fully in and through the praise and worship of God. Such a claim, often overlooked by educators and pastors, suggest that Christian liturgy is a critical context for considering issues of education and formation in communities of faith. This course explores how the patterned “holy things” of worship (book, bath, table, and calendar) may enact persons into storied identity. It considers how worship offers a curriculum and embodied pedagogy for Christian life. It also examines why the aesthetic “language” of liturgy—symbol, metaphor, ritual action, and music—remains an especially effective medium for connecting human beings with graceful mystery and or accomplishing transformation in human lives. One course.

767. Person in Communities. Who or what is the human self? Who or what constitutes a community? What is the interrelationship between these domains? Constructive reflection on such questions is critical for educators and pastors seeking to form faithful persons in faith communities. This theoretical course invites into conversation diverse literatures from theology anthropology and neuroscience to better understand the intra-personal and interpersonal dynamics of Christian formation. We will focus especially on how persons are created to acquire and embody Christian conviction and why attention to the character of Christian communities is essential to such embodiment.
One course.

768. Education and the Worshiping Arts. An exploration of the intuitive way of knowing and the place of the imagination in Christian faith and life with special attention to the use of the arts in the church, especially in Christian education, and in worship. One course. C-L: Liturgical Studies 762

769. Discipleship and Adult Catechesis. Catechesis, in this course, is defined as the whole of the efforts within the church to make disciples. The purpose of catechesis is to help the church learn to live by the story that has been called into existence. Discipleship, then, is at the core of Christian catechesis: to learn, to know, to be trained and instructed in the Christian faith is to be morally transformed into holy disciples of Jesus. With this understanding in mind, this course will examine (and challenge) the various ways catechesis is constituted and carried out in the life of the church.
Foundational to our purpose will be the attempt to articulate concrete and material ways in which the church might best educate, catechize, form, and nurture women and men through the life journey, the pilgrimage of faith from baptism to death. One course.

770. The Significance of Catechumenate for Making Disciples. Students will be invited to attend to the ways cognition, affect, and even self-consciousness arise from bodily processes. In addition, they will explore how these processes shape human capacities for participation in sacred mystery, and by extension, human moral engagement with the world. Prerequisite: Church History 750 and Christian Theology 755. One course.

800. Bible Study Programs for the Local Church. This course designed as a practicum in Bible study programs for the local church. Its purpose is to equip students to put their seminary biblical education to use in service to churches, through adult Bible studies. There are two foci to the course: the development of evaluative tools for assessing the theological, methodological, and pedagogical presuppositions of Bible study curricula, and practice in developing and implementing Bible studies appropriate to diverse and specific settings. One course. C-L: New Testament 800

801. Explorations in Pauline Anthropology. This course explores the relationship between anthropology and theology in Paul’s letters, through investigating constructions of Pauline anthropology from that of Bultmann to the work of contemporary scholars. The goal of the course is to provide an opportunity to reflect on questions of identity formation, person in community, and the interrelationship between divine and human action in sustained conversation with Paul, his interpreters, and each other. Prerequisite: New Testament 754. One course. C-L: New Testament 806

803. Imitation and Transformation in the Letters of Paul. This course will investigate Paul’s imitation language in relationship to the formation of Christian character. The course will include exegesis of specific texts and critical evaluation of contemporary interpretations. We will attend to both ancient and modern notions of imitation. Prereq-809

890. Topics in Christian Education. Topics vary. May be repeated for credit. One course.

V. Clinical Internships and Training

Clinical Pastoral Education (CPE)

75. Parish-Based CPE - Duke Hospital. Parish-Based CPE - Duke Hospital. Variable credit.

100U. Level One CPE - University of North Carolina Hospitals. Level One CPE - University of North Carolina Hospitals. Two courses.
100V. Level One CPE-Veterans Administration Medical Center. Level One CPE-Veterans Administration Medical Center. Two courses.
100W. Level One CPE- Wake Medical Center. Level One CPE- Wake Medical Center. Two courses.
100Y. Level One CPE- Rex Hospital. Yearlong unit. Register for 100Y in the fall semester and 100Z in the spring semester. One course.
100Z. Level One CPE- Rex Hospital. Yearlong unit. Register for 100Y in the fall semester and 100Z in the spring semester. One course.
150. Level One Clinical Pastoral Education, Transferred. An enrollment category for students who have completed a basic unit of Clinical Pastoral Education and who are transferring the credit toward a degree at Duke Divinity School. Two course credit maximum. Two courses.
200. Level Two Clinical Pastoral Education in Pastoral Care and Counseling. Pastoral care with inpatients and pastoral counseling of individuals, couples, families, and groups in a pastoral counseling center. (Two course units each.) ThM students may pursue advanced standing in the hospital-based CPE program through the established policy and procedures for that status. The conditions for level two CPE resemble those of the level one—30 hours per week; limit six; pass/fail option. Prerequisite: interview. Variable credit.
250. Level Two Clinical Pastoral Education, Transferred. An enrollment category for students who have completed Level Two Clinical Pastoral Education and who are transferring the credit towards a degree at Duke Divinity School. Three course credits maximum. Variable credit.

Pastoral Care (PASTCARE)
760. Introduction to Pastoral Theology and Care. This course involves theological, psychological, and sociological reflections on typical and actual cases in pastoral ministry. Readings, lectures, and discussions will focus on the congregation’s role in pastoral care, the art of theological interpretation in pastoral situations, and self-care in the context of ministry’s demands. Various topics include: bereavement and loss, suffering addiction, sexual abuse, domestic violence, and care of families. One course.
761. Introduction to the Ministry of Social Work. We will examine the ways ministers and Christian social workers have understood historically and conceptually the practices of social work and their identities as social workers. We will map out the conceptual issues that shape contemporary (Western) therapeutic culture as they interact with the practices of social work. We will also suggest ways that a Christian spiritually might inform both the practices and the identity of a social worker. This course is intended for students interested in the intersection of ministerial practices and the practices of social work. Students enrolled or considering enrolling in the MSW/MDiv programs should take this course. Prerequisite: Christian Theology 755, Pastoral Care 760 is recommended. One course.
762. Introduction to Issues in Cross-Cultural Pastoral Care and Counseling. This class provides an opportunity to critically examine psycho-theological theoretical frameworks for viewing marginalized racial, ethnic, and cultural groups in society, to examine personal values as they relate to the above groups, to develop skills in working effectively with these groups, and to understand social policies as they relate to them. One course.
763. Alcoholism: A Disease of the Body, Mind, and Spirit. Exploration of the church’s ministry with alcoholics and their families. Special emphasis on the disease concept, Alcoholics Anonymous, impact upon families, the role of intervention and referral, and strategies for church involvement and action. Attention to women’s issues and minority perspectives. One course.
764. Theology and Health in a Therapeutic Culture. This seminar will examine our therapeutic culture and its implications for the church and how we care for one another. We will look at how healthcare and the church have become captive to broader movements within the culture and have ultimately contributed to the rise of our current context. The particular role of psychology’s development within American culture and its influences within the formation of American Protestantism will be considered. We will also consider the substantial contribution of some understandings of human development, while examining the problematic assumptions frequently left undiscerned within contemporary pastoral theology and pastoral care. One course.

790. Topics in Pastoral Care. Topics vary. May be repeated for credit. One course.

800. The Church’s Ministry with the Elderly. This course provides perspectives from cultural history, theology, and pastoral care on the church’s ministry with the elderly. In recent years, as the “graying of America” has become evident in congregations, many church programs have been initiated in attempts to address specific interests and needs of the aging membership (e.g., entertainment activities and health checks). However, the spiritual concerns of the elderly may not be fully appreciated and addressed. Further, it is often not recognized that ministry with the elderly begins with persons who have not yet acquired the identification as “old.” In this course, aging as a spiritual journey is explored in the context of the communal expression and witness of the Christian faith. One course.

801. Children and the Experience of Death: Theological Explorations. Explores through a Christian lens the multifaceted issues surrounding death and dying as well as bereavement in children and adolescents. One course.

802. Pastoral Care in the Hospital and Hospice. This course is designed to offer students an opportunity to integrate their developing theological understanding with the exercise of ministry to persons hospitalized because of health crises, and individuals facing terminal illness and imminent death. Through classroom lectures and practical experiences of ministry in hospital and hospice settings, the student will be challenged and supported in this integrative process by the conjoint leadership of a professor of medicine and a professor of pastoral care. One course.

803. Pastoral Care of Persons with Mental Health Problems. This course is intended to help future pastors both to acquire the knowledge necessary to recognize and interpret common and major mental health problems and to develop theological skills necessary for appreciative, critical engagement with contemporary mental health practice. One course.

804. Theology and Trauma. Trauma and its aftermath is an all-too-present reality in our culture and within Christian congregations. “Trauma” and its clinical correlate, post-traumatic stress disorder, have also become increasingly common modes of description within pastoral theology, cultural studies, and mental health practice. In this course we will focus on how congregations (and pastors in particular) can helpfully and faithfully care for survivors of trauma, not only through close attention to the lived reality of traumatic disruption but also through critical consideration of the way that “trauma” functions as an interpretive category which can both aid and hinder theological narration. One course.

805. Suffering and Dying in Cross-cultural Contexts. One course.

806. Naming the Powers: Pastoral Care and the Spiritual World. This course will move from an examination of the treatment of the spiritual world in modern and post-modern thought to a theological paradigm for pastoral care that takes seriously cultural and theological contexts where the spiritual world characterizes common life. One course.

807. Marriage and Family. The psychodynamics of marital conflict and family problems; principles and procedures in marriage and family counseling. (For seniors and Master of Theology candidates.) Prerequisite: Pastoral Care 760. One course.

808. Theology and Health in Therapeutic Culture. Prerequisite: Christian Theology 755 and Pastoral Care 760. One course.

810. Theology, Mental Health and Human Flourishing. By the end of the semester, students will be able: a) to articulate and to locate themselves within a distinctively Christian contextual account of health and human flourishing; and b) to engage practical, pastoral issues of mental health and mental illness within this contextual account. One course.

890. Seminar in Pastoral Theology. Prerequisite: Pastoral Care 760 and Christian Theology 755. Topics vary. One course.

Preaching (PREACHNG)

758. Introduction to Christian Preaching. The development of a theology of preaching and methods of sermon construction, including preaching in class, critique, private conference, and local church evaluation. Prerequisite: New Testament 754 or Old Testament 752 or consent of instructor. One course.

760. Preaching and the Church Year. Preaching the lectionary texts in the context of the church’s worship and calendar. The appropriate cycle of the lectionary will be followed. In-class preaching and evaluation. Prerequisite:
Preaching 758. One course.

763. Introduction to Public Preaching. A workshop on preaching and worship leadership organized around the principles of speech and effective communications. Extensive use of audio-visual recordings and private conferences. Prerequisite: Preaching 758. One course.

764. Contemporary Pneumatologies and Preaching. This course examines the relationship between the doctrine of the Holy Spirit and preaching. We will explore this doctrine in relation to modern trends in theology with special emphasis on those cases where there is an accompanying social movement. We will then analyze the ways in which pneumatology might influence preaching. One course.

765. From Text to Sermon. Preaching from biblical sources. Emphases on the goal and methodology of exegesis, the hermeneutic problem, and verbal communication in the present. Prerequisite: Preaching 758. One course. C-L: Old Testament 767

767. Preaching in the Black Community. A study of the style and content of black preaching with attention to the particular roles of black preachers in society. An analysis of the essentially theological character of preaching in the black church. Prerequisite: Preaching 758. One course.

768. Preaching in the Wesleyan Theological Tradition. A study of selected major themes in Wesleyan theology and their interpretation in contemporary preaching. Prerequisite: Preaching 758. One course.

769. Twentieth-Century Preaching: Theory and Practice from Fosdick to Feminists. This seminar examines important homiletical developments in the twentieth century, with particular attention to North American homiletics in the latter third of the century. Through critical engagement with a variety of homiletical theories and sermons, students will clarify and develop their theology and practice of preaching. Participants will read and discuss several homiletic texts, analyze written and recorded sermons, and preach two sermons in class. One course.

770. Theology in Preaching. Prerequisite: Preaching 758. One course.

771. Preaching in the Parish. A consideration of preaching in relationship to pastoral duties and the total task of ministry with attention to week-by-week preaching in the parish setting. Some attention will be given to funerals and crisis situations. Prerequisite: Preaching 758. One course.

772. Theologies of Preaching. One course.

774. Women Preaching. The course will explore the historical contributions and contemporary challenges of preaching women. The course will also encourage the students to see themselves as participants in a long tradition and empower them to develop their pulpit voices. Finally, indirectly, the course will provide an opportunity for participants to explore preaching within the context of women's incarceration. One course.

790. Topics in Preaching. Topics vary. May be repeated for credit. One course.

801. Preaching at the End of the World: Proclaiming Paul's Apocalyptic Gospel. At a time when narrative is often the genre of choice for preaching, this course seeks to reclaim the Pauline epistles for proclamation and to address the difficulties students often experience when trying to preach from the epistles. Through this course we hope preaching from the Pauline epistles will become exciting, rather than burdensome. One course.

802. Principalities, Powers, and Preaching. This course will examine Biblical texts, liturgical materials, theological literature, films, and the newspaper as resources for exploring the nature of what the New Testament calls the “Principalities and Powers,” as well as their significance for preaching. One course.

803. Proclamation for a Virtual Reality. This seminar-type course considers the task of oral public interpretation of scripture in light of the ways in which social media has reshaped the idea of community formation. Participants will be expected to convey a theological understanding of how ideas flow in order to convey a playfully orthodox ecclesiology within contemporary contexts of personal, social, and cultural change. Emphasis is placed on the lifelong task of acquiring practical habits appropriate for cultivating judgment required for faithful communication of the gospel in a digital world. One course.

804. History of Preaching. A study of theological trends and significant personalities in homiletics in various periods from the Apostolic Age to the present. Prerequisite: Preaching 758. One course.

805. Twentieth-Century Theology and Preaching. A study of important theological models, from liberalism to liberationism, and their effect on contemporary preaching. Seminar presentations and in-class preaching. Prerequisite: Preaching 758, Christian Theology 755. One course.

806. Preaching with Barth. In this course students will have the opportunity to reflect upon the task of Christian proclamation using Karl Barth as theological guide and interlocutor. After a review of the major contours of Barth’s theological discoveries, we shall examine examples of Barth’s preaching from his earliest sermons as a young pastor to his last sermons in the Basel prison. Students will then design, preach, and evaluate sermons that exemplify the results of their conversation with Barth on preaching. They will also have an opportunity to put Barth in conversation with one contemporary homiletician in order to show his significance for contemporary preachers. One course.

806. Preaching on the Sacraments: Patristic Imitation. This course explores patristic examples of using typology and allegory, especially in the 4th century form of preaching known as mystagogy, to name what is experienced in Christian worship. The course will emphasize appropriation of this patristic technique for the creation of sermons, prayers, song texts, and catechesis for the church today. One course. C-L: Liturgical Studies 806

807. Balm in Gilead: The Spirituals as a Homiletical Resource. This course will explore the African American spirituals as a theological resource for the theory and practice of preaching. Special attention will be given to such issues as the importance of memory, the experience of death, perspectives on hope, the relationship between singing and preaching, a theology of preaching biblical interpretation for preaching, and sermon form and language. One course.

808. Preaching the Resurrection. The resurrection of Jesus Christ is central to the confession that Jesus is Lord, the eternal Son of the Father. On this confession Christian faith hinges; from it Christian preaching proceeds; without it preaching is in vain. The purpose of this course is to examine this centerpiece of the gospel for the purpose of proclaiming it as an effective manner, and to explore the relevance of the resurrection for preaching in its broadest dimensions. One course.

809. Selected Topics. Topics vary. May be repeated for credit. One course.

Liturgical Studies (LTS)

2. Music Skills for the Parish. A noncredit course designed to develop fundamental skills for reading musical notation and rhythmic patterns, using examples from the United Methodist Hymnal. Sightsinging and single-note keyboard playing not a prerequisite but will be encouraged throughout the course. Not intended for persons with prior knowledge of music skills. No credit.

709. Introduction to Christian Worship. An introductory to the theology and practice of Christian worship from an ecumenical perspective with an eye to specific ministerial concerns of students. The topics will survey major aspects of worship including: the Lord’s Day, the Christian calendar, Word and sacraments, daily and occasional services, liturgical music, and liturgical space and arts. The course emphasizes appropriating the wisdom of 2000 years of worship history for the enrichment of the church’s worship today. One course.

710. Introduction to Christian Worship. An introduction to the history, theology, and practice of Christian worship from an ecumenical perspective. Surveys major aspects of worship, including: the Lord’s Day, the Christian calendar, Word and sacraments, daily and occasional services, liturgical music, and liturgical space and arts. Lecture, small group discussions, and practicum. Prerequisite: Church History 750 or 751. One course.

711. The Church Year. An examination of the historical, theological, and pastoral dimensions of the Christian calendar and lectionary. Prerequisite: Liturgical Studies 760. One course.

712. Education and the Worshiping Arts. An exploration of the intuitive way of knowing and the place of the imagination in Christian faith and life with special attention to the use of the arts in the church, especially in Christian education, and in worship. One course. C-L: Christian Education 768

772. The Art and Craft of Public Proclamation. A workshop style course exploring and expanding one’s own best authentic proclamation through voice, expression, and body. Collaborative creation and performance of the current lectionary scripture as story, choric readings, and drama in worship. One course. C-L: Preaching 773

790. Topics in Liturgical Studies. Topics vary. May be repeated for credit. One course.

800. Songwriting and Theology. This course is an exploration of using theological training to develop songs for worship. This seminar-type course will explore various collections of classic, historical worship materials, including Wesleyan hymnody, to uncover profound theological themes and motifs and their expression in lyrical form. Students will be expected to show theological enrichment by composing lyrics for new worship songs to be shared with the class. Students will only be required to write lyrics, not compose music. One course.

801. Worship History for Worship Renewal. Using in-depth case studies of selected historical churches, this course explores different practices in and understandings of Christian worship over the past two millennia. The course is designed to come to grips with basic issues in worship as represented by different traditions and with options for approaching worship renewal today, with an eye to using Trinitarian theology as the evaluative key. How might we borrow with integrity from our Christian past to renew worship today? Doctoral students taking the course will focus, in addition, on developing facility with researching historic, liturgical primary material. One course. C-L: Church History 821

802. Worship in African American Church Traditions. Clear styles of worship can be recognized among African American Christians. Despite the tremendous amount of interpenetration that has taken place between cultures, distinguishable features remain. This course has as its purpose exploring the morphology and distinctives of worship among African American Christians to probe critically theological interests, cultural sources, and existential factors taken up in liturgical production. The aim of the course is to “expose” this rich tradition, and to equip those who will plan and lead Christian worship among African Americans with discipline, critical facility, and theological integrity. One course.

803. Advanced Seminar in Liturgical Studies. Reading and research in a selected area of liturgical study to be announced. One course.

804. The Role and Function of Music in Corporate Worship. The course will present and review the evolution of the use of music in the Liturgy (plainsong, early use of polyphony, Anglican chant, the accompaniment of singing voices, the development of Christian hymns, anthem singing, and the contemporary chorus), the role of the Psalms in Christian worship, the challenge of planning for the use of music in congregational worship (including discussion of the clergy/musician relationship, workshops for the practice of chanting, and a presentation of resources “tradition specific” available to assist in the planning of music for worship. The student will be asked to develop familiarity with the history of church music and the theological and pastoral issues at stake in planning music for worship in the local congregation. One course.

805. Worship in the Wesleyan Tradition. A study of the historical, theological, liturgical, and sociological influences which have shaped the worship patterns of the Episcopal Church and the major American denominations that claim a Wesleyan heritage. Historical and contemporary liturgies will be examined, and concerns related to the leadership of contemporary liturgies will be discussed. Prerequisite: Care of the Parish 777 and 778, Liturgical Studies 760. One course. C-L: American Christianity 804

806. Preaching on the Sacraments: Patristic Imitation. This course explores patristic examples of using typology and allegory, especially in the 4th century form of preaching known as mystagogy, to name what is experienced in Christian worship. The course will emphasize appropriation of this patristic technique for the creation of sermons, prayers, song texts, and catechesis for the church today. One course. C-L: Preaching 806

807. Theological Assessment of Worship Song Lyrics. One of the most fundamental, recurring tasks of pastoral activity is the vetting of congregational worship songs, including considering their theological content. To better equip future ministers for this task, this course seeks to increase the capacity of students to assess theologically various lyrical expressions of the Christian faith, ancient and modern. By weekly review of small bodies of worship songs, assessed by both the student’s theology as well as the assumed perspective of a historical theologian, students will gain facility to address the potential and limitations of poetic articulations of theology. One course. C-L: Church History 823

890. Selected Topics. May be repeated for credit. One course.

950. The History of Contemporary Worship. This course will research the origins and development of the various strands of alternative worship, known collectively as “contemporary worship,” in English-speaking Protestantism. The focus of investigation will be on the latter half of the 20th century and the beginning of the 21st. Master level students are permitted by permission of the professor. One course.

Spirituality (SPIRIT)

790. Topics in Spirituality. Topics vary. May be repeated for credit. One course.

800. The Spirituality of the Eastern Church. Throughout its long history the Eastern Church has developed highly liturgical forms with which to express its corporate life. At the same time, developing almost concurrently, there have been strong movements of individual piety. This course will explore the relationship between these two streams of growth by examining the life and works of the church’s spiritual masters. One course.

801. Spiritual Direction Practicum. A noncredit in which students are familiarized with the skills and challenges involved in both receiving and giving spiritual direction. Participants must be willing to present an aspect of their present life experience as it relates to their ongoing relationship with God. No credit.

802. Spiritual Writing Workshop. In this class, we will work toward mastering technique, from dialogue to pacing, always keeping an eye on the larger questions of the genre—what is spiritual writing, what are its ethics and mores, what literary forms are best suited to telling spiritual tales, how does doing spiritual writing do work on our spiritual lives? Workshop each other’s pieces is the center of this class, so the central texts will be one another’s writing. Working on the theory that one learns to write by reading, we will also study carefully examples of excellent spiritual writing. One course.

Master of Arts in Christian Studies (XTIANSTU)

705. Inhabiting the Christian Drama. This two-semester course lays the foundation for a rigorous Christian engagement with the world. It prepares students to understand the diverse dimensions of the Christian story/drama, assess their theological significance, and gives them the exegetical and analytic tools necessary to think and live more deeply as Christians. One course.

706. Inhabiting the Christian Drama. This two-semester course lays the foundation for a rigorous Christian engagement with the world. It prepares students to understand the diverse dimensions of the Christian story/drama, assess their theological significance, and gives them the exegetical and analytic tools necessary to think and live more deeply as Christians. One course.

725. The Immorality of God. This course is an entry-level course designed primarily with the new Master of Arts in Christian Studies program in mind. It does not presume prior knowledge but simply aims to bring students into a closer engagement with God in the Bible. The issue of God’s identity and character is a timely one, since it has been at the forefront of recent critiques of religion made by the “New Atheists.” The portrayal of God in the Old Testament continues to be particularly problematic for many in the church as well as in wider society. This course will connect with these contemporary concerns through exegetical investigation and seek to offer constructive suggestions for coming to grips with the biblical God. One course.

Doctor of Ministry (DMNISTRY)

900. Spiritual Formation. Required spiritual formation component for DMin students. One course.

901. Introduction to Christian Leadership. This foundational course will explore leadership as a Christian practice, focusing on how individuals are formed to lead and how they might offer leadership in a theologically astute and sophisticated way. Students will be asked to reflect on the responsibilities of leaders in both sound management and in missional service. At the same time, they will be equipped to critique approaches to leadership that are consonant with authentic Christian practice. One course.

902. Analysis: Understanding and Interpreting Context. In this course we will look at how congregations are coping with challenges by examining them from both a sociological viewpoint and from an intensive study of the congregations within which the students operate and by examining their local context. One course.

903. Strategy: Forming and Implementing Vision. The ability to think strategically is an essential leadership skill. Getting from “A” to “S” requires a vision of “S” and a plan to move toward it. This class will examine how leaders conceptualize change and then work to implement it. This involves both imagining desirable goals and managing concrete realities, both creating dreams and constructing budgets. This course will include consideration of a range of topics, such as the following: traditioned innovation, social entrepreneurship, institutional renewal, leading for change, complex planning strategies, institutional vision, and sustainability planning. One course.

904. Communication: Inspiring and Guiding Change. In this course we will look at what is required to see well and to speak well and to create well as a Christian leader. One of the key roles of a leader of any organization is to define reality. What is going on? Where is God in this? Who are we called to be in response to God? The course will deal with both theologies of writing and actual practices of communicating in a variety of genres. By the end students should feel competent to evaluate publications to which they would like to submit written work for publication. They should be able also to produce their own media through their own outlets (church website, Facebook, blogs etc.) to a fruitful leadership end. One course.

905. Integration: Sustaining and Strengthening Mission. To be a faithful Christian leader is to commit oneself to “a long obedience in the same direction,” to borrow Nietzsche’s phrase. The practice of faithful Christian leadership is thus more like running a marathon than competing in a sprint. Often Christian leaders or institutions are able to experience short periods of intense activity and heroic achievement, only to then watch the artificial bubble burst as leadership burns out or bows out. Far fewer are the examples of Christian leaders and institutions who stay the course and who “finish well”; who, by God’s grace, grow steadily in faithfulness and fruitfulness in a way that is sustainable and lasting. One course.

906. The Doctor of Ministry Thesis Seminar. This course will prepare students to select a research topic for their DMin thesis that is credible, manageable, and significant. It also will equip them to undertake the program of research and writing required to complete their thesis successfully. To that end, students will be introduced to and encouraged to follow the research model set forth in the third edition of The Craft of Research by Booth, Colomb, and Williams (Chicago, 2008). One course.

VI. Colloquia/Interfield/Field Education

Colloquia/Interfield/Field Education (CIF)

3A. Choir. A noncredit course for those participating in choir and desiring that involvement to show on the transcript.

3B. Choir. Continuation of Colloquia/Interfield/Field Education 3A. No credit.

Course Continuation Divinity (CONTDIV)

2. Study Away. No credit.

Field Education (FIELDDEDU)

All MDiv students must have two approved field education placements in order to graduate. Students are block registered for FIELDDEDU through the Office of Field Education. Pass/fail grading only. No credit. Successfully passed units are recorded as “milestones” in student records.

1A. Approved Summer Placement. No credit.

4. Student Pastor Appointment/Call. Student pastor mentoring groups. Student pastors are required to take these pastoral formation, noncredit, courses. Register for section by year: .01 first; .02 second; .03 third; and .04 fourth. Pass/fail grading only. No credit.

5. Pre-enrollment Ministry Discernment Program. Program provides, through The Duke Endowment, a small number of opportunities (usually about a dozen) for United Methodist students to serve supervised internships during the summer immediately prior to enrollment. Students serving in these placements do not receive Field Education credit but in addition to the invaluable contextual learning that they gain, they are compensated financially through The Duke Endowment. No credit.

Appendix I. Guidelines for Inclusive Language

“The decadence of our language is probably curable. Those who deny this would argue, if they produced an argument at all, that language merely reflects existing social conditions, and that we cannot influence its development by any direct tinkering with words and constructions. So far as the general tone or spirit of language goes, this may be true, but it is not true in detail. Silly words and expressions have often disappeared, not through any evolutionary process but owing to the conscious action of a minority.”

— George Orwell, Politics of the English Language

The necessity for change is the parent of tradition. If we want a change in our language to come, we must first facilitate that change through concerted action. Our language is determined both by who we are as individuals and communities, and who we want to become.

The affirmation of the integrity of people with various opinions and interpretations on the issue of language is assumed. It is recognized, however, that exclusive language can work unwitting and unintended harm by distorting reality and excluding members from our community. Therefore, all members of this Duke Divinity School community (students, faculty, administrators, and staff) are invited to join together in using language that most adequately reflects the unity of the people of God and the reality of God.

Language About Persons

Generic Usage

Although “man” originally carried the meaning of both “human beings” and “adult males,” such can no longer be assumed. Even though technically “man” is inclusive, its actual use is often exclusive.

• Use precise language. When in the past you would have been inclined to use the generic term “man,” find creative ways to use such words as “humankind,” “humans,” “persons,” “everyone,” “men and women,” “children of God,” etc.

• Use words that do not include “man” when referring to occupations and positions that can include both males and females. Alternative descriptions can often be found that are not awkward compounds:

Pronoun Usage

Pronoun usage that avoids gender specific categories is an effective way to include all members of society or a given community in general references. Although English grammars generally maintain that the nonspecific individual be referred to as “he,” such a reference is not inclusive. One should attempt to make all pronoun references inclusive.

• When speaking in general terms or when referring to both women and men, use pronouns so as to make explicit that both men and women are included. This may be accomplished by using such methods as “he and she,” “hers and his,” or combinations such as “he/she,” “s/he,” and “his/hers.”

• Other approaches to the pronoun issue include:
  • Use writing that reduces unnecessary or excessive gender specific pronouns: “The average American drives his car to work” can become “The average American drives to work.”
  • Rephrase statements into the plural: “Most Americans drive their cars to work.”
  • When speaking in generic terms or when including women and men in the same group, some guides suggest alternating female and male pronouns: “A person should take good care of her car. He should check the oil level daily. She should also make sure that the tires are properly inflated.”
  • The indefinite use of the second person plural pronoun, “you,” to refer to people in general is a widespread conversational device. You must realize, however, that the use of the second person in writing creates an intimate relationship between the writer and the reader. For this reason, when using the second person, be sure that the person or persons to whom the argument is directed is clearly identified.
• Masculine pronouns can be replaced by the impersonal pronoun “one,” and this is still preferred in formal usage. However, one should use this form sparingly.

Forms of Address
Traditionally there has been little need for particular ways to refer to individual women or married individuals with different titles. Women did not have titles other than “Miss” or “Mrs.,” and it was assumed that their identity derived from their marital status. That assumption is no longer valid, and forms of address should recognize the identity that women have as individuals.

• In referring to an individual woman there is no need to refer to her marital status, just as traditional references to men give no indication of their marital status. Examples:
  - Ms. Lorna Stafford
  - The Reverend Ms. Louise Lind
  - The Reverend Mr. Louis Lind
  - Dr. Jennifer Jones

• Different titles should be recognized when addressing married couples.
Examples:
  - Clergywoman married to a layperson: The Reverend Ms. Sally Jones and Mr. Gerald Jones
  - Clergy couples: The Reverends Ms. Sally Smith and Mr. Gerald Jones; The Reverends Ms. Sally Jones and Mr. Gerald Jones; The Reverends M/M Sally and Gerald Jones
  - Other titles: Professor Louise Lind and Dr. Jonathan Smith; Drs. Cynthia and Jackson Whittaker

• Although the use of individual names is assumed when married people have different titles, this is desirable for others as well. Instead of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Jackson, try:
  - Steve and Lorna Jackson
  - Mr. and Mrs. Steve and Lorna Jackson
  - M/M Steve Jackson and Lorna Stafford

Titles can be eliminated altogether, but in formal usage this practice is generally not preferred.

References to Collective and Abstract Nouns
Social institutions (e.g., church), concepts (e.g., evil), or inanimate objects (e.g., a ship) do not have gender. Referring to them as female or male encourages stereotyping groups of people with the qualities specific to that institution, concept, or object.

• Pronouns that refer to collective and abstract nouns should be neuter, except in direct quotations.
  - Direct quotation: “And I saw the holy city, new Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband.” (Revelations 21:2).
  - Modern usage: The Church is described as the new Jerusalem. It is adorned for the worship of God, and its relationship with God is seen as a gift from God.

• Direct quotations can often be made inclusive through the use of brackets: “A person must make his [or her] own way in this broken world.”

Language About God
Although these guidelines are designed mainly for use in terms of language about people, care and attention should be given also to language about God in writing, speaking, and worship. Language about God should articulate the variety and richness of God’s manifestations to humankind. It should also respect the deeply personal nature of God as expressed through the Trinity. These suggestions are offered as a beginning point from which one can develop androgynous language about God:

• The exclusive use of either masculine or feminine pronouns for God should be avoided.
• Metaphors showing God’s personal relationship with humans should be used, but need not be personalized with “he” or “she.”
• A variety of sex-specific metaphors can be used: “God is the father who welcomes his son home, but she is also the woman who searches for the lost coin.”

Imagination, patience, and diligence are required in order to use language that expands and enriches our understanding of God.
Appendix II. Conduct Covenant and Judicial Procedures

This appendix on Conduct Covenant and Judicial Procedures was adopted by the Duke Divinity School faculty in February 2003:

The Conduct Covenant for Duke Divinity School

We, the faculty and students in the Divinity School of Duke University, make covenant, individually and corporately, to uphold the highest standards of personal and academic integrity. This includes, but is not limited to, never lying, cheating, stealing, causing harm to self or others, or defacing property. Set aside by our calling, we hold ourselves and each other to the highest standards of conduct.

As a Divinity School committed to forming and educating persons for the ministry of Jesus Christ, we covenant together to embody truth in every aspect of our lives, including our academic work and all forms of speech. In joyful obedience to Christ, we gratefully involve our bodies, minds, and spirits in this community of discipline and love, recognizing that we are a people called to worship God by the Spirit of truth.

Covenant Keeping

Introduction: Breaches of community covenants are grievous matters, both to the individuals concerned and to the community as a whole. To encourage covenant faithfulness, the Divinity School conduct covenant tries to be explicit in describing the kind of attitude and behavior that honors the distinctive nature of the Divinity School. The Divinity School will work to make students aware of our covenant together from the beginning of their academic program.

Pastoral Process: The response of the community to both alleged and confirmed fractures of our covenant will be guided by pastoral concerns. In this instance pastoral denotes reconciling, restorative, healing. At times we can be reconciling, restorative, and healing simply through sharing, listening sympathetically, and responding with forgiveness and understanding. In other instances reconciliation, restoration to the community, and healing of person and community can occur only through confession, an attitude of penance and penitential acts indicating remorse, contrition, and a desire to learn from one's errors. Members of the covenant community who are aggrieved by the conduct of other members of the community should find a friend and approach the offending party to work out the misunderstanding or offense (Matthew 18:15-20). However, because of their gravity, matters related to plagiarism, cheating, theft, or abuse of property (including academic property), or fraud, should be brought directly to the academic dean for address and resolution following the processes described below. As members of a covenant community, all persons have a moral obligation to report breaches of the covenant.

Judicial Procedures: The judicial process hereinafter described is constituted for the Divinity School community as required by the Judicial System of Duke University and the university's rubric on student life. It conforms to and functions within those larger structures (see The Duke Community Standard in Practice: A Guide for Undergraduates).

When grievances are brought to the academic dean, the following processes will be implemented:

- Faculty accused of covenant violation will be subject to the policies and procedures of the currently effective Duke University Faculty Handbook.
- Students accused of covenant violation may elect (1) to authorize the academic dean to initiate an informal process to resolve the accusation and apply any indicated disciplines, or (2) to authorize the academic dean to initiate a formal process involving fellow students, faculty, and administration who will attempt to determine whether there has been a violation and take appropriate pastoral action.
- Informal Process: Under this procedure the person bringing the accusation, the accused, the academic dean, and whomever the academic dean deems appropriate will work to review the facts of the offense. The academic dean will decide on guilt or innocence, the Divinity School's response to it, and any indicated discipline.
- Formal Process: Under this process (operated in conformity with The Duke Community Standard in Practice: A Guide for Undergraduates), alleged offense(s) will be reviewed by The Divinity School Judicial Board, composed of the academic dean (who will serve as chair of the board), the director of student life, four students (one of whom shall be designated an alternate), and three faculty and/or staff members (one of whom shall be designated an alternate). This committee will review the grievance, dismiss it or admit it, and decide on any action to be taken in response to it.

1 Duke Divinity School is a Christian community shaped by the Gospel of Jesus Christ. While we do not expect members of other faith traditions to share the theological framework out of which this covenant was developed, we welcome into our community anyone who is willing to live and work under the standards of conduct specified herein.
• In either the informal or formal processes, the student who is the subject of a complaint or accusation will be fully informed of his/her rights and the grievance(s) brought against him/her, given ample opportunity to respond and be assured s/he will be heard fully, fairly, and in Christian charity. Proceedings under both (1) and (2) should be held in strictest confidence by all parties concerned. Disciplinary measures, depending on the severity of the offense, may include but not be limited to required counseling, a mandated leave of absence for a term or terms, failure of a course, and suspension or expulsion from the Divinity School.

Appeal: A person convicted of a covenant breach may appeal the case to the dean of the Divinity School by providing: 1) written notice of that intention within forty-eight hours and 2) a written statement of the grounds of the appeal within seven days of the receipt of the verdict. Grounds for appeal include new and significant evidence that might alter the case or violation of due process. This appeal process does not apply to students subject to Involuntary Administrative Withdrawal (see "Administration of the Curriculum").

Formal Process for a Grade Review: Under this process (which is in conformity with university practice) a student may request a formal grade review. Only final grades may be reviewed and a process must be initiated within thirty days of the final grade being assigned.
• A student who questions a final grade received in a course should first discuss the matter with the instructor within thirty days of receiving the grade.
• After meeting with the instructor, if the student still believes the instructor has assigned an inaccurate or unjustified grade, the student should discuss the matter with the associate dean for academic programs.
• If no satisfactory resolution is reached, the student may make a formal complaint in writing to the associate dean for academic programs. The associate dean will convene the faculty members appointed to the Judicial Board and the director of student life to review the case with the instructor involved. If the majority of those convened agree with the instructor that there are no legitimate grounds for which to change the grade, the grade stands as recorded.
• If those convened believe there are grounds to consider a change and the instructor is unwilling to change the grade, the associate dean will notify the student that he or she may request a review of the case by writing to the dean of the Divinity School. A written request must be submitted before the end of the Drop/Add period of the semester following that in which the instructor recorded the grade. The dean will review the case. The dean's decision is final.

Interpretation/Exposition
(This third section of the Conduct Covenant is designed to foster continuing conversation regarding the Covenant and its relationship to the Divinity School community):
• Our call is lived out in community. We do not claim as our own that which belongs to the community. We will respect the places of learning, help to care for the facilities, and share in the exchange of materials, neither stealing nor abusing books or other valuable tools of learning. We will abstain from cheating of every kind. We will not plagiarize, fabricate, or falsify our work or aid others in these forms of dishonesty. When we observe any forms of dishonesty, we recognize that we are under moral obligation to report the offender to the academic dean. In the truthful pursuit of knowledge and understanding, we will foster the honest and respectful exchange of ideas, prepare for class, listen carefully, seek to understand, and give a fair, accurate, and charitable account of ideas, positions, and arguments with which we agree and disagree. In this vital exchange, we will open ourselves to judgment, always seeking to learn and not bear false witness.
• Those who claim Christ speak and live truthfully. We are called to show respect to all we meet, acknowledging in our daily behavior on and off the campus that we are called to live in the image of God. We work to strengthen one another in Christ. We are welcoming and hospitable, endeavoring to create a place where all will feel safe and free to share joys and struggles, passions and conflicts, hopes and fears. We serve and do not exploit one another. We honor the friendships we form, transcending self-service with mutual service. We live honestly before our friends, giving and receiving godly wisdom and holding ourselves accountable to one another as disciples of Jesus Christ. We attend to the concerns of our families, avoiding neglect, abuse, or evil counsel. We are faithful to the covenants we enter: personal, marital, familial, and communal. We encourage each other to ever-deepening commitment to Christ in prayer, fasting, chastity, worship, study, and acts of charity, justice, and mercy.
Code of Ethics for Social Media

We, the faculty and students in the Divinity School of Duke University commit to maintain a code of ethics concerning our speech and activity on social media networks. We commit to tell the truth, to be honest and fair, to be accurate, and to be respectful. We also commit to be accountable for any mistakes and correct them promptly. We will be cognizant of the fact that social media exists in a public forum, and hence we will be cautious and responsible about what we put out in the public sphere. Furthermore, we commit to maintain the confidentiality of others and to uphold federal requirements such as FERPA and HIPAA.

Student Sexual Misconduct Policy & Procedures

The Divinity School adheres to Duke University’s Student Sexual Misconduct Policy. This policy applies to cases where it is alleged that a Duke student has engaged in sexual misconduct. Please view the full policy and its procedures at http://studentaffairs.duke.edu/conduct/z-policies/student-sexual-misconduct-policy-dukes-commitment-title-ix.

Harassment Policy and Procedures

The Divinity School has designated harassment officers available whom students, staff, or faculty may approach for counsel if they have experienced or are aware of a case involving any form of harassment. Check with the school’s Office of Academic Programs to find out who currently are the designated officers.

The Duke Community Standard

“Duke University is a community dedicated to scholarship, leadership, and service and to the principles of honesty, fairness, respect, and accountability. Citizens of this community commit to reflect upon and uphold these principles in all academic and nonacademic endeavors, and to protect and promote a culture of integrity.

To uphold the Duke Community Standard:
• I will not lie, cheat, or steal in my academic endeavors;
• I will conduct myself honorably in all my endeavors; and
• I will act if the Standard is compromised.”

Duke has also determined that the various schools of the university should create and retain their own unique honor systems because such systems will best match the varying needs of the individual schools.

The Divinity School Conduct Covenant is thus consistent with the university’s efforts to nurture a culture of integrity in the academic arena as well as the arenas of faculty and student conduct.

Appendix III. Alcohol

Divinity Alcohol Policy

Events officially sponsored by the Divinity Student Council and Duke Divinity School student organizations do not include the provision and consumption of alcohol.

University-Wide Policy

As a community of scholars and learners, Duke University expects those within its community to be responsible with the use of alcohol. This policy shall guide the role of alcohol everywhere on the Duke campus and at all events sponsored by Duke organizations, schools, or administrative units. Students, staff, and faculty members are encouraged to learn about the social, physiological, and psychological consequences of drinking and alcohol abuse. Excessive and high-risk drinking can lead to negative consequences for the Duke community, including assault, illness, injury, litter, noise, property damage, and driving under the influence. All members of the Duke community share responsibility for creating an environment that limits dangerous drinking behaviors and, therefore, reduces the likelihood of these negative outcomes.

The following shall guide the role of alcohol in the Duke community:
• All possession, consumption, and distribution of alcohol at Duke University shall be in accordance with applicable North Carolina state laws.
• Members of the Duke community are responsible for behaving in a manner that is not disruptive or endangering to themselves or others. Being under the influence of alcohol shall not be a mitigating factor for an individual’s behavior.
• When persons under twenty-one years of age can reasonably be expected to be present at an event, proper precautions must be taken to restrict distribution and consumption of alcohol to persons of legal drinking age. Student organizations shall also adhere to the specific guidelines for events outlined in The Duke Community Standard: A Guide for Undergraduates or the Graduate and Professional Student Alcohol Policy. Advertising or other communication that references the availability of alcohol at a function may neither promote alcohol as the focus of the event nor promote excessive drinking.

• Each community (e.g., Undergraduate, Fuqua, Law, etc.) may establish additional guidelines and policies governing the possession, consumption, and distribution of alcohol that reach beyond these minimal expectations. Violations of policies shall be adjudicated using existing procedures within each segment of the university.

University Graduate and Professional Student Alcohol Policy

Philosophy on Alcohol Service at Duke University. This policy affords recognized student groups the privilege of serving alcohol at certain events. As adults, graduate and professional students are expected to know and abide by all applicable state and federal laws and university policies and procedures. Ultimately, students are responsible for their own behavior. However, if a student group provides alcohol as part of their event, they share in the responsibility to provide a safe environment for all attendees. If your group has questions, contact the Student Affairs officer for your school or the Office of Student Activities. Any on or off campus event sponsored by a recognized graduate-professional student group (affiliated with GPSC) must comply with this policy if it involves alcohol. Only recognized student groups may host an on-campus event involving alcohol.

Distribution of Alcohol. In compliance with North Carolina state law, alcohol must be served in a controlled manner and not freely accessible. No one who is under the age of twenty-one or visibly intoxicated may be served. Alcohol must not leave the confines of the event.

• Options Regarding Serving Alcohol on University Property
  - Third-Party Vendor—Student groups may contract with a university-approved third-party vendor to acquire and serve alcohol. The third-party vendor uses its liquor license and provides bartenders. For a list of approved third-party vendors, contact the Office of Student Activities. Some university spaces require a third-party vendor; check guidelines in advance when reserving the space.
  - Student Group—Student group members may order, set up, and control distribution of the alcohol at the event independently in compliance with this policy. Distribution may be in the form of student group purchased alcohol or regulation of a BYO event in accordance with this policy.

• Options Regarding Serving Alcohol Off-Campus
  - Third-Party Vendor—Student groups may contract with a third-party vendor to acquire and serve alcohol. The third-party vendor uses its liquor license and provides bartenders. Third-party vendors include local bars and restaurants, in addition to other businesses.
  - Student Group—Student group members may order, set up, and control distribution of the alcohol at the event independently in compliance with this policy. Distribution may be in the form of student group purchased alcohol or regulation of a BYO event in accordance with this policy.

Security guards, event staff, or a third-party vendor should verify the age of any participant that appears under the age of twenty-one. This verification must include examination of a photo identification that lists the date of birth. Examples of such identification include passports and driver’s licenses.

Location. Student groups should check in advance with the appropriate reserving office for specific location guidelines. When alcohol is permitted, the space must be secured or otherwise regulated to ensure proper admittance and that alcohol distribution can be monitored effectively. If the event is held outside, or in an unsecured area, participants may be subjected to random checks unless distinct identification (such as wristband or stamp) is required to identify attendees twenty-one years and older. This is to ensure that those passing through an event do not receive alcohol.

Advertising. Alcohol may be mentioned or implied in campus advertising of the event to graduate students, using conventional phrases such as “happy hour,” “beer & pizza,” “wine and cheese,” etc. However, alcohol may not be the primary focus of an event.

Security. The Division of Student Affairs at Duke University (henceforth referred to as Student Affairs) and the GPSC Student Life Chair(s) or their designees must be notified at least one week in advance of the event. GPSC News is the recommended method of notification. At the discretion of Student Affairs, University Police may be notified, and private security guards may be required to assist with safety of participants and security of facility when total attendance involves more than one hundred students. The cost of private security guards is the responsibility of the sponsoring student group.

Appendix III. Alcohol 180
Responsible Contacts. At least one person from the sponsoring group must be designated as the Responsible Contact for the event per 200 people in attendance. Responsible Contacts should be sober and not consume alcohol immediately prior to or during the event. Responsible Contacts are responsible for overseeing and ensuring the safety of the event and the implementation of this policy. Contacts are to introduce themselves to the University Police as well as any security guards and serve as the point persons with these agencies. Responsible Contacts, with the assistance of University Police and security guards as needed, must be able to shut down an event if this policy is not being implemented effectively or if other problems arise.

Food and Beverages. Food must be provided at all events on-campus events where alcohol is served and must be free and displayed in an attractive manner. Nonalcoholic beverages also should be readily available and free. Water should be one of the nonalcoholic beverages provided. The food and nonalcoholic beverages should be replenished several times throughout the program so that they are constantly available.

Sanctions. The sponsoring group will be held accountable for any and all violations of this policy. Sanctions for a violation may include, but are not limited to, loss of space reservation privileges, loss of university student group recognition, or fines for property damage.

Resources

The following resources are available to members of the Duke community:

- Duke Police and Emergency Medical Service: 911 or (919) 684-2444. Professionals will respond to assess the medical needs of an individual who is incapacitated or at-risk.
- Counseling and Psychological Services: (919) 660-1000. CAPS offers evaluation, consultation, counseling, and referrals for students concerned about alcohol use.
- Personal Assistance Service: (919) 416-1727. PAS offer assessment, short-term counseling, and referrals for employees and faculty members concerned about alcohol use.
- Duke Addictions Program: (919) 684-3850. DAP offers evaluation, consultation, and treatment for individuals with alcohol and other substance abuse issues, as well as support services for family members.
- Holly Hill Hospital: (800) 447-1800. 24-hour confidential advice on alcohol abuse.
- Academic courses related to alcohol use, treatment, and research. See course listings through the Office of University Registrar (http://registrar.duke.edu) or the bulletin of each school.
